Nation's Leading Financiers Summoned to Tell How They Got Copies.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Out of a whirlwind of developments the Senate today got a copy of the peace treaty and, after a five-hour fight, ordered it printed in the public record.

At the same time it got under way the investigation of how copies have reached private hands in New York by summoning to testify a half-dozen of the country's leading financiers.

The copy which went into the record was brought to this country by a newspaper man and was presented by Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, just after the reading of a cablegram from President Wilson saying he could not, without breaking faith, send to the Senate the text of the treaty.

The copy, brought to the United States by a Chicago newspaper man, probably is one of those on sale in the Scandinavian countries.

The effect of the day's history-making developments was to clear the air on the much-debated subject of publicity for the treaty text, to widen the breach between the President and the Senate majority, and to forecast a sensational turn for the inquiry into the manner by which copies of the document have become available to unauthorized persons.

OPEN TO PUBLIC.

The first of the day's series of surprises came when the Foreign Relations Committee, whose meetings in years past have been surrounded by closest secrecy, threw open its doors to the public.

Senator Borah was called upon first to amplify his statements in the Senate about treaty copies in New York. He said early in March he became convinced the international bankers of New York were interested particularly in creation of the League of Nations and that he quietly began an investigation.

"I ascertained," he told the committee, "that practically all the international bankers were deeply interested in the league and were assisting in promoting its adoption by this country. I became convinced, too, that these gentlemen were interested in promotion of the league for private reasons."

Under questioning, the Idaho Senator added he had secured this information, with knowledge that a copy of the treaty was in New

WORLD LABOR BOARD AND SAAR VALLEY DISPOSAL OF MOST TREMENDOUS IMPORT

BY FRAZIER HUNT.
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1919, by the Chicago Tribune Co.]

WASHINGTON, June 9.—While the Senate fumed today at its inability to get a copy of the treaty of peace with the Central Powers and the whole nation was amazed at the refusal of the administration to unlock its vaults, produce the copy which Acting Secretary of State Polk is known to have and make known to the people of America the treaty terms, which are already known to the people of the conquered countries, I am able to present to the readers of The Times one of the original copies of the document.

This copy, which is one of the original drafts, containing all the maps and treaty terms in detail, was obtained in Paris.

Passing through the seat of the Peace Conference on my return from Southern Russia, I obtained the copy and brought it to America, arriving last Friday morning in New York.

Outside the copy in the possession of the State Department, this is, in all probability, the only original copy there is in America.

It is quite easy to obtain German translations of the treaty in Germany and in neutral countries, but these have omissions and are without the maps.

The copy brought by me to America, entitled "Conditions of Peace," is printed in French and in English, the French text appearing on the left and the English on the right-hand pages.

The book is bound in paper and is roughly 8x14 inches and a little over an inch thick. There are 416 pages of text, running about 75,000 words, and four large maps are pasted in the volume.

IMPORTANT POINTS OF FULL TREATY SUMMARIZED.

By and large, the summary of the treaty as published in The Times this morning substantially carries the important points of the full treaty. This summary, which runs some 25,000 words, uses little of the original text, but reproduces fairly faithfully the sense of the original. Only in a few places are there any omissions which seem to have been made deliberately.

Probably the most serious of these is the case of the Saar Valley in regard to the ownership of the mines. This whole Saar Valley section, which is printed in full below, contains one of the severest exactions made by France on Germany. The summary fails to go into detail on some of these points.

A second section, where a serious indictment can be brought against the published summary, is in reference to the international labor organization which is to be formed under the patronage of the League of Nations. This tremendous step, which is of such vital interest both to American labor and capital, is dealt very lightly with in the summary. The full text of this section also appears below.

HIGH SPOTS IN THE PARIS REVELATION.

Saar Basin annex, the crux of the bitter controversy now being waged in Paris, entirely left out in official summary, stipulates manner under which Germany cedes to France mines in Saar Basin, as well as measures intended to effect government of territory, manner in which future determination of nationality is to be made. Germans forced to stand large proportion of cost of government in region while French will dictate manner of expenditures. Commission to consist of five members to govern district, one named by France, one by Germany, three others by other nations.

Beginning at Article CCXXXI the reparation and responsibility clauses around which center Germany's principal objections to the treaty as drafted, and upon which probably will hinge the signing or rejection of the pact, carry the features which Germany declares subject her to "complete industrial enslavement." The official summary carried this feature in very abbreviated form. Hunt gives the real facts.

A surprise is contained in Part 13, relating to labor, which, the official summary failed to disclose. Under Article CCCLXXXVII of the labor provisions a permanent organization is established consisting of a general conference of representatives of the (League of Nations) members and an international labor office controlled by a governing body composed of four representatives of each of the members, of whom two shall be government delegates and the two others shall be delegates representing the employers and the work people of each of the members. Each delegate may be accompanied by advisers not exceeding two in number for each item on the agenda of the meeting. When questions effecting women are to be considered, one of the advisers, at least, shall be a woman. A director elected by the governing body shall be in control of the international labor office. Two-thirds vote of delegates to determine labor conditions throughout the world, but any nation may protest any such action which affects governing laws of country involved, or may elect to put any provisions defeated by a two-thirds vote into effect in its country after first notifying the secretary of the League of Nations.

THE PREAMBLE.

The preamble of the treaty, which takes up ten pages, starts as follows:

"The United States of America, the British Empire, France, Italy and Japan, these powers being described in the present treaty as the principal Allied and associated powers; Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, China, Cuba, Ecuador, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Hedjaz, Honduras, Bavaria, Nicaragua, Panama, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, the Serb-Croat and Slovene state, Siam, Czecho-Slovakia and Uruguay, these powers constituting, with the principal powers mentioned above, the Allied and associated powers of the one part and Germany of the other part, bearing in mind that, at the request of the imperial German government, an armistice was signed on November 11, 1918, to Germany by the principal Allied and associated powers in order that a treaty of peace might be completed with her, and the Allied and associated powers, being equally desirous that the war in which they were successfully involved, directly or indirectly, and which originated in the declaration of war by Austria-Hungary on July 28, 1914, against Serbia; a declaration of war by Germany against Russia on August 1, 1914, and against France on August 3, 1914, and in the invasion of Belgium, should be replaced by a firm, just and durable peace. For this purpose, the high contracting parties represented as follows: [Then followed the names of the delegates from the different countries.]

PART I.

Part 1 contains the full text of the covenant of the League of Nations which in the official summary given out by the Peace Congress May 7 was very satisfactorily followed. Nothing of importance was omitted.

PART II.

BOUNDARIES OF GERMANY.

The official summary failed to include this portion of the treaty, but on the same day as the summary was given out, a digest of the boundary line was handed to the press at Paris. The original text reads as follows:

Article XXVII—The boundaries of Germany will be determined as follows:

(1.) WITH BELGIUM: From the point common to the three frontiers of Belgium, Holland and Germany and in a southerly direction:

The northeast boundary of the former territory of neutral Moresnet, then the eastern boundary of the Kreis of Eupen, then the frontier between Belgium and the Kreis of Mont Joie, then the northeast and eastern boundary of the Kreis of Malmedy to its junction with the frontier of Luxemburg.

(2.) WITH LUXEMBURG: The frontier of the third of August, 1914, to its junction with the frontier of France of the eighteenth of July, 1870.

(3.) WITH FRANCE: The frontier of the eighteenth of July, 1870, from Luxemburg to Switzerland with the reservations made in Article XLVIII of Section IV of Part III.

(4.) WITH SWITZERLAND: The present frontier.

(5.) WITH AUSTRIA: The frontier of the third of August, 1914, from Switzerland to Czecho-Slovakia, is hereinafter defined.

(6.) WITH CZECHO-SLOVAKIA: The frontier of the third of August, 1914, between Germany and Austria made this junction with the old administrative boundary separating Bohemia and the province of Upper Austria to the point north of the salient of the old province of Eastern Silesia, situated at about eight kilometers east of Neustadt.

(7.) WITH POLAND: From the point defined above in a northerly direction to the point of the salient of the eastern boundary of the Kreis of Falkenburg, which is about three kilometers east of Puschine. A line to be fixed on the ground passing east of Zulz.

(8.) WITH DENMARK: The frontier as it will be fixed in accordance with Articles CIX and CX, Part III, Section XII.

PART III.

POLITICAL CLAUSES FOR EUROPE:

Section I—Belgium:

(The official summary covered the section in regard to Belgium in the following brief resume:)

Germany is to consent to the obligation of the treaties of 1839 by which Belgium was established as a neutral state and to agree in advance to any convention with which the Allied and associated powers may determine to replace them.

Germany is to recognize the full sovereignty of Belgium over the contested territory of Moresnet and to renounce in favor of Belgium all rights of the circles of Eupen and Malmedy, the inhabitants of which are to be entitled, within six months, to protest against this change of sovereignty, either in whole or in part, the final decision to be reserved to the League of Nations.

A commission is to settle the details of the frontier and various regulations for change of nationality are laid down.

[Following is the official text of this Belgian section:]

Germany, recognizing that the treaties of April 19, 1839, which established the status of Belgium before the war, no longer conform to the requirements of the situation, consents to the obligation of the said treaties and undertakes immediately to recognize and to observe whatever conventions may be entered into by the principal Allied and associated powers, or by any of them in concert with the governments of Belgium and The Netherlands, to replace the said treaties of 1839. If her formal adhesion should be required to such conventions or to any of the other stipulations, Germany undertakes immediately to give it.

DEFECTS FOUND IN HALF STATE BABIES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, June 9.—Weights and measuring tests conducted by the State Board of Health last April and in June, 1918, revealed physical defects among 46.6 per cent. of 53,462 babies examined in the State, according to a report of the board issued today. The principal physical defects were abnormal tonsils and adenoids, the report said.

NO EXTRA SESSION TO RATIFY SUFFRAGE.

GOVERNOR DOES NOT THINK IT NECESSARY TO CALL LEGISLATURE NOW.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, June 9.—A "few" communications have been received at the Governor's office urging that a special session of the Legislature be called to ratify the woman suffrage amendment to the Federal Constitution, it was announced today. The Governor's attitude toward such requests has not been made known here. He is not at the capital at present.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—Gov. Stephens does not contemplate calling an extra session of the Legislature to ratify national women's suffrage amendment, according to a letter he sent from here today to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Women's Suffrage Association, who had asked him to call the session.

While he has favored suffrage for years, he "did not think it advisable or necessary to call an extra session of the Legislature at this time," the Governor said.

ILLINOIS TO ACT TODAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SPRINGFIELD (Ill.) June 9.—Certified copies of the Federal suffrage amendment, with a special message by Gov. Lowden urging ratification, were presented to both houses of the Illinois Legislature today. Action by both sides was made a special order for tomorrow.

Mexican Bandits Active

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Rebel activity in Southern Mexico has grown much more serious, official advices from Mexico City today said.

All traffic on the railroad between Vera Cruz and Tierra Blanca was suspended the day after Gen. Damy, leader of the Federal forces in the region, was killed, and has not been resumed.

An official report describing the bandits says:

"Their audacity increases daily since bands are attacking practically every town in the State at odd times and constantly harassing the Federal garrisons."

Gen. Urquizo, military commander in Vera Cruz, who ordered the execution of Gen. Alvarez, is said to be carrying out a new policy of expelling everyone suspected of being in sympathy with the Felix Diaz movement. The Secretary of State of Vera Cruz has been removed arbitrarily from office.

Railway traffic between Tampico and Monterey has been cut off by destruction of all rolling stock of the line by the rebels.

London Not Excited

LONDON, June 9.—The London newspapers as a whole are not excited over the resolution adopted by the United States Senate asking the American peace delegates to secure a hearing before the Peace Conference for Ireland's delegates.

"Truths which are commonplace are entirely overlooked or unknown in America, where it is not realized the home rule question is not an issue between England and Ireland, but Irishmen and Irishmen," the Daily Chronicle says.

"There is no country in the world," says the Morning Post, "but America where such a deliberate affront to a friendly power would be offered. Judged by all standards of international comity and decorum, it is indefensible."

May Fly to Brazil

PARIS, June 9.—Lieut. Jean Fontan, French aviator, left Villa Coublay, France, early Sunday, in another attempt to reach Dakar, Africa, and fly thence across the Atlantic to Brazil. His machine developed engine trouble, however, and he was compelled to land near Zaragossa, Spain.

In three previous attempts Lieut. Fantan was forced to descend owing to engine trouble.

American Transport Back

LONDON, June 9.—For no apparent reason the American transport Federal arrived today from Antwerp with only one army officer and ten Y.M.C.A. workers. Embarkation officials said the craft carried no cargo, and Capt. M. D. Mills, U.S.A., of Seattle, the "military guest," was as much in the dark as the commander of the Federal as to why the passenger list was "restricted."

Carson Man Beaten

LONDON, June 9.—The parliamentary election today for the vacant seat in East Antrim, Ireland, the regular Unionist faction, headed by Sir Edward Carson, was defeated.

The victor was Mr. Hanna, independent Unionist.

Friends of Sir Edward Carson had announced he would resign leadership of the Unionist party if unsuccessful in the contests.

Mexican Cashier Arrested

TUCSON (Ariz.) June 9.—Perez Unda, cashier of the Mexican customhouse at Sasabe, on the border, seventy-seven miles southwest of Tucson, was arrested here Sunday by Deputy Marshal Fred Hudson, on information given by Mexican Consul A. E. de los Monteros of Tucson, charged with bringing across the border $30,000 in gold and silver without declaring it, it was announced tonight.

PROPAGANDA AGAINST LANE'S FARM PROJECT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Efforts were made today by the House Public Lands Committee to learn the source of propaganda designed to defeat Secretary Lane's project for farms for soldiers and sailors.

Chairman Sinnott said a series of circulars had been sent newspapers charging that T. C. Atkeson, representing the National Grange, had not received a fair hearing when he appeared recently to present a grange resolution in opposition to the measure.

STRONG REBEL FORCE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO, June 9.—A courier reached Juarez late today from Villa Ahumada, eighty-four miles to the south, bringing confirmation of the reported presence there of a strong force of rebels under command of Gen. Felipe Angeles.

Shortly after his arrival American business men and well-to-do Mexicans commenced moving their valuables to this side of the river. Before 5 p.m. the exodus had become general.

There are persistent reports of fighting at Tierra Blanca, a station on the Mexican Central, fifteen miles from the border. A scouting party of eighty Federal soldiers under command of a lieutenant left early today in the direction of Tierra Blanca and failed to return. Belief is general in Juarez that these men have deserted to the rebels.

Villa sympathizers in El Paso freely predict Juarez will be attacked before morning and that the Federal garrison will surrender without a struggle.

tested territory of Moresnet (called Moresnet Neutre.)

Article XXXIII: Germany renounces in favor of Belgium all rights and title over the territory of Prussia Moresnet situated on the west of the road from Liege to Aix-la-Chapelle.

The road will belong to Belgium where it bounds this territory.

Article XXXIV: Germany renounces in favor of Belgium all rights and title over the territory comprising the whole of the Kreis of Eupen and of Malmedy.

During the six months after the coming into force of this treaty the registers will be opened by the Belgian authorities at Eupen and Malmedy in which the inhabitants of the above territory will be entitled to record in writing a desire to see the whole or a part of it remain under German sovereignty.

The results of this public expression of opinion will be communicated by the Belgian government to the League of Nations and Belgium undertakes to accept the decision of the league.

Article XXXV: A commission of seven persons, five of whom will be appointed by the principal Allied and associated powers, one by Germany, and one by Belgium, will be set up fifteen days after the coming into force of the present treaty, to settle on the spot the frontier line between Belgium and Germany, taking into account the economic factors and the means of communication.

Decision will be taken by a majority and will be binding on the parties concerned.

Article XXXVI: When the transfer of the sovereignty over the territories referred to above has become definite, German nationals habitually resident in the territories will definitely acquire Belgian nationality ipso facto and will lose their German nationality.

Nevertheless, German nationals who became resident in the territories after the first of August, 1914, shall not acquire Belgian nationality without a permit from the Belgian government.

Article XXXVII: Within the two years following a definitive transfer of the sovereignty over the territories consigned to Belgium under the present treaty, German nationals over 18 years of age habitually resident in those territories will be entitled to option for German nationality.

Option by a husband will cover his wife, and option by parents will cover their children under 18 years of age.

Persons who have exercised the above right to option must within the ensuing twelve months transfer their place of residence to Germany.

They will be entitled to retain their immovable property in the territories acquired by Belgium. They must carry with them their movable property of every description and the export or import duties may be imposed upon them in connection with the right of such property.

Article XXXVIII: The German government will hand over without delay to the Belgian government the archives, registers, plans, title deeds and documents of every kind concerning the civil, military, financial, judicial or other administratives in the territory testified to Belgian sovereignty.

The German government will likewise restore to the Belgian government the archives and documents of every kind carried off during the war by the German authorities from Belgian public administrations, and particularly from the Minister of Foreign Affairs at Brussels.

Section 2: Luxemburg.

Section 3: Left Bank of Rhine.

(The summary in its own words covers all of the points of this section of the treaty.)

The original reads as follows:

Article XLII: Germany is forbidden to maintain or construct any fortifications on the left bank of the Rhine, or on the right bank of the Rhine, less than fifty kilometers to the east of the Rhine.

Article XLIII: In the area defined above the maintenance and the assembly of armed forces either permanently or temporarily, and military maneuvers of any kind, as well as the upkeep of all permanent works for mobilization, are in the same way forbidden.

Article XLIV: In case Germany violates in any manner whatever the Articles XLII and XLIII she shall be regarded as committing a hostile act against the powers signatory of the present treaty, and as calculated to disturb the peace of the world.

Section 4: Saar Basin.

(It is in regard to this section of the treaty dealing with the Saar Basin that probably the most severe indictment against the summary can be brought. The summary deals fairly completely with the main points of the section, but chapter one of the annex in regard to the cessation and exploitation of mining property is entirely omitted. This is the part that has to do with the absolute domination by the French over the mines of the valley, and is one of the most severe parts of the treaty.)

Following is Section IV, relating to provisions for disposition and government of the Saar Basin:

Article XLV: As compensation for the destruction of the coal mines in the north of France, and as part payment toward the total reparation due from Germany for the damage resulting from the war, Germany cedes to France in full and absolute possession, with exclusive rights of exploitation, unincumbered and free from all debts and charges of any kind, the coal mines situated in the Saar Basin as defined in Article XLVIII.

Article XLVI: In order to assure the rights and welfare of the population and to guarantee to France complete freedom in working the mines, Germany agrees to the provisions of Chapters I and II of the annex hereto.

Article XLVII: In order to make in due time permanent provision for the government of the Saar Basin in accordance with the wishes of the population France and Germany agree to provisions of Chapter III of the annex hereto.

Article XLVIII: A commission composed of five members, one appointed by France, one by Germany and three by the council of the League of Nations, which will select nationals of other powers, will be constituted within fifteen days from the coming into force of the present treaty, to trace on the spot the frontier line described above.

In those parts of the preceding line which do not coincide with administrative boundaries, the commission will endeavor to keep to the line indicated while taking into consideration as far as possible, local economic interests and existing common boundaries.

The decisions of this commission will be taken by a majority, and will be binding on the parties concerned.

Article XLIX: Germany renounces in favor of the League of Nations, in the capacity of trustee, the government of the territory defined above.

At the end of fifteen years from the coming into force of the present treaty the inhabitants of the said territory shall be called upon to indicate the sovereignty under which they desire to be placed.

Article L: The stipulations under which the cession of the basin shall be carried out, together with the measures intended to guarantee the rights and the well-being of the inhabitants and the government of the territory, as well as the conditions on which the plebiscite hereinbefore provided for is to be made, are laid down in the annex hereto. This annex shall be considered as an integral part of the present treaty, and Germany declares her adherence to it.

Saar Basin Provisions.

In accordance with the provisions of Articles XLV to L of the present treaty, the stipulation under which the cession by Germany to France of the mines of the Saar Basin will be effected, as well as the measures intended to insure respect for the rights and well-being of the population and the government of the territory, and the conditions in which the inhabitants will be called to indicate sovereignty under which they may wish to be placed, have been laid down as follows:

CHAPTER I.

Cession and Exploitation of Mining Property.

(1.) From the date of the coming into force of the present treaty, all the deposits of coal situated within the Saar Basin, as defined in Article XLVIII of the said treaty, become the complete and absolute property of the French state. The French state will have the right of working or not working the said mines, or of transferring to a third party the right of working them, without having to obtain any previous authorization or to fulfill any formalities.

The French state may always require that the German mining laws and regulations, referred to below, shall be applied in order to ensure the determination of its rights.

(2.) The right of ownership of the French state will apply, not only to the deposits which are free and for which concessions have not yet been granted, but also to the deposits for which concessions have already been granted, whoever may be the present proprietors, irrespective of whether they belong to the Prussian state, to the Bavarian state, to other states or bodies of troops or to individuals, whether they have been worked or not, or whether a right of exploitation distinct from the right of the owners of the surface of the soil has or has not been recognized.

(3.) As far as concerns the mines which are being worked, the transfer of the ownership to the French state will apply to all the accessories and subsidiaries of the said mines, in particular to the plant and equipment, both on and below the surface, to their extracting machinery, their plants for transforming coal into electric power, coke and by-products, their workshops, means of communication, electric lines, plants for catching and distribution of water, land, buildings, such as offices, managers', employees' and workmens' dwellings, schools, hospitals and dispensaries, their stocks and supplies of every description, their archives and plans, and in general everything which those who own or exploit the mines possess or enjoy for the purpose of exploiting their mines and their accessories and subsidiaries.

The transfer will apply also to the debts owing for products determined before the entry into possession by the French state, and after the signature of the present treaty, and to deposits of money made by customers whose rights will be guaranteed by the French state.

(4.) The French state will acquire the property free and clear of all debts and charges. Nevertheless, the rights acquired, or in course of being acquired, by the employees of the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries at the date of the coming into force of the present treaty in connection with pensions for old age or disability, will not be affected. In return, Germany must pay to the French state a sum representing the actuarial amounts to which the said employees are entitled.

(5.) The value of the property thus ceded to the French state will be determined by the reparation commission referred to in Article CCXXXIII of Part VIII (reparations) of the present treaty.

This value shall be credited to Germany in part payment of the amount due for reparation.

It will be necessary for Germany to indemnify the proprietors or parties concerned whoever they may be.

(6.) No tariff shall be established on the German railways and canals which may directly or indirectly discriminate to the prejudice of the transport of the personnel or products of the mines and their accessories or subsidiaries, or of the material necessary to their exploitation. Such transport shall enjoy all the rights and privileges any international railway conventions may guarantee to similar products of French origin.

(7.) The equipment and personnel necessary to ensure the dispatch and transport of the products at the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries, as well as the carriage of workmen and employees, will be provided by the local railway administration of the basin.

(8.) No obstacle shall be placed in the way of such improvements of railways or waterways as the French state may judge necessary to assure the dispatch and the transport of the product of the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries such as double trackage, enlargement of stations and construction of yards and appurtenances. The distribution of expenses will in the event of disagreement, be submitted to arbitration.

The French state may also establish any new means of communication, such as roads, electric lines and telephone connections, which it may consider necessary for the exploitation of the mines. It may exploit freely and without any restrictions the means of communication of which it may become the owner, particularly those connecting the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries with the means of communication situated in French territory.

(9.) The French state shall always be entitled to demand the application of the German mining laws and regulations in force on the 11th of November, 1918, excepting provisions adopted exclusively in view of the state of war with a view to the acquisition of such land as it may judge necessary for exploitation of the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries.

The payment for the damage caused to immovable property by the working of the said mines and their accessories and subsidiaries shall be made in accordance with the German mining laws and regulations above referred to.

(10.) Every person whom the French state may substitute for itself as regards the whole or part of its rights to the exploitation of the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries shall enjoy the benefit of the privileges provided in this annex.

(11.) The mines and other immovable property which become the property of the French state may never be made the subject of measures of forfeiture, forced sale, expropriation or requisition, nor of any other measure affecting the right of property.

The personnel and the plant connected with the exploitation of these mines or their accessories and subsidiaries, as well as the product extracted from the mines or manufactured in their accessories and subsidiaries, may not at any time be made the subject of any measure of requisition.

(12.) The exploitation of the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries which become the property of the French state, will continue subject to the provisions of paragraph 23 below to be subject to the regime established by the German laws and regulations in force on the 11th of November, 1918, excepting provisions adopted and exclusively in view of the state of war.

The rights of the workmen shall similarly be maintained, subject to the provisions of the said paragraph 23, as established on the 11th of November, 1918, by the German laws and regulations above referred to.

No impediment shall be placed in the way of the introduction or employment in the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries of workmen from without the basin.

The employees and workmen of French nationality shall have the right to belong to French labor unions.

(13.) The amount contributed by the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries, either to the local budget of the territory of the Saar Basin or to the communal funds shall be fixed with due regard to the ratio of the values of the mines and the total taxable wealth of the basin.

(14.) The French state shall always have the right of establishing and maintaining as incidental to the mines, primary or technical schools for its employees and their children and of causing instruction therein to be given in the French language, in accordance with such curriculum and by such teachers as it may select.

It shall also have the right to establish and maintain hospitals, dispensaries, workmen's houses and gardens and other charitable and social institutions.

(15.) The French state shall enjoy complete liberty with respect to the distribution, despatch and sale prices of the products of the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries, as well as the product extracted from the mines or manufactured in their accessories and subsidiaries, may not at any time be made the subject of any measure of requisition.

(12.) The exploitation of the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries which become the property of the French state, will continue subject to the provisions of paragraph 23 below to be subject to the regime established by the German laws and regulations in force on the 11th of November, 1918, excepting provisions adopted and exclusively in view of the state of war.

The rights of the workmen shall similarly be maintained, subject to the provisions of the said paragraph 23, as established on the 11th of November, 1918, by the German laws and regulations above referred to.

No impediment shall be placed in the way of the introduction or employment in the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries of workmen from without the basin.

The employees and workmen of French nationality shall have the right to belong to French labor unions.

(13.) The amount contributed by the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries, either to the local budget of the territory of the Saar Basin or to the communal funds shall be fixed with due regard to the ratio of the values of the mines and the total taxable wealth of the basin.

(14.) The French state shall always have the right of establishing and maintaining as incidental to the mines, primary or technical schools for its employees and their children and of causing instruction therein to be given in the French language, in accordance with such curriculum and by such teachers as it may select.

It shall also have the right to establish and maintain hospitals, dispensaries, workmen's houses and gardens and other charitable and social institutions.

(15.) The French state shall enjoy complete liberty with respect to the distribution, despatch and sale prices of the products of the mines and their accessories and subsidiaries, as well as the product extracted from the mines or manufactured in their accessories and subsidiaries, may not at any time be made the subject of any measure of requisition.

Nevertheless whatever may be the total product of the mines, the French government undertakes that the requirements of local consumption for industrial and domestic purposes shall always be satisfied in the proportion existing in 1913 between the amount consumed locally and the total output of the Saar Basin.

(16.) The government of the territory of the Saar Basin will be intrusted to a commission representing the League of Nations.

(17.) The governing commission provided for by paragraph 16 shall consist of five members chosen by the council of the League of Nations, and will include one citizen of France, one native inhabitant of the Saar Basin, not a citizen of France, and three members belonging to three countries other than France or Germany. The members of the governing commission shall be appointed for one year and may be reappointed. They can be removed by the council of the League of Nations, which will provide for their replacement. The members of the governing commission will be entitled to a salary, which will be fixed by the council of the League of Nations, and charged on the local revenues.

(18.) The chairman of the governing commission shall be appointed for one year from among the members of the commission by the council of the League of Nations, and may be reappointed. The chairman will act as the executive of the commission.

(19.) Within the territory of the Saar Basin the governing commission shall have all the powers of government hitherto belonging to the German Empire, Prussia or Bavaria, including the appointment and dismissal of officials, and the creation of such administrative and representative bodies as it may deem necessary. It shall have full powers to administer and operate the railways, canals and the different public services. Its decisions shall be, taken by a majority.

(20.) Germany will place at the disposal of the governing commission all official documents and archives under the control of Germany, of any German state or any local authority which relate to the territory of the Saar Basin, or to the rights of the inhabitants thereof.

(21.) It will be the duty of the governing commission to insure, by such means and under such conditions as it may deem suitable, the protection abroad of the interests of the inhabitants of the territory of the Saar Basin.

(22.) The governing commission shall have the full right of use of all property other than mines belonging both in public and in private domain to the Imperial German government, or the government of any German state, in the territory of the Saar Basin. As regards the railways, an equitable apportionment of rolling stock shall be made by a mixed commission on which the government of the territory of the Saar Basin and the German railways are represented. Persons, goods, vessels, carriages, wagons, and mails coming from or going to the Saar Basin shall enjoy all the rights and privileges relating to transit and transport which are specified in the provisions of part XII (ports, railways, waterways) of the present treaty.

(23.) The laws and regulations in force on November 11, 1918, in the territory of the Saar Basin (except those enacted in consequence of the state of war) shall continue to apply. If, for general reasons or to bring these laws and regulations into accord with the provisions of the present treaty, it is necessary to introduce modifications, these shall be decided on and put into effect by the governing commission after consultation with the elected representatives of the inhabitants in such a manner as the commission may determine. No modification may be made in the legal regime for the exploitation of the mines provided for in paragraph 12 without the French state being previously consulted, unless such modification results from a general regulation respecting labor adopted by the League of Nations. In fixing the conditions and hours of labor for men, women and children, the governing commission is to take into consideration the wishes expressed by the local labor organizations, as well as the principles adopted by the League of Nations.

(24.) Subject to the provisions of No. 4, no rights of the inhabitants of the Saar Basin acquired or in process of acquisition at the date of the coming into force of this treaty, in respect of any insurance system of Germany or in respect of any pension of any kind, are affected by any of the provisions of the present treaty. Germany and the government of the territory of the Saar Basin will preserve and continue all of the aforesaid rights.

(25.) The civil and criminal courts existing in the territory of the Saar Basin shall continue. A civil and criminal court will be established by the governing commission to hear appeals from the decisions of the said courts and to decide matters for which these courts are not competent. The governing commission will be responsible for settling the organization and jurisdiction of the said court. Justice will be given in the name of the governing commission.

(26.) The governing commission will alone have the power of levying taxes and dues in the territory of the Saar Basin. These taxes and dues will be exclusively applied to the needs of the territory. The fiscal system existing on November 11, 1918, will be maintained as far as possible and no new tax except customs duties may be imposed without previously consulting the elected representatives of the inhabitants.

(27.) The present stipulations will not affect the existing nationality of the inhabitants of the territory of the Saar Basin. No hindrance shall be placed in the way of those who wish to acquire a different nationality. In such case the acquisition of the new nationality will involve the loss of any other.

(28.) Under the control of the governing commission the inhabitants will retain their local assemblies, their religious liberties, their schools, and their language. The right of voting will not be exercised for any assemblies other than the local assemblies and will belong to every inhabitant over the age of 20 years without distinction of sex.

(29.) Any of the inhabitants of the Saar Basin why may desire to leave the territory will have full liberty to retain in it their immovable property or to sell it at fair prices and to remove their movable property free of any charges.

(30.) There will be no military service, whether compulsory or voluntary, in the territory of the Saar Basin, and the construction of fortifications therein is forbidden. Only a local gendarmerie for the maintenance of order may be established. It will be the duty of the governing commission to provide in all cases for the protection of persons and property in the Saar Basin.

(31.) The territory of the Saar Basin as defined by Article XLVIII of the present treaty shall be subjected to the French customs regime. The receipts from the customs duties on goods intended for local consumption shall be included in the budget of the said territory after deduction of all costs of collection.

No export tax shall be imposed upon metallurgical products or coal exported from the said territory to Germany, nor on German exports for the use of the industries of the territory of the Saar Basin.

Natural or manufactured products originating in the basin in transit over German territory and similarly German products in transit over the territory of the basin shall be free of all customs duties.

Products which both originate in and pass from the basin into Germany shall be free of import duties for a period of five years from the date of the coming into force of the present treaty, and during the same period articles imported from Germany into the territory of the basin for local consumption shall likewise be free of import duties.

During these five years the French government reserves to itself the right of limiting to the annual average of the quantities imported into Alsace-Lorraine and France in the years 1911 to 1913 the quantities which may be sent into France of all articles coming from the basin, which include raw materials and semimanufactured goods imported duty free from Germany. Such average shall be determined after reference to all available official information and statistics.

(32.) No prohibition or restriction shall be imposed upon the circulation of French money in the territory of the Saar Basin.

The French state shall have the right to use French money in all purchases, payments and contracts connected with the exploitation of the mines or their accessories and subsidiaries.

(33.) The governing commission shall have power to decide all questions arising from the interpretation of the preceding provisions.

France and Germany agree that any dispute involving a difference of opinion as to the interpretation of the said provisions shall in the same way be submitted to the governing commission and the decision of a majority of the commission shall be binding on both countries.

(34.) At the termination of a period of fifteen years from the coming into force of the present treaty the population of the territory of the Saar Basin will be called upon to indicate their desires in the following manner: A vote will take place by communes or districts on the three following alternatives:

(a.) Maintenance of the regime established by the present treaty and by this annex;

(b.) Union with France;

(c.) Union with Germany.

All persons without distinction of sex more than 20 years old at the date of the voting, resident in the territory at the date of the signature of the present treaty, will have the right to vote.

The other conditions, methods and the date of the voting shall be fixed by the council of the League of Nations, in such a way as to secure the liberty, secrecy and trustworthiness of the voting.

(35.) The League of Nations shall decide on the sovereignty under which the territory is to be placed, taking into account the wishes of the inhabitants, as expressed by the voting.

(a.) If for the whole or part of the territory, the League of Nations decides in favor of the maintenance of the regime established by the present treaty and this annex, Germany hereby agrees to make such renunciation of her sovereignty in favor of the League of Nations as the latter shall deem necessary. It will be the duty of the League of Nations to take appropriate steps to adapt the regime definitely adopted to the permanent welfare of the territory and the general interest.

(b.) If for the whole or part of the territory the League of Nations decides in favor of union with France, Germany hereby agrees to cede to France, in accordance with the decision of the League of Nations, all rights and title over the territory specified by the league.

(c.) If for the whole or part of the territory, the League of Nations decides in favor of union with Germany, it will be the duty of the League of Nations to cause the German government to be re-established in the government of the territory specified by the league.

(36.) If the League of Nations decides in favor of the union of the whole or part of the territory of the Saar Basin with Germany, France's rights of ownership in the mines situated in such part of the territory will be repurchased by Germany in their entirety at a price payable in gold. The price to be paid will be fixed by three experts, one nominated by Germany, one by France, and one who shall be neither a Freichman nor a German, by the council of the League of Nations; the decision of the experts will be given by a majority.

If within the six months following the decision of the experts the price above referred to has not been paid by Germany, the said territory will be finally acquired by France.

(37.) If in consequence of the repurchase provided for in paragraph 36, the ownership of the mines or any part of them is transferred to Germany the French state and French nationals shall have the right to purchase such amount of coal of the Saar Basin as their industrial and domestic needs are found at that time to require. An equitable arrangement regarding amounts of coal, duration of contract, and prices will be fixed in due time by the council of the League of Nations.

(38.) It is understood that France and Germany may by agreement concluded before the time fixed for the payment of the price for the repurchase of the mines, modify the provisions of paragraphs 36 and 37.

(39.) The council of the League of Nations shall make such provisions as may be necessary for the establishment of the regime which is to take effect after the decision of the League of Nations mentioned in paragraph 35 have become operative, including an equitable apportionment of any obligations of the government of the territory of the Saar Basin arising from loans raised by the commission or from other causes.

From the coming into force of the new regime the powers of the governing commission will terminate, except in the case provided for in paragraph 34-a.

(40.) In all matters dealt with in the present annex, the decisions of the council of the League of Nations will be taken by a majority.

SECTION XV.

Dealing with Russia, China, and Shantung.

Article CXVI—Germany acknowledges and agrees to respect as permanent and inalienable the independence of all territories which were part of the former Russian empire on August 1, 1914. In accordance with the provisions of the Article CCLXX of Part IX (financial clauses) and Article CCXCII of Part X (economic clauses,) Germany accepts definitely the abrogation of the Brest-Litovsk treaties, and of all treaties, conventions, and agreements entered into by her with the Maximalist government in Russia. The Allied and associated powers formally reserve the rights of Russia to obtain from Germany restitution and reparation based on the principles of the present treaty.

Article CXVII—Germany undertakes to recognize the full forces of all treaties or agreements which may be entered into by the Allied and associated powers with states now existing or coming into existence in future in the whole or part of the former empire or Russia, as it existed on August 1, 1914, and to recognize the frontiers of any such states as determined therein.

Article CXVIII—In territory outside her European frontiers, as fixed by the present treaty, Germany renounces all rights, titles, and privileges whatever in or over territory which belonged to her or to her allies and all rights, titles and privileges, whatever their origin, which she held as against the Allied and associated powers.

Germany undertakes immediately to recognize and to conform to the measures which may be taken now or in the future by the principal Allied and associated powers, in agreement where necessary with third powers, in order to carry the above stipulation into effect.

In particular Germany declares her acceptance of the following articles relating to certain specific subjects.

Article CXVIII—Germany renounces in favor of China all benefits and privileges resulting from provisions of the final protocol at Peking on the 7th of September, 1901, and from all annexes and documents supplementary to. She likewise renounces in favor of China any claim to indemnities accruing thereunder subsequent to the 14th of March, 1917.

Article CXXII—Germany undertakes on coming into force of the present treaty, to bring into force of the high contracting parties, apply, in so far as she has not already done so, the provisions respectively:

(1.) The arrangement of August, 1902, regarding Chinese customs tariffs.

(2.) The arrangement of September, 1902, between Whang Poo, and the supplementary arrangement of April, 1912.

China, however, will not be bound to grant to Germany advantages or privileges which she allowed Germany under these agreements.

Article CXXI: Subject to the provisions of Section VIII, part, Germany cedes to China the buildings, wharves, barracks, forts, munitions of war, vessels of all kinds, wireless telegraphy installations, and other public property belonging to the German government which are situated or may be within German concessions at Hankow or elsewhere in China territory.

It is understood, however, that premises used as consular residences or offices are not included in the above cession; furthermore that no steps shall be taken by the Chinese government to dispose of the German property or private property situated within the so-called legation quarter at Peking without the consent of the representatives of the powers assembled on the coming into force of the present treaty, remain parties to the final protocol of the seventh September, 1901.

Article CXXII: Germany undertakes to restore to China within twelve months from the coming into force of the present treaty the astronomical instruments which the troops in 1900-1901 removed from China, and to deliver to Peking those which may be found in Germany affecting such restoration to be at the expenses of the latter, including packing, transporting, insurance and installation in Peking.

Article CXXIII: Germany assents to the abrogation of the leases of the Chinese government on which the German concessions at Hankow and Tien Tsin are held. China restored to the full exercise of her sovereign rights in the above areas declares her intention of opening them to the general residence and trade, and declares that the abrogation of leases under which the concessions are now held does not affect the property rights of individuals. Allied and associated powers who are holders of land in these concessions.

Article CXXIII: Germany waives all claims against China on behalf of the German government or any German nationals, and against the Allied and associated governments or any of their nationals in China and in connection with the internment of German nationals in China. She equally renounces all claims arising out of the capture and condemnation of German ships in China, or the liquidation or control of German property, rights, and interests in that country since August 14, 1917. Provision, however, shall be made for the rights of the persons interested in the proceeds of any such liquidation, which shall be governed by the provisions of Part X (Economic Clauses) of the present treaty.

Article CXXIV: Germany renounces in favor of the United States of America, on behalf of his Britannic Majesty, all German state property in the British Empire which was formerly the property of the German government, including any property formerly belonging to the German empire or to the state of Prussia, but excluding any property situated in the United States which belonged to the German government or to the Prussian government, with the exception of the property, rights and interests which formerly belonged to the German empire in the former German concession at Tientsin, and the property, rights and interests which belonged to the Prussian government in the former German concession at Hankow or elsewhere in China, and which are now vested in the Chinese government. She renounces in favor of China all property situated in German territory.

LOS ANGELES SUNDAY TIMES TEN CENTS.

Commencing June 15, the price of the Sunday edition of the Los Angeles Times will be 10 cents per copy everywhere, when sold by newsboys or news dealers.

Delivered by carrier, the subscription rate will be 40 cents a month for the Sunday Only edition.

The regular subscription rate for The Times, daily and Sunday, by carrier, will continue at 85 cents per month.

The cost of white paper, labor and all the items entering into the production of a metropolitan newspaper have materially advanced in cost and, in order to maintain quality and volume, the price of 10 cents per copy on the streets and at news stands has been fixed.

This is a consistent rate, inasmuch as the price of the local Sunday papers outside of Los Angeles and the ten-mile limit has been 10 cents for several months. The same rate is now made to apply to the city.

San Francisco and Oakland publishers announce that the price of Sunday editions will be 10 cents per copy beginning June 15.

It is impossible to produce a big Sunday paper at the old rate.

ORDERS CABLES' SUIT DISMISSED.

Supreme Tribunal Sets Aside Lower Court Decrees.

Returns to Private Ownership Ends Judicial Power.

Excessive Profits Tax is Upheld by Circuit Bench.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Federal decrees dismissing injunction suits brought to restrain Postmaster-General Burleson from seizing and retaining control of the cables of the Commercial Cable Company as well as from merging them with those of the Western Union Telegraph Company were set aside by the Supreme Court today and ordered the lower court to dismiss the proceedings.

The final court decisions holding the decrees were not justifiable were rendered by the Supreme Court today, however, that because of the return of the cables to private ownership, the questions involved are moot and the cases must be dismissed by the lower court.

The Supreme Court held today that moneys received by alien nationals from stocks, bonds and securities, secured upon property in the country and transmitted by an agent located in the United States, is taxable.

The Supreme Court, in an opinion today by Justice Pitney held the Arizona State employers' liability law constitutional.

Federal court decrees releasing from custody Frank J. Godsol, arrested here on charges of defrauding the French government out of $1,500,000 on the purchase of motor trucks, and whose extradition was sought by that government, were in effect sustained today by the Supreme Court.

PROFITS TAX UPHELD.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 9.—The government's wartime tax on the profits of munition manufactures, contested by producers of parts of shells, who claimed that the impost was intended to apply only to completed articles, was upheld by the Circuit Court of Appeals here today.

In a group of three decisions holding that any participant in the abnormal profits of munition-making must submit himself to taxation laid upon this class of income, the court sustained a government policy involving many millions of dollars in revenue already collected or in course of collection. Opposite action by the court would have necessitated legislation to make up the consequent deficit in Federal receipts.

RELATIVES CUT OFF IN MRS. COBURN'S WILL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

REDWOOD CITY, June 9.—Relatives of Mrs. Sara Satira Coburn, aged wealthy Pescadero widow, who was found murdered last Wednesday morning, are cut off in her will with the exception of her imbecile stepson, Wallace L. Coburn, 63, who is given a small allowance, according to a petition for special letters of administration, filed by the public administrator here today.

"Strangers in blood," are left the estate, which is upwards of $100,000. The original estate of her husband, Loren Coburn, was appraised at $1,000,000.

SENATE STARTS INVESTIGATION.

Leading Bankers of New York Called to Testify.

Senators Lodge and Borah are the First Witnesses.

President Cables Urging Complete Examination.

York, from sources which he could not reveal. He then suggested the calling of Messrs. Morgan, Davison, Lamont, Warburg and Schiff, saying he connected them with the existence of treaty copies in New York "by a combination of circumstances only."

WILLIAMS ADDS VANDERLIP.

The name of Mr. Vanderlip was added to the list on suggestion of Senator Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi, and the subpoenas were ordered unanimously on motion of Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, senior Democrat of the committee. The committee also invited Mr. Polk to appear.

Senator Lodge next made a statement saying he, too, had derived his information about treaty copies from sources he could not reveal. He had been shown the document by a friend, he said, and had never heard of the treaty being in the hands of financial interests.

Acting Secretary Polk, hastening to the Capitol as soon as he heard of the committee's investigation, told the committee he had received at various times about thirty copies of the treaty—the first one about May 19, by special courier, then ten more in the same manner, and then a package of additional copies in the State Department's confidential mail.

NO STATE DEPARTMENT LEAK.

"All these were placed in my safe and held subject to further orders," continued the Secretary, adding they had been examined by no one except himself and his secretary.

Asked whether there was any possibility that copies had been secured from the State Department, he replied:

"Positively no chance whatever."

Senator Hitchcock presented to the committee the cablegram from President Wilson in which the latter commended the Nebraska Senator for introducing the investigation resolution and expressed hope that the inquiry would be "most thoroughly prosecuted." The message, dated June 7, did not refer to the Senate resolution asking for the treaty text, and Secretary Tumulty thought it probable this request had not reached Mr. Wilson when he cabled.

Chairman Lodge said tonight there probably would be no further session until Thursday. The subpoenas must be served personally in New York, he said, and the committee probably would not be reassembled until some of the financiers were ready to testify.

The committee adjourned only a few minutes before the Senate assembled at noon and President Wilson's cablegram at once brought up the subject in the Senate chamber. No sooner had the message been read than Senator Borah was on his feet.

BORAH STARTLES SENATE.

"I now have in my possession a copy of the treaty," said he. "I am permitted to make this public by those who gave it to me. This particular copy was brought to this country by a staff correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, Mr. Frazier Hunt. I ask unanimous consent that it be printed in the record."

The request electrified the chamber. The President's supporters promptly refused consent, and Mr. Borah moved to print it. The document was ordered printed, 47 to 24.

As soon as the roll call was over many Senators were on their feet asking an opportunity to explain their vote.

Senator Hitchcock denounced the procedure as beneath the dignity of the Senate, and as "a step co-operating with the German government."

Senator Swanson of Virginia, another Democratic member of the Foreign Relations Committee, declared it showed a most remarkable disrespect of the President. Senator Johnson replied the only infamy in the matter was in "endeavoring to keep secret from all the people what Wall street has."

So heated did the exchanges become that Vice-President Marshall called a halt while he read the rules governing language to be used in debate, and said he was going to exercise his authority if necessary to prevent a "row."

After more than an hour Senator Beckham, Democrat, of Kentucky said he had voted for the Borah motion under a misapprehension and moved to reconsider the action by which the treaty was ordered printed. A reconsideration vote was prevented, however, by arrival of 2 o'clock, when the wire repeal bill came automatically before the Senate. With the reconsideration motion pending, it would have been impossible to print the treaty in today's record, and the President's supporters utilized the opportunity to endeavor to have a vote postponed until tomorrow.

Senator Hitchcock, who had the floor, yielded it to Senator Williams, who spoke for an hour and a half in what opposition leaders charged was a filibuster. He declared Senators Lodge and Borah were "nagging" the President by means of a "partisan majority, aided by a few men on this side who are seeking re-election."

WILLIAMS SCORES BORAH.

Senator Borah, continued Mr. Williams, had become "a Prussian junker" at heart, believing in sovereignty unlimited.

"The Senator from Idaho," he shouted, "wants no limitation put on our national government. He wants the United States left free to do what it pleases. That's all the German Emperor wanted. That's all Nero wanted." Shortly before 4 o'clock Senator Williams concluded and Senator Borah, obtaining the floor, remarked the authenticity of his treaty copy had been questioned and that he would prove it by reading the document. Thereupon he began leisurely with the preamble of the big volume, reading of which probably would have taken fifteen hours.

Immediately parliamentary objections, coupled with a storm of denunciation for the Idaho Senator's course, came from the Democratic side. The President's supporters objected that Mr. Borah was reading a confidential document against the Senate's rules; that he was breaking both precedent and rules by presenting a treaty at an open session, and that he was exceeding his right by speaking too often on the same subject during the same debate.

DEMOCRATS GIVE UP.

All these efforts to cut off the reading failed, and for an hour, Mr. Borah, standing at his desk, near the center of the chamber, read through the cumbersome preamble, with its long list of foreign signatories, and into the first section of the treaty—the already-published covenant of the League of Nations. Much of the time he was reading to an almost empty Senate chamber.

At last conferences among the leaders brought a compromise by which unanimous consent was given to interrupt the reading and vote on the reconsideration motion.

It promptly was rejected 42 to 24, opening the way to rush the treaty off to the government Printing Office to be put into type.

The victory for those who have asked publicity for the treaty had an echo at the other end of the Capital, where a member announced in the House, amid a storm of Republican applause, that the treaty would be printed in tomorrow's record.

"It seems beyond controversy," said Senator Borah, "that this treaty is now being published in practically all governments abroad."

"I now have in my possession a copy of the treaty," Senator Borah announced in asking unanimous consent for its printing in the record or as a Senate document.

BROUGHT BY CORRESPONDENT.

"I am permitted to make this public by those who gaveit to me," Mr. Borah continued. "This particular copy was brought to this country by a staff correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, Mr. Frazier Hunt. It was taken to the Tribune office last week and retained there for some time."

The Tribune's management, Mr. Borah said, believed they should not publish the treaty without consultation with government officials.

"It was brought to Washington yesterday afternoon and delivered to me as a member of the Foreign Relations Committee," said Mr. Borah. "I entertain no doubt that it is a true, correct copy."

Nine Democrats voted for the motion to print the text. They were Ashurst, Beckham, Chamberlain, Culberson, Kendrick, Myers, Pomerene, Reed and Walsh of Montana. Many Senators wanted to explain their votes on the propriety of printing the treaty in therecord. Senator Underwood, Democrat, Alagama, declared there was no evidence that the copy presented was an official one, and said: "If it is not and it goes out to the country with the sanction of the United States Senate, it may cause great harm."

THINK PUBLISHING MISTAKE.

Senators Hitchcock of Nebraska, Williams of Mississippi and Swanson of Virginia declared the printing of the document would be a mistake.

"It is beneath the dignity of the Senate," said Senator Hitchcock, "to co-operate with the German government in throwing a monkey-wrench into the peace machinery. It is known that this treaty first was made public in Germany. The German government did it for a purpose—to get better terms. And the majority here is co-operating with the German government by its action today."

Answering charges that the copy of the treaty presenetd to him in the Senate today might not be authentic, Senator Borah declared he could furnish convincing proof by reading it. He started reading the preamble of the long document at 4 p.m.

Senator Borah's move probably was a tactical one to force printing of the document, as opponents were seeking to keep a motion to reconsider publication before the Senate until adjournment and thus prevent action today.

USE PARLIAMENTARY TACTICS.

The apparent intention of the Idaho Senator to put the treaty immediately into the Senate record by that method drew vigorous objections from the President's supporters, who asserted that the reading of a treaty at an open session violated the Senate rules. A parliamentary wrangle followed.

After Senator Borah had read for ten minutes and succeeded in enumerating only the parties signatory, Senator Swanson, Democrat, of Virginia, and other Democrats sought to invoke the rule requiring that the Senate's doors be closed in executive session for discussion of treaties and other confidential matters.

Senator Walsh of Montana, presiding, after consulting the rules, finally ruled that the article being read by Senator Borah was not a treaty, and the Idaho Senator resumed his reading.

On another point of order by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, the Senate voted 42 to 24 that Senator Borah continue reading.

All the Republicans except Senator McCumber of North Dakota voted that Senator Borah continue his reading. Five Democrats Chamberlain, Myers, Overman, Pomerene and Reed, voted with the Republicans in favor of the reading.

It was nearly 4:30 p.m., when Senator Borah concluded the preamble and started reading the first section of the treaty, the already published covenant of the League of Nations.

PHELAN FAILS.

Another attempt to shut off the reading failed when Senator Phelan, Democrat, California, who made a point of order under the rule prohibiting any Senator from speaking more than twice on the same subject on the same day. The Vice-President overruled the objection.

After Senator Borah had proceeded half way through the league covenant, unanimous consent was obtained to vote on a motion of Senator Beckham, Democrat, of Kentucky, to reconsider Senator Borah's motion for printing the treaty in the record, and the reconsideration proposal was beaten, 41 to 26.

After voting to print the document, opponents of the plan by a motion to reconsider the Senate's action, sought to defeat the publication by keeping the reconsideration motion before the Senate until adjournment. Senator Borah met the challenge by beginning to read the hundred thousand word volume. After he had read for an hour, opponents of the publication capitulated by permitting a vote on their motion to reconsider, which was beaten. The treaty then went on for printing.

As soon as the Senate thus affirmed its order to print the document in the record, Senator Borah discontinued the reading and sent the treaty to the desk. That apparently concluded the Senate's consideration of the treaty for the day, other business being taken up for the first time.

Senator Ashurst, Democrat, of Arizona, said he voted for the Borah motion because Wall street already had the treaty and was speculating "to the tune of millions" on the information.

LEAGUE OPPONENTS EXPLAIN.

Senator Johnson, Republican, California, author of the resolution by which the Senate has asked the President for a copy of the treaty, said he "was astounded at the opposition to the efforts to make the document public."

"The infamy in this matter," he continued, "is not in asking that all shall have what Wall street already has, but the infamy is in endeavoring to keep secret from all the people what Wall street has."

Senator Chamberlain, Democrat, Oregon, said he wanted the treaty text to see just what agreements were to be guaranteed by the League of Nations, which he hoped to be able to support.

"We know what the League of Nations is now," he continued, "but God Almighty only knows what it will be when the treaty is completed."

INVESTIGATION STARTED.

The Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate was called together by Chairman Lodge today to formulate plans for the inquiry to be undertaken by it into the manner in which copies of the peace treaty with Germany have fallen into private hands in New York.

Appointment of a subcommittee to do the actual work of calling and questioning witnesses was the principal subject to come up at the meeting.

Mr. Lamont was requested to bring with him any correspondence which passed between J. P. Morgan & Co., and its Paris and London agents regarding the treaty, and particularly any communications on the subject between the banking house and Mr. Davison while the latter was abroad.

The committee also adopted unanimously a motion by Senator Fall, Republican, of New Mexico, inviting Acting Secretary Polk to appear as a witness and to take part in the inquiry by cross-examining witnesses and otherwise.

LODGE AND BORAH TESTIFY.

Senator Lodge, who made the first charges that the treaty was in the hands of New Yorkers, was the star witness at the opening session. He declined, on the ground of his Senatorial immunity, to give the names of persons who had the treaty, but said he would ask permission to disclose their names. Senator Borah, who also made charges similar to Senator Lodge's, said he had not seen copies of the treaty, but had been informed there were copies in New York. He had no personal knowledge of it, he said.

Acting Secretary Polk of the State Department testified that he has received copies of the American peace mission in Paris, had them locked in the State Department vault, and believed none of these copies were the ones referred to as being in New York.

Coincidental with the opening of the investigation, President Wilson cabled Senator Hitchcock he hoped the investigation would thoroughly be prosecuted.

BORAH WANTS FINANCIERS.

All of the financiers named, except Mr. Vanderlip, were called at the suggestion of Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, who told the committee he was convinced that each of them was familiar with what the treaty contained. He said he could not be sure that any one of them actually had a copy, however, because he never had seen a copy in their hands.

The Idaho Senator said he was convinced the international bankers of New York were interested "for private reasons" in the adoption of the League of Nations covenant. He added that, in his belief, the calling of the men named would show how and why they were interested.

The committee adjourned without fixing a date for the next meeting. The investigation will be made by the full committee and Chairman Lodge was expected to call another meeting as soon as any of those subpoenaed today are ready to appear.

President Wilson in a cablegram received today by Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, Nebraska, said he hoped the investigation by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of how copies of the peace treaty reached private interests in New York would "be most thoroughly prosecuted."

The President said he had felt it "was highly undesirable officially to communicate the text of a document which is still in negotiation and subject to change" and that any one who had possession of the official English text "has what he is clearly not entitled to have or to communicate."

This statement by the President strengthened the belief of officials here that he would not comply with the request of the Senate that the treaty text be furnished it at this time.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The President's message transmitted through the White House and read by Senator Hitchcock when the Foreign Relations Committee met today to plan its investigation, follows:

"Please convey following to Senator Hitchcock: I am heartily glad that you have demanded an investigation with regard to the possession of texts of the treaty by unauthorized persons. I have felt that it was highly undesirable officially to communicate the text of a document which is still in negotiation and subject to change. Anyone who has possession of the official English text has what he is clearly not entitled to have or to communicate. I have felt in honor bound to act in the same spirit and in the same way as the representatives of the other great powers in this matter and am confident that my fellow countrymen will not expect me to break faith with them. I hope the investigation will be most thoroughly prosecuted."

200 Pure Bred Jerseys for ARDEN

For twelve years Arden Dairy has produced a certified milk of the highest quality.

The new owners have recently installed the latest and most improved methods and equipment for the production of pure milk.

In contracting with the Crescent Creamery Company to deliver our milk from their seventy-five wagons and motors we feel that every part of Los Angeles and the beaches are being served in a most satisfactory manner.

To meet the increasing demand we have just added two hundred pure bred Jerseys to our herd of two hundred and thirty Holstein cows, which makes Arden herd the largest and the best certified dairy herd west of Chicago.

We could not produce purer, richer or better milk at any price. Call us for a trial order.

the property of the German school situated in the French concession at Shanghai.

Article CXLVII: Germany declares that she recognizes the protectorate proclaimed over Egypt by Great Britain on December 18, 1914, and that she renounces the regime of the capitulations in Egypt. The renunciation shall take effect as from August 4, 1914.

Article CXLVIII: All treaties agreements, arrangements, and contracts concluded by Germany with Egypt are regarded as abrogated as from August 4, 1914. In no case can Germany avail herself of these instruments, and she undertakes not to intervene in any way in negotiations relating to Egypt which may take place between Great Britain and the other powers.

Article XLIX: Until an Egyptian law of judicial organization establishing courts with universal jurisdiction comes into force, provision shall be made by means of decrees issued by his highness, the Sultan, for the exercise of jurisdiction over German nationals and property by the British consular tribunals.

Article CL: The Egyptian government shall have complete liberty of action in regulating the status of German nationals and the conditions under which they may establish themselves in Egypt.

Article CLI: Germany consents to the abrogation of the decree issued by his highness, the Khedive, on November 28, 1904, relating to the commission of the Egyptian public debt, or the such changes as the Egyptian government may think it desirable to make therein.

Article CLII: Germany consents, in so far as she is concerned, to the transfer to his Britannic Majesty's government of the powers conferred on his imperial majesty, the Sultan, by the convention signed at Constantinople on October 29, 1888, relating to the free navigation of the Sues Canal. She renounced all participation in the sanitary, maritime, and quarantine of Egypt and consents, in so far as she is concerned, to the transfer to the Egyptian authorities of the powers of that board.

Article CLIII All property and possessions in Egypt of the German empire and the German states pass to the Egyptian government, without payment. For this purpose, the property and possessions of the German empire and states shall be deemed to include all the property of the crown, the empire or the states, and the private property of the former German Emperor and other royal personages.

All movable and immovable property in Egypt belonging to German nationals shall be dealt with in accordance with sections III and IV of part X (economic clauses) of the present treaty.

Article CLIV: Egyptian goods entering Germany shall enjoy the treatment accorded to British goods.

Article CLVI: Germany renounces, in favor of Japan, all her rights, titles and privileges—particularly those concerning the territory of Kiau-Chow, railways, mines and submarine cables—which she acquired in virtue of the treaty concluded by her with China on March 6, 1898, and of all other arrangements relative to the province of Shantung.

All German rights in the Tsingtao-Tsinanfu Railway, including its branch lines, together with its subsidiary property of all kinds, stations, shops, fixed and rolling stock, mines, plant and material for the exploitation of the mines, are and remain acquired by Japan, together with all rights and privileges attaching thereto.

The German state submarine cables from Tsung-tao to Shanghai and from Tsing-tao to Chefoo, with all the rights, privileges and properties attaching thereto, are similarly acquired by Japan, free and clear of all charges and incumbrances.

Article CLVII: The movable and immovable property owned by the German state in the territory of Kiao-Chow, as well as all the rights which Germany might claim in consequence of the works of improvements made or expense incurred by her, directly or indirectly, in connection with this territory, are and remain acquired by Japan, free and clear of all charges and incumbrances.

Article CLVIII: Germany shall hand over to Japan within three months from the coming into force of the present treaty, the archives, registers, plans, title deeds and documents of every kind, wherever they may be, relating to the administration, whether civil, military, financial, judicial or other, of the territory of Kiao-Chow.

Within the same period Germany shall give particulars to Japan of all treaties, arrangements or agreements relating to the rights, title or privileges referred to in the two preceding articles.

The reparation section is the one the Germans find hardest to swallow, and their vehement protests have caused the big four to take up the question of lightening the terms.

Article CCXXXI—The Allied and associated governments affirm and Germany accepts, the responsibility of Germany and her allies for causing all the loss and damage to which the Allied and associated governments and their nationals have been subjected as a consequence of the war imposed upon them by the aggression of Germany and her allies.

Article CCXXXII—The Allies and associated governments recognize the resources of Germany are not adequate after taking into account permanent diminutions of such resources which will result from other provisions of the present treaty, to make complete reparation for all such loss and damage.

The Allied and associated governments, however, require and Germany undertakes, that she will make compensation for all damage done to the civilian population of the Allied and associated powers and to their property during the period of the belligerency of each as an Allied or associated powers, against Germany by such aggression by land, by sea, and from the air and in general, all damage as defined in annex thereto.

In accordance with Germany's pledges, already given as to complete restoration for Belgium, Germany undertakes, in addition to the compensation for damages elsewhere in this chapter provided for, as a consequence of the violation of the treaty of 1839, to make reimbursement of all sums which Belgium has borrowed from the Allies and associated governments up to November 11, 1918, together with interest at the rate of five per cent. (5 per cent.) per annum on such sums.

This amount shall be determined by the reparation commission and the German government undertakes forthwith to make a special issue of bearer bonds to an equivalent amount payable in marks, gold, on May 1, 1926, or, at the option of the German government, on the first of May in any year up to 1926.

Subject to the foregoing, the form of such bonds shall be determined by the reparation commission. Such bonds shall be handed over to the reparation commission, which has authority to take and acknowledge receipt thereof on behalf of Belgium.

Article CCXXXIII: The amount of the above damage for which compensation is to be made by Germany shall be determined by an inter-Allied commission to be called the reparation commission and constituted in the form and with the powers set forth here under and in annexes II to VII inclusive hereto. This commission shall consider the claims and give to the German government a just opportunity to be heard.

The findings of the commission as to the amount of damage defined as above shall be concluded and notified to the German government on or before May 1, 1921, as representing the extent of that government's obligations.

The commission shall concurrently draw up a schedule of payments, prescribing the time and manner for securing and discharging the entire obligation within a period of thirty years from May 1, 1921.

If, however, within the period mentioned, Germany fails to discharge her obligations, any balance remaining unpaid may, within the discretion of the commission, be postponed for settlement in subsequent years, or may be handled otherwise in such manner as the Allied and associated governments, acting in accordance with the procedure laid down in this part of the treaty, shall determine.

Article CCXXXIV: The reparation commission shall, after May 1, 1921, from time to time, consider the resources and capacity of Germany, and, after giving her representatives a just opportunity to be heard, shall have discretion to extend the date and to modify the form of payments, such as are to be provided for in accordance with Article CCXXXIII; but not to cancel any part, except with the specific authority of the several governments represented upon the commission.

Article CCXXXV: In order to enable the Allied and associated powers to proceed at once to the restoration of their industrial and economic life, pending the full determination of their claims Germany shall pay in such installments and in such manner (whether in gold, commodities, ships, securities, otherwise,) as the reparation committee may fix during 1919, 1920, the first four months of 1921, the equivalent of 20,000,000,000 gold marks ($5,000,000,000.)

Out of this sum the expenses of the armies of occupation subsequent to the armistice of the 11th of November 1918, shall first be met, and such supplies of food and raw materials as may be judged by the governments of the principal Allied and associated powers to be essential to enable Germany to meet her obligations for reparation may also, with the approval of the said governments, be paid for out of the above sum. The balance shall be reckoned toward liquidation of the amounts due for reparation. Germany shall, further, deposit bonds as prescribed in paragraph 12 (c) of annex II. hereto.

Article CCXXXVI: Germany further agrees to the direction and application of her economic resources to reparation as specified in annexes III, IV, V and VI, relating respectively to merchant shipping, to physical restoration and to coal and derivatives of coal, and to dyestuffs and other chemical products; provided always that the value of the property transferred and any services rendered by her under these annexes, assessed in the manner therein prescribed, shall be credited to her towards liquidation of her obligations under the above article.

Article CCXXXVII: The successive installments including the above sum, paid over by Germany in satisfaction of the above claims, will be divided by the Allied and associated governments in proportions which have been determined upon by them in advance on a basis of general equity and of the rights of each. For the purposes of this division the value of property transferred and services rendered under Article CCXXXXLIII and under annexes III, IV, V, VI and VII, shall be reckoned in the same manner as cash payments affected in that year.

Article CCXXXVIII: In addition to the payments before mentioned, Germany shall effect, in accordance with the procedure laid down by the reparation commission, restitution in cash of cash taken away, seized, or sequestrated, and also restitution of animals, objects of every nature and securities taken away, seized, or sequestrated, in the cases in which it proves possible to identify them in territory belonging to Germany or her allies.

Article CCXXXIX: Germany undertakes to make forthwith the restitution contemplated by Article 238 and to make the payments and deliveries contemplated by Articles 233, 234, 235 and 236.

Article CCXLI: Germany recognizes the commission provided for by Article 233 as the same may be extended by the Allied and associated governments in accordance with Annex II, and agrees irrevocably to the possession and exercise by such commission of the power and authority given to it under the present treaty.

The German government will accord to the members of the commission and its authorized agents the same rights and immunities as are enjoyed in Germany by duly accredited diplomatic agents of friendly powers.

Germany further agrees to provide for the salaries and expenses of the commission and of such staff as it may employ.

Article CCCXLI: Germany undertakes to pass, issue and maintain in force any legislation, orders and decrees that may be necessary to give complete effect to these provisions.

Article CCXLII: The provisions of this part of the present treaty do not apply to the property rights and interests referred to in Sections III and IV, of Part X.

(Economic clauses) of the present treaty excepted so far as concerns any final balance in favor of Germany under Article 243 (A.)

Article CCXLIII: The following shall be reckoned as credits to Germany in respect of her reparation obligations:

(a) Any final balance in favor of Germany under Sections III and IV of Part X (economic clauses) and Section V (Alsace-Lorraine) of Part III (Political clauses for Europe.)

(b) Amounts due to ermany in respect of transfers under Part IX (financial clauses,) Part XII (ports waterways, and railways,) and Section IV (Saar basin) of Part III (political clauses.)

(c) Amounts which in tahe judgment of the reparation commission could be credited to Germany on account of any other transfers under the present treaty of property, rights, concessions, or other interests.

In no case, however, shall credit be given for property restored in accordance with Article CCXXXVIII.

Article CCXLIV: The transfer of the German submarine cables which do not form the subject to particular provisions of the present treaty is regulated by Annex VII, hereto.

(d.) In order to facilitate and continue the immediate restoration of the economic life of the Allied and associated countries, the commission will, as provided in Article CCXXXV, take from Germany by way of security for and acknowledgment of her debt, a first installment of gold bonds, free of all taxes or charges of every description established or to be established by the government of the German empire or the German states or by any authority subject to them. These bonds will be delivered on account and in three portions, the marks gold being payable in conformity with Article CCLXII of Part IX, financial clauses of the present treaty as follows:

(1.) To be issued, forthwith 20,000,000,000 marks gold bearer bonds payable not later than the first of May, 1921, without interest. There shall be specially applied towards the amortization of these bonds the payments which Germany is pledged to make in conformity with Article CCXXXV, after deduction of the sums used for the reimbursement of expenses of the armies of occupation and for payment of foodstuffs and raw materials.

(2.) To be issued forthwith 40,000,000,000 marks gold bearer bonds bearing interest at 2½ per cent. per annum between 1921 and 1926, and thereafter at 5 per cent. per annum, with an additional 1 per cent. for amortization beginning 1926, on the whole amount of the issue.

(3.) To be delivered forthwith a covering undertaking in writing to issue when, but not until the commission is satisfied that Germany can meet such interest and sinking fund obligations, a further installment of 40,000,000,000 marks gold 5 per cent. bearer bonds, the time and mode of payment of principal and interest to be determined by the commission.

(d) In the event of bonds, obligations or other evidence of indebtedness, issued by Germany by way of security for or acknowledgment of her reparation debt being disposed of outright, not by way of pledge to persons other than the several governments in whose favor Germany's original reparation indebtedness was created, an amount of such reparation indebtedness shall be deemed to be extinguished corresponding to the nominal value of the bonds, etc., so disposed of outright and the obligation of Germany in respect of such bonds, shall be confined to liabilities to the holders of the bonds, as expressed upon their face.

(e) The damage for repairing, reconstructing, and replacing property in the invaded and devastated districts, including replacement of furniture, machinery, and equipment, will be calculated according to the cost of the work when the work is done.

(f) Decisions of the commission relating to the total or partial cancellation of the capital or part of any verified debt of Germany, to be accompanied by a statement of its reasons.

Article XIII: When a decision of the commission is taken, the votes of all these delegates representing them, or their assistants, shall be recorded. Abstention from voting is to be treated as a vote against the proposed decision. Assessors have no vote. The following questions require unanimity, where necessary.

(a) Questions involving the sovereignty of any of the Allied and associated powers or the cancellation of the whole or any part of the debt or obligations of Germany.

(b) Questions of postponement of the amount and conditions of payment or other obligations to be imposed on the German government and of extending the time and manner for the full execution of the program of payments, or negotiating or sanctioning loans.

(c) Any postponement, total or partial, beyond the end of 1921, of the payments of interest becoming due between the 1st May, 1921, and the end of 1926.

(d) Any postponement, total or partial, of any payments of interest due after 1926 for a period of more than three years.

(e) Questions of interpretation of particular cases or of general questions arising from time to time which has been previously decided in a similar case.

(f) Questions of the interpretation of the provisions of annex II of the present treaty.

All other questions shall be decided by the vote of a majority.

In case of any difference of opinion among the delegates as to whether or not be solved by reference to governments upon which the decision of whether a given case requires a unanimous decision or not, such difference shall be referred to the interpretation of some impartial tribunal to be agreed upon by the governments whose award the Allied and associated governments agree to accept.

Article XIV: Decisions of the commission in accordance with powers conferred upon it shall be combined and embodied into immediate executive orders for further proceedings.

Article XV: The commission shall issue to each of the interested governments, in such form as the commission shall fix:

(1.) A certificate stating what sum it holds for the account of that government in power bonds of the issue mentioned above, the said certificate to be payable on demand of the power concerned, in any sum not exceeding five.

(2.) From time to time certificates stating the proportion which Germany on account of reparation debt, which it has discharged on account of the said power.

The said certificates shall be registered and upon notice to the commission may be transferred by endorsement.

When bonds are issued in negotiation, and when any bonds delivered by the commission certificates to an equivalent amount shall be withdrawn.

Article XVI: Germany shall be debited to account of reparation as from the 1st of May, 1921, in respect of such sum as may be determined by the commission, after allowing for sums which Germany has paid by cash payments or deliveries in kind, by bonds issued by the commission or under authority of it. The rate of interest shall be 5 per cent., unless the commission shall determine at some future time that circumstances justify a reduction of this rate.

The commission shall, as from May 1, 1921, take credit for interest on the debt of Germany, any bonds issued in respect of interest due on account of the reparation debt of Germany, and any sums as from May 1, 1921, to May 1, 1926.

Article XVII: In the event of Germany at any time failing to meet any obligation under the present treaty, the commission will forthwith notify each of the governments concerned of such default and may make such recommendation as to any action subsequently taken as it may think fitting. Germany will not be relieved of responsibility for any act by reason of the fact that it is one which the commission has not expressly authorized or one which it has refrained from expressly forbidding.

Article XVIII: The powers which are represented on the commission shall have power to declare in case of violation of the present treaty by Germany, and that the failure to comply with obligations has not been remedied within a reasonable time, that the whole or any part of the benefits granted to Germany by the present treaty shall be withheld from her to such extent as they may think fit, except as regards the obligations specifically undertaken by the present treaty. The exercise of this power shall forthwith be notified to Germany, who shall be entitled to bring the whole question before the tribunal provided for in Article XIX.

Article XIX: Provision will be made by subsequent treaty, convention or agreement as to the action to be taken in regard to any claims by the Allied and associated governments or by their nationals which may arise out of the execution of the present treaty, which cannot be settled by the commission or by the governments concerned.

Article XX: The present treaty, of which the French and English texts are both authentic, shall be ratified.

Surf bathing at Santa Barbara—what greater summer joy than this? Here are but a few of the allurements: a splendid, sunbathed beach of pure white sand; "breakers" that are really-real; but no treacherous undertows and tide-rips such as are found at many other places. And, for those who prefer it, an indoor salt water plunge of ample proportions where you can dip and dive and otherwise disport yourself.

In addition to swimming, there is no end of good sport at Santa Barbara—California's wonderfully cool play-place—where the mountains greet the sea. There is boating, yachting, fishing, hiking, hunting, camping, motoring, golf, tennis, horseback riding, dancing, band concerts, etc.

No matter what your vacation requirements—no matter how long or short your stay—no matter how much or little you may wish to spend—Santa Barbara is sure to suit your purse and purpose. For detailed information as to accommodations, rates, etc., write the Article XIV: Decisions of the commission in accordance with the powers conferred upon shall be binding with be combined and may be put into immediate execution without further proceedings.

Article XV: The commission shall issue to each of the interested powers, in such form as the commission shall fix:

(1.) A certificate stating that it holds for the account of the Allied power bonds of the issues mentioned above, the said certificate to be on demand of the power concerned, the bonds being divisible in a number of pieces not exceeding five.

(2.) From time to time such certificates stating the goods delivered to Germany on account of her reparation debt, which it holds for the account of the said power.

The said certificates shall be registered and upon notice to the commission may be transferred by endorsement.

When bonds are issued for sale or negotiation, and when goods are delivered by the commission, certificates to an equivalent value shall be withdrawn.

Article XVI. Interest shall be debited to Germany as from the 1st of May, 1921, in respect thereof determined by the commission, but allowing for sums already credited by cash payments or their equivalent, by bonds issued to the commission or under Article CCXLV. The rate of interest shall be 5 per cent., unless the commission shall determine at some future time that circumstances justify a variation of this rate.

The commission, in fixing on May 1, 1921, the total amount of the debt of Germany, may take account of interest due on sums arising out of the reparation of material, which are as from November 11, 1918, to May 1, 1921.

Article XVII. In case of default by Germany in the performance of any obligation under this part of the present treaty, the commission will forthwith give notice of such default to each of the Allied and associated powers and may make such recommendation as to the action to be taken in consequence of such default as it may think necessary.

Article XVIII. The Allied and associated powers shall have the right to declare in case of voluntary default by Germany, and which Germany has not to regard as acts of war, may include economic and financial prohibitions and reprisals and in general such other measures as the respective governments may deem to be necessary in the circumstance.

Article XIX. Payments required to be made in gold or its equivalent on account of the proved cost of the Allied and associated powers may at any time be accepted by the commission in the form of specific properties or commodities, or rights concession within the German territory, ships, securities of any kind or shares or securities of companies, currencies, the value of such for gold being fixed at a fair and just amount by the commission itself.

Article XX. The commission in fixing or accepting payment in specified properties of rights shall have due regard for any legal or equitable interests of the Allied and associated powers or of neutral powers or of their nationals therein.

Article XXI. No member of the commission shall be responsible, except to the government appointing him, for any action or omission as such member. No one of the Allied or associated governments assumes any responsibility in respect of any other government.

Article XXII. Subject to the provisions of the present treaty, this annex may be amended by the unanimous decision of the governments represented from time to time upon the commission.

Article XXIII. When all the amounts due from Germany and her allies under the present treaty or the decisions of the commission have been discharged, and all sums received, or their equivalents, shall have been distributed to the powers interested, the commission shall be dissolved.

Germany recognizes the right of the Allied and associated powers to the replacement, ton for ton (gross tonnage) and class for class, of all merchant ships and fishing boats lost or damaged, owing to the war.

Nevertheless, and in spite of the fact that the tonnage of German shipping at present in existence is much less than that lost by the Allied and associated powers in consequence of the German aggression, the right thus recognized will be enforced on German ships and boats under the following conditions:

(1.) The German government on behalf of themselves and so as to bind all other persons interested, cede to the Allied and associated governments the property in all the German merchant ships which are of 1600 tons gross and upward; in one-half, reckoned in tonnage, of the ships which are between 1000 and 1600 tons gross; in one-quarter, reckoned in tonnage, of the steam trawlers; and in one-quarter, reckoned in tonnage, of the other fishing boats.

(2.) The German government will, within two months of the coming into force of the present treaty, deliver to the reparation commission all the ships and boats mentioned in Paragraph I.

(3.) The ships and boats mentioned in Paragraph I include all ships and boats which (A) fly, or may be entitled to fly, the German merchant flag; or (B) are owned by any German national, company, or corporation, or by any company or corporation belonging to a country other than an Allied or associated country and under the control or direction of German nationals; or (C) which are now under construction (1) in Germany, (2) in other than Allied or associated countries for the account of any German national, company or corporation.

(4.) For the purpose of providing documents of title for the ships and boats to be handed over as above mentioned, the German government will (A) deliver to the reparation commission in respect of each vessel a bill of sale or other document of title evidencing the transfer to the commission of the entire property in the vessel, free from all incumbrances, charges, and liens of all kinds, as the commission may require:

(a.) Take all measures that may be indicated by the reparations commission for insuring that the ships themselves shall be placed at its disposal.

(5.) As an additional part of reparation, Germany agrees to cause merchant ships to be built in German yards for the account of the Allied and associated governments as follows:

(a.) Within three months of the coming into force of the present treaty the reparation commission will notify to the German government the amount of tonnage to be laid down in German shipyards in each of the two years next succeeding the three months mentioned above:

(b.) Within twenty-four months of the coming into force of the present treaty the reparation commission will notify to the German government the amount of tonnage to be laid down in each of the three years following the two years mentioned above.

(c.) The amount of tonnage to be laid down in each year shall not exceed 200,000 tons gross tonnage;

(d) The specifications of the ships to be built, the conditions under which they are to be built and delivered, the price per ton at which they are to be accounted for by the Reparation Commission, and all other questions relating to the accounting, ordering, building, and delivery of the ships shall be determined by the commission.

(6.) Germany undertakes to restore in kind and in normal condition of upkeep to the Allied and associated powers, within two months of the coming into force of the present treaty, in accordance with procedure to be laid down by the Reparation Commission, any boats and other movable appliances belonging to inland navigation which since the 1st of August, 1914, have by any means whatever come into her possession or the possession of her nationals and which can be identified.

With a view to making good the loss in inland navigation tonnage, from whatever cause arising, which has been incurred during the war by the Allied and associated powers, and which cannot be made good by means of the restitution prescribed above, Germany agrees to cede to the Reparation Commission a portion of the German river fleet a portion to the amount of the loss mentioned above provided that such cession shall not exceed twenty per cent. of the river fleet as it existed on the 11th of November, 1918.

The conditions of this cession shall be settled by the arbitrators referred to in article CCCXXXIX part XII (ports, waterways and railways) of the present treaty, who are charged with the settlement of difficulties relating to the apportionment of river tonnage resulting from the new international regime applicable to certain river systems or from the territorial changes affecting those systems.

(7.) Germany agrees to take any measure that may be indicated to her by the reparation commission for obtaining the full title to the property in all ships which have during the war been transferred, or are in process of transfer, to neutral flags, without the consent of the Allied and associated governments.

(8.) Germany waives all claims of any description against the Allied and associated governments and their nationals in respect of the detention, employment, loss or damage of any German ships or boats, exception being made of payments due in respect of the employment of the ships in conformity with armistice agreement of the 13th of January, 1919 and subsequent agreements.

The handing over of the ships of the German mercantile marine must be continued without interruption in accordance with the said agreement.

(9.) Germany waives all claims to vessels or cargoes sunk by or in consequence of naval engagements and subsequently salved, in which any of the Allied or associated governments or their nationals may have any interest either as owners, charterers, insurers or otherwise, notwithstanding any decree of condemnation which may have been made by a prize court of Germany or of her Allies.

(1.) Germany accords the following options for the delivery of coal and derivatives of coal to the undermentioned signatories of the present treaty.

(2.) Germany undertakes to deliver to France 7,000,000 tons of coal per year for ten years. In addition, Germany undertakes to deliver to France, annually for a period not exceeding ten years an amount of coal equal to the difference between the annual production before the war of the coal mines of the Nord and Pas De Calais, destroyed as a result of the war, and the production of the mines of the same area during the years in question; such delivery not to exceed 20,000,000 tons in any one year of the first five years and 8,000,000 tons in any one year of the succeeding five years.

It is understood that due diligence will be exercised in the restoration of the destroyed mines in the Nord and the Pas De Calais.

(3.) Germany undertakes to deliver to Belgium 8,000,000 tons of coal annually for ten years.

(4.) Germany undertakes to deliver to Italy up to the following quantities of coal:

July, 1919 to June, 1920—4,500,000 tons; 1920-1921—6,000,000; 1921-22—7,500,000 tons; 1922-23—8,000,000; 1924-25—and each of the following five years, 8,500,000.

At least two-thirds of the actual deliveries are to be land borne.

(5.) Germany further undertakes to deliver annually to Luxemburg, if directed by the reparation commission, a quantity of coal equal to the pre-war annual consumption of German coal in Luxemburg.

(6.) The prices to be paid for coal delivered under these options shall be as follows:

(a.) For overland delivery, including delivery by barge, the German pithead price to German nationals, plus the freight to French, Belgian, Italian or Luxemburg frontiers, provided that the pitchead price does not exceed the pithead price of British coal for export.

In the case of Belgian bunker coal the price shall not exceed the Dutch bunker price.

Railroad and barge tariffs shall not be higher than the lowest similar rates paid in Germany.

(b.) For sea delivery, the German export price, f.o.b. the German ports, or the British export price, f.o.b., British ports, whichever may be lower.

(7.) The Allied and associated governments interested may demand the delivery, in place of coal, of metallurgical coke in the proportion of three tons of coke to four tons of coal.

(8.) Germany undertakes to deliver to France and to transport to the French entry by rail or by water, the following products, during each of the three years following the coming into force of this treaty:

Benzol, 35,000 tons; coal tar, 50,000 tons; sulphate of ammonia, 30,000 tons.

All or part of the coal tar may, at the option of the French government, be replaced by corresponding quantities of products of distillation, such as light oils, heavy oils, anthracene, naphthaline, or pitch.

(9.) The price paid for coke and for the articles referred to in the preceding paragraph shall be the same as the price paid by German nationals under the same conditions of shipment to the French frontier or to the German ports, and shall be subject to any advantages which may be accorded similar products furnished to German nationals.

(1.) Germany accords to the reparation commission an option to require as part of reparation the delivery by Germany of such quantities and kinds of dyestuffs and chemical drugs as the commission may designate, not exceeding 50 per cent. of the total stock of each and every kind of dyestuff and chemical drug in Germany or under German control at the date of the coming into force of the present treaty. This option shall be exercised within sixty days of the receipt by the commission of such particulars as to stocks as may be considered necessary by the commission.

(2.) Germany further accords to the reparation commission an option to require delivery during the period from the date of the coming into force of the present treaty until the first of January, 1925, of any specified kind of dyestuff and chemical drugs during the previous six months period. If in any case the production during such previous six months was, in the opinion of the commission, less than normal, the amount required may be 25 per cent. of the normal production.

Such option shall be exercised within four weeks after receipt of such particulars as to production and in such form as may be considered necessary by the commission; these particulars shall be furnished by the German government immediately after the expiration of each six months period.

(3.) For dyestuffs and chemical drugs delivered under paragraph 1, the price shall be fixed by the commission, having regard to pre-war net export prices and to subsequent increases of cost.

For dyestuffs and chemical drugs delivered under paragraph 2, the price shall be fixed by the commission, having regard to pre-war net export prices and subsequent variations of cost or the lowest net selling price of similar dyestuffs and chemical drugs to any other purchaser.

(4.) All details, including mode and times of exercising the options, and making delivery, and all other questions arising under this arrangement shall be determined by the reparation commission; the German government will furnish to the commission all necessary information and other assistance which it may require.

(5.) The above expression "dyestuffs and chemical drugs" includes all synthetic dyes and drugs and intermediate or other products used in connection with dyeing, so far as they are manufactured for sales. The present arrangement shall also apply to cinchona bark and salts of quinine.

Article CCXLV: Within six months after the coming into force of the present treaty the German government must restore to the French government the trophies, archives, historical souvenirs, or works of art carried away from France by the German authorities in the course of the war of 1870-1871 and during this last war, in accordance with a list which will be communicated to it by the French government; particularly the French flags taken in the course of the war 1870-1871 and all the political papers taken by the German authorities on October 10, 1870, at the Chateau of Cercay, near Brunoy (Seine-et-Oise), belonging at the time to M. Rouher, formerly Minister of State.

Article CCXLVI: Within six months from the coming into force of the present treaty Germany will restore to His Majesty, the King of the Hedjaz, the original Koran of the Caliph Otheman, which was removed from Medina by the Turkish authorities and is stated to have been presented to the ex-Emperor, William II.

Within the same period Germany will hand over to His Britannic Majesty's government the skull of the Sultan Mikwawa, which was removed from the protectorate of German East Africa and taken to Germany.

The delivery of the articles above referred to will be effected in such place and in such conditions as may be laid down by the governments to which they are to be restored.

Article CCXLVII: Germany undertakes to furnish to the University of Louvain, within three months after a request made by it and transmitted through the intervention of the reparation commission, manuscripts, incunabula, printed books, maps and objects of collection corresponding in number and value to those destroyed, in the burning by Germany of the library of Louvain. All details regarding such replacement will be determined by the reparation commission.

Germany undertakes to deliver to Belgium, through the reparation commission, within six months of the coming into force of the present treaty, in order to enable Belgium to reconstitute her two great artistic works:

(a.) The leaves of the triptych of the "Mystic Land," painted by the Van Eyck brothers, formerly in the Church of St. Bavon at Ghent, now in the Berlin Museum.

(b.) The leaves of the triptych of the "Last Supper," painted by Dierick Bouts, formerly in the Church of St. Peter at Louvain, two of which are now in the Berlin Museum and two in the former Pinakothek at Munich.

Article CCXLVIII—The first charge upon all the assets and revenues of the German empire and its constituent states shall be the cost of reparation and all other costs arising under the present treaty or any treaties or agreements supplementary thereto or under arrangements concluded between Germany and the Allied and associated powers during the armistice or its extensions.

Up to May 1st, 1921, the German government shall not export or dispose of and shall forbid the export or disposal of gold, without the previous approval of the Allied and associated powers acting through the reparation commission.

Article CCXLIX—There shall be paid by the German government the total cost of all armies of the Allied and associated governments in occupied German territory from the date of the signature of the armistice of the 11th of November, 1918, including the keep of men and beasts, lodging and billeting, pay and allowances, salaries and wages, bedding, heating, lighting, clothing, equipment, harness and saddlery, armament and rolling stock, air services, treatment of sick and wounded, veterinary and remount services, transport service of all sorts (such as by rail, sea, or river, motor lorries) communications and correspondence, and in general the cost of all administrative or technical services, the working of which is necessary for the training of troops and for keeping their numbers up to strength and preserving their military efficiency.

The cost of such liabilities under the above heads, so far as they relate to purchases or requisitions by the Allied and associated governments in the occupied territories, shall be paid by the German government to the Allied and associated governments, in marks, at the current or agreed rate of exchange. All other of the above costs shall be paid in gold marks.

Article CCL—Germany confirms the surrender of all material handed over to the Allied and associated powers in accordance with the armistice agreement of the 11th of November, 1918, and subsequent armistice agreements and recognizes the title of the Allied and associated powers to such material.

There shall be credited to the German government, against the sums due from it to the Allied and associated powers for reparation, the value, as assessed by the reparation commission, referred to in Article CCXXXIII of Part VIII. (Reparation) of the present treaty, of the material handed over in accordance with Article VII of the armistice agreement of the 11th of November, 1918, Artice III of the armistice agreement of the 16th of January, 1919, as well as of any other material handed over in accordance with the armistice agreement of the 11th of November, 1918, and of subsequent armistice agreements for which, as having non-military value, credit, should, in the judgment of the reparation commission be allowed to the German government.

Property belonging to the Allied and associated governments or their nationals restored or surrendered under the armistice agreements in specie shall not be credited to the German government.

Article CCLI: The priority of the charges established by Article 248, shall, subject to the qualifications made below, be as follows:

(a) The cost of the armies of occupation as defined under Article 249 during the armistice and its extensions.

(b) The cost of any armies of occupation as defined under Article 249 after the coming into force of the present treaty.

(c) The cost of reparation arising out of the present treaty or any treaties or conventions or under this treaty or any treaties or conventions supplementary thereto.

(d) The cost of all other obligations incumbent upon Germany under the armistice conventions or under this treaty or any treaties or conventions supplementary thereto.

The payment for such supplies of food and raw material for Germany and such other payments as may be judged by the Allied and associated powers to be essential to enable Germany to meet her obligations in respect of reparation will have priority to the extent and upon the conditions which have been or may be determined by the governments of the said powers.

Article CCLII: The right of each of the Allied and associated powers to dispose of enemy assets and property within its jurisdiction at the date of the coming into force of the present treaty is not affected by the foregoing provisions.

Article CCLIII: Nothing in the foregoing provisions shall prejudice in any manner charges or mortgages lawfully affected in favor of the Allied or associated powers or other nationals respectively, before the date at which a state of war existed between Germany and the Allied or associated powers concerned, by the German empire or its constituent states, or by German nationals, on assets in their ownership at that date.

Article CCLIV: The powers to which German territory is ceded shall, subject to the qualifications made in Article 255, undertake to pay:

(1) A portion of the debt of the German empire as it stood on the first of August, 1914, calculated on the basis of the ratio between the average for three financial years, 1911, 1912, 1913, of such revenues of the ceded territory, and the average for the same years of such revenues of the whole German empire as in the judgment of the reparation commission are best calculated to represent the relative ability of the respective territories to make payment.

(2) A portion of the debt as it stood on the 1st of August, 1914, of the German state to which the ceded territory belonged, to be determined in accordance with the principle stated above.

Such portions shall be determined by the reparation commission.

The method of discharging the obligations, both in respect to capital and of interest, so assumed shall be fixed by the reparation commission. Such method may take the form, internally of the assumption by the power to which the territory is ceded of Germany's liability for the German debt held by her nationals. But in the event of the method adopted involving any payments to the German government, such payments shall be transferred to the reparation commission on account of the sums due for reparation so long as any balance in respect of such sums remains unpaid.

Article CCLV: (1) As an exception to the above provision and inasmuch as in 1871 Germany refused to undertake any portion of the burden of the French debt, France shall be, in respect of Alsace-Lorraine, exempt from any payment under Article 254.

(2) In the case of Poland, that portion of the debt, which, in the opinion of the reparation commission, is attributable to the measures taken between German and Prussian governments for the German colonization of Poland shall be excluded from the apportionment to be made under Article 254.

(3.) In the case of all ceded territories other than Alsace-Lorraine, that portion of the debt of the German empire or German states which, in the opinion of the reparation commission, represents expenditure by the governments of the German empire or states upon the government properties referred to in Artici CCLVI shall be excluded from the apportionment to be made under Article CCLIV.

Article CCLVI: Powers to which German territory is ceded shall acquire all property and possessions situated therein belonging to the German empire or to the German states, and the value of such acquisitions shall be fixed by the reparation commission and paid by the state acquiring the territory to the reparation commission for the credit of the German government on account of the sums due for reparation.

For the purposes of this article, the property and possessions of the German empire and states shall be deemed to include all the property of the crown, the empire or the states, and the private property of the former German Emperor and other royal personages.

In view of the terms on which Alsace-Lorraine was ceded to Germany in 1871, France shall be exempt in respect thereof from making any payment or credit under this article for any property or possessions of the German empire or states situated therein.

Belgium also shall be exempt from making any payment or any credit under this article for any property or possessions of the German empire or states situated in German territory ceded to Belgium under the present treaty.

Article CCLVII: In the case of the former German territories, including colonies, protectorates or dependencies, administered by a mandatory under Article XXII of Part I (League of Nations) of the present treaty, neither the territory or the mandatory power shall be charged with any portion of the debt of the German empire or states.

All properties and provisions belonging to the German empire or to the German states situated in such territories shall be transferred with the territories to the mandatory power in its capacity as such, and no payment shall be made nor any credit given to those governments in consideration of this transfer.

For the purpose of this article the

The ONLY Reproducing Piano Which Really REPRODUCES

—the KNABE AMPICO Reproducing Piano is the ONLY authentic reproducing piano.

—the ONLY instrument of any kind which has ever been submitted to the daring test of a direct comparison with the hand playing of pianists of fame, such as was done last Thursday night at Trinity Auditorium, when the Knabe Ampico Reproducing Piano startled thousands who heard it in joint recital and scientific comparison with Leopold Godowsky.

—the ONLY instrument in the world for which such artists as Leopold Godowsky, Rachmaninoff, the great Russian genius; Leo Ornstein and many other famous pianists make records.

—the ONLY instruments in the world whose reproductions music critics and noted musicians say are as truly the artists' original renditions as the notes struck by the artists' own fingers.

The Ampico may be secured in the "World's Best Piano," the KNABE, or the celebrated Haines Bros. and sweet-toned Franklin Pianos, at prices ranging from $730 up for uprights and $1950 up for grands. Terms. Your old piano or player will be accepted in exchange.

property and possessions of the German empire and of the German states shall be deemed to include all the property of the crown, the empire, or the states, and private property of the former German Emperor and other royal personages.

Article CCLXVIII: Germany renounces all rights accorded to her or her nationals by treaties, conventions or agreements, of whatsoever kind, to representation upon or participation in the control or administration of commission, state banks, agencies or other financial or economic organizations of an international character, exercising powers to control or administration or operating in any of the Allied or associated states, or in Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria or Turkey, or in the dependencies of these states or in the former Russian empire.

Article CCLIX: Germany agrees to deliver within one month from the date of the coming into force of the present treaty, to such authority as the principal Allied and associated powers may designate, the sum in gold deposited in the Reichsbank in the name of the council of the administration of the Ottoman public debt as security for the first issue of Turkish government currency notes.

Germany recognizes her obligation to make annually for the period of twelve years the payments in gold for which provision is made in the German treasury bonds deposited by her from time to time in the name of the council of the administration of the Ottoman public debt as security for the second and subsequent issues of Turkish government currency notes.

Germany undertakes to deliver, within one month from the coming into force of the present treaty, to such authority as the principal Allied and associated powers may designate, the sum deposited in gold in the Reichsbank, representing the residue of the advance in gold agreed to on the 5th of May, 1915, by the council of the administration of the Ottoman public debt to the imperial Ottoman government.

Germany agrees to transfer to the principal Allied and associated powers any time that she may have to the sum in gold and silver transmitted by her to the Turkish Ministry of Finance in November, 1918, in anticipation of the payment to be made in May, 1919, for the service of the Turkish internal loan. Germany undertakes to transfer to the principal Allied and associated powers within a period of one month from the coming into force of the present treaty, any sums in gold transferred as pledge or as collateral security to the German government or its nationals in connection with loans made by them to the Austro-Hungarian government.

Without prejudice to Article CCXCII of Part X (economic clauses) of the present treaty, Germany confirms the renunciation provided for in Article XV of the armistice convention of November 11, 1918, of any benefit disclosed by the treaties of Bucharest and of Brest-Litovsk, and by the treaties supplementary thereto.

Germany undertakes to transfer either to Rumania or to the principal Allied and associated powers, as the case may be, all monetary instruments, specie, securities and negotiable instruments or goods which she has received under the aforesaid treaties.

The sums of money and all securities, instruments and goods of whatsoever nature to be delivered, paid and transferred under the provisions of this article, shall be disposed of by the principal Allied and associated powers in manner hereafter to be determined by those powers.

Article CCLX: Without prejudice to the renunciation of any rights by Germany on behalf of herself or of her nationals in the other provisions of the present treaty, the reparation commission may, within one year from the coming into force of the present treaty, demand that the German government become possessed of any rights and interests of the German nationals in any public utility undertaking or in any concession operating in Russia, China, Turkey, Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria, or in the possessions of dependencies of these states, or in any territory formerly belonging to Germany or her allies to be ceded by Germany or her allies to any power or to be administered by a mandatory under the present treaty and may require that the German government transfer, within six months of the date of demand, all such rights and interests, and any similar rights and interests the German government may itself possess to the reparation commission.

Germany shall be responsible for indemnifying her nationals so dispossessed, and the reparation, with such sums in respect of the value of the transferred rights and interests as may be assessed by the reparation commission, and the German government shall, within six months from the coming into force of the present treaty, communicate to the reparation commission all such rights and interests, whether already granted, contingent or not yet exercised, and shall renounce on behalf of itself and its nationals in favor of the Allied and associated powers all such rights and interests which have not been so communicated.

Article CCLXI: Germany undertakes to transfer to the Allied and associated powers any claims she may have to payment or repayment by the governments of Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria or Turkey and in particular any claims which may arise now or hereafter, from the fulfillment of undertakings made by Germany during the war to those governments.

Article CCLXII: Any monetary obligation due by Germany, arising out of the present treaty and expressed in terms of gold marks shall be payable at the option of the creditors in pounds sterling, payable in London; gold dollars of the United States of America, payable in New York; gold francs, payable in Paris, or gold lire, payable in Rome. For the purpose of this article the gold coins mentioned above shall be defined as being of the weight and fineness of gold as enacted by law on the first of January, 1914.

Article CCLXIII: Germany gives a guarantee to the Brazilian government that all sums representing the compulsory sale of coffee belonging to the state of Sao Paulo in the ports of Hamburg, Bremen, Antwerp and Trieste, which were deposited with the Bank of Bleichroder at Berlin, shall be reimbursed, together with interest at 5 per cent. from the day of the deposit. Germany, having prevented the transfer of the sums in question to the state of Sao Paulo at the proper time, guarantees also that the reimbursement shall be effected at the rate of exchange of the day of the deposit.

A surprise is in store for America in Part XIII, relating to labor. The remarkable provision of this part of the treaty, he said, had not been disclosed by the official summary. Part XIII follows:

Whereas, the League of Nations has for its object the establishment of universal peace, and such a peace can be established only if it is based upon social justice.

And, whereas, conditions of labor exist involving such injustice, hardship, and privation to large numbers of people as to produce unrest so great that the peace and harmony of the world be imperiled; and improvement of those conditions is urgently required; as, for example by the regulation of the hours of work, including the establishment of a maximum working day and week, the regulation of the labor supply, the prevention of unemployment, the provision of an adequate living wage, the protection of the worker against sickness, disease, and injury arising out of his employment, the protection of children, young persons, and women, provision for old age and injury; protection of the interests of workers when employed in countries other than their own, recognition of the principle of freedom of association, the organization of vocational and technical education, and other measures;

Whereas, also the failure of any nation to adopt humane conditions of labor is an obstacle in the way of other nations which desire to improve the conditions in their own countries;

The high contracting parties moved by sentiments of justice and humanity, as well as by the desire to secure the permanent peace of the world, agree to the following:

Article CCCLXXVII: A permanent organization is hereby established for the promotion of the objections set forth in the preamble. The original members of the League of Nations shall be the original members of this organization, and hereafter membership of the League of Nations shall carry with it membership of the said organization.

Article CCCLXXVIII: The permanent organization shall consist of a general conference of representatives of the members, and an international labor office controlled by the governing body described in Article CCCLXLIII.

Article CCCLXXXIX: The meetings of the general conference of representatives of the members shall be held from time to time, as occasion may require, and at least once in every year. It shall be composed of four representatives of each of the members, of whom two shall be government delegates and the two others shall be delegates representing respectively the employers and the work people of each of the members.

Each delegate may be accompanied by advisers who shall not exceed two in number for each item on the agenda of the meeting. When questions specially affecting women are to be considered by the conference, one at least of the advisers should be a woman.

The members undertake to nominate nongovernment delegates and advisers, chosen in agreement with the industrial organizations, if such organizations exist, which are most representative of employers or work people, as the case may be in their respective countries.

Advisers shall not speak except on a request made by the delegate whom they accompany and by the special authorization of the president of the conference, and may not vote.

A delegate may, by notice in writing addressed to the president, appoint one of his advisers to act as his deputy, and the adviser, while so acting, shall be allowed to speak and vote.

The name of the delegates and their advisers will be communicated to the international labor office by the government of each of the members.

The credentials of delegates and their advisers shall be subject to scrutiny by the conference, which may, by two-thirds of the votes cast by the delegates present, refuse to admit any delegate or advisers whom it deems not to have been nominated in accordance with this article.

Article CCCXC—Every delegate shall be entitled to vote individually on all matters which are taken into consideration by the conference.

If one of the members fail to nominate one of the nongovernment delegates whim it is entitled to nominate, the other nongovernment delegates whom it is entitled sit and speak at the conference, but not to vote.

If, in accordance with Article CCCLXXXIX, the conference refuses admission to a delegate of one of the members, the provisions of the present article shall apply as if that delegate had not been nominated.

Article CCCXCI—The meeting of the conference shall be held at the seat of the League of Nations, or at such other place as may be decided by the conference at a pre-

Bilious sickens! If bilious, c achy read my gu

Don't do me! Take no more sickening calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver and scrapes the secrets of the bones. When it comes into contact with bile it crashes into it, breaks it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you lose a day's work and "all knocked out," dizzy, sick and bilious, you have headache, biliousness, coated tongue, foul breath, indigestion, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone.

Don't stay sick and bilious and lose a day's work. Don't take calomel. Go to any druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful tonight, and if it doesn't make you right as a trivet by morning, return the bottle to the store and get your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine, and therefore you don't have to take nasty calomel to get the desired results.

I guarantee Dodson's Liver Tone to be a safe, sure, sluggish liver, constipated bowels, biliousness, sick headache, dizziness, coated tongue, sour stomach and all indigestion caused by constipated bowels or a torpid liver. I guarantee a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone to start your liver working and straighten you up better than a dose of nasty calomel, and it is entirely vegetable, so it can't salivate or make you sick. I guarantee Dodson's Liver Tone to be entirely satisfactory or your druggist is authorized to refund your money. Give it a fair trial. Dodson's Liver Tone is for sale at all druggists, 50 cents per bottle.

Any question as to which are the members of the chief industrial importance shall be decided by the council of the League of Nations.

The period of office of the members of the governing body will be three years. The method of filling vacancies and other similar questions may be determined by the governing body subject to the approval of the conference.

The governing body shall, from time to time, elect one of its members to act as its chairman, shall regulate its own procedure and shall fix its own times of meeting. A special meeting shall be held if a written request to that effect is made by at least ten members of the government body.

Article CCCXCIV: There shall be a director of the international labor office, who shall be appointed by the governing body, and subject to the instructions of the governing body, shall be responsible for the efficient conduct of the international labor office and for such other duties as may be assigned to him. The director or his deputy shall attend all meetings of the governing body.

Article CCCXCV: The staff of the international labor office shall be appointed by the director, who shall, so far as is possible with due regard to the efficiency of the work of the office, select persons of different nationalities. A certain number of these persons shall be women.

Article CCCXCVI: The functions of the international labor office shall include the collection and distribution of information on all subjects relating to the international adjustments of conditions of industrial life and labor, and particularly the examinations of subjects which it is proposed to bring before the conference with a view to the conclusion of international conventions, and the conduct of such special investigations as may be ordered by the conference.

It will prepare the agenda for the meeting of the conference.

It will carry out the duties required of it by the provisions of the part of the present treaty in connection with international disputes.

It will edit and publish in French and English, and in such other languages as the governing body may think desirable, a periodical paper dealing with problems of industry and employment of international interest.

Generally, in addition to the functions set out in the article, it shall have such other powers and duties as may be assigned to it by the conference.

Article CCCXCVII: The government departments of any of the members which deal with questions of industry and employment may communicate directly with the director through the representative of their government of the governing body of the international labor office, or, failing any such representative, through such other qualified official as the government may nominate for the purpose.

The international labor office shall be entitled to the assistance of the secretary-general of the League of Nations in any matter in which it can be given.

Article CCCXCIX: Each of the members will pay the traveling and subsistence expenses of its delegates and their advisers, and of its representatives attending the meeting of the conference or governing body, as the case may be. All the other expenses of the international labor office and of the meetings of the conference or governing body shall be paid to the director by the secretary-general of the League of Nations out of the general funds of the league. The director shall be responsible to the secretary-general of the league for the proper expenditure of all moneys paid to him in pursuance of this article.

Article CCCC: The agenda for all meetings of the conferences will be settled by the governing body, who shall consider any suggestion as to the agenda that may be made by the government of any of the members or by any representative organization recognized for the purpose of Article CCCLXXXIX.

Article CCCCI: The director shall act as the secretary of the conference and shall transmit the agenda, as to reach the members four months before the meeting of the conference and through them the nongovernment delegates when appointed.

Article CCCCII: Any of the governments of the members may formally object to the inclusion of any item or items in the agenda. The grounds for such objections shall be set forth in a reasoned statement addressed to the director, who shall circulate it to all the members of the permanent organizations. Items to which such objection has been made shall not, however, be excluded from the agenda if at the conference a majority of two-thirds of the votes cast by the delegates present is in favor of considering them.

If the conference decides (otherwise than under the preceeding paragraphes) by two-thirds of the votes cast by the delegates present that any subject should be considered by the conference, that subject shall be included in the agenda for the following meeting.

Article CCCCIII: The conference shall regulate its own procedure, shall elect its own president, and may appoint committees to consider and report on any matter. Except as otherwise expressly provided in this part of the present treaty, all matters shall be decided by a simple majority of the votes cast by the delegates present. The voting is void unless the total number of votes cast is equal to half the number of the delegates attending the conference.

Article CCCCIV: The conference may add to any committees which it appoints technical experts, who shall be assessors without power to vote.

Article CCCCV: When the conference has decided on the addition of proposals with regard to an item in the agenda it will rest with the conference to determine whether these proposals should take the form:

(a.) Of a recommendation to be submitted to the members for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, or

(b.) Of a draft international convention for ratification by the members.

In either case a majority of two-thirds of the votes cast by the delegates present shall be necessary on the final vote for the adoption of the recommendation or draft convention as the case may be by the conference.

In framing any recommendation or draft convention of general application the conference shall have due regard to those countries in which climatic conditions, the imperfect development of industrial organization, or other special circumstances make the industrial conditions substantially different, and shall suggest the modifications, if any, which it considers may be required to meet the case of such countries.

A copy of the recommendation or draft convention shall be authenticated by the signature of the president of the conference and of the director, and shall be deposited with the secretary-general of the League of Nations. The secretary-general will communicate a certified copy of the recommendation or draft convention to each of the members.

Each of the members undertakes that it will, within the period of one year at most from the closing of the session of the conference, or, if it is impossible owing to exceptional circumstances to do so within the period of one year, then at the earliest practical moment, and in no case later than eighteen months from the closing session of the conference, bring the recommendation or draft convention before the authority or authorities within whose competence the matter lies, for the enactment of legislation or other action.

In the case of a recommendation, the members will inform the secretary of the action taken.

In the case of a draft convention, the member will, if it obtains the consent of the authority or authorities within whose competence the matter lies, communicate the formal ratification of the convention to the secretary general and will take such action as may be necessary to make effective the provisions of such convention.

If on a recommendation no legislative or other action is taken to make a recommendation effective, or if the draft convention fails to obtain the consent of the authority or authorities within whose competence the matter lies, no further obligation shall rest upon the member.

In the case of a federal state, the power of which to enter into conventions on labor matters is subject to limitations, it shall be in the discretion of that government to treat a draft convention to which such limitations apply as a recommendation only and the provisions of this article with respect to recommendations shall apply in such case.

The above article shall be interpreted in accordance with the following principle:

In no case shall any member be asked or required, as a result of the adoption o any recommendation or draft convention by the conference, to lessen the protection afforded by its existing legislation to the workers concerned.

Article CCCCVI: Any convention so ratified shall be registered by the secretary-general of the League of Nations, but shall only be binding upon the members which ratify it.

Article CCCCVII: If any convention coming before the conference for final order fails to secure the support of two-thirds of the votes cast by the delegates present, it shall nevertheless be within the right of any of the members of the permanent organization to agree to such convention among themselves. Any convention so agreed to shall be communicated by the governments concerned to the secretary-general of the League of Nations, who shall register it.

Article CCCCVIII: Each of the members agrees to make an annual report to the international labor office on the measures which it has taken to give effect to the provisions of conventions to which it is a party. These reports shall be made in such form and shall contain such particulars as the governing body may request. The director shall lay a summary of these reports before the next meeting of the conference.

Article CCCCIX: In the event of any representation being made to the international labor office by an industrial association of employers or of workers that any of the members has failed to secure in any respect the effective observance within its jurisdiction of any convention to which it is a party, the governing body may communicate the representation to the government against it is made and may invite that government to make such statement on the subject as it may think fit.

Article CCCCX: If no statement is received within a reasonable time from the government in question, or if the statement when received is not deemed to be satisfactory by the governing body, the latter shall have the right to publish their representation and the statement, if any made, in reply to items.

Article CCCCXI: Any of the members shall have the right to file a complaint with the international labor office if it is not satisfied that any other member is securing the effective observance of any convention which both have ratified in accordance with the foregoing article.

The governing body may, if it thinks fit, before referring such a complaint to a commission of inquiry, as hereinafter provided for, communicate with the government in question in the manner described in Article CCCCIX.

If the governing body does not think it necessary to communicate the complaint to the government in question, or if, when they have made such communications, no statement in reply has been received within a reasonable time which the governing body considers to be satisfactory, the governing body may apply for the appointment of a commission of inquiry to consider the complaint and to report thereon.

The governing body may adopt the same procedure, either of its own motion or on receipt of a complaint from a delegate to the conference.

When any matter arising out of Articles CCCCX or CCCCXI is being considered by the governing body, the government in question shall, if not already represented thereon, be entitled to send a representative to take part in the proceedings of the governing body while the matter is under consideration. Adequate notice of the date on which the matter will be considered shall be given to the government in question.

Article CCCCXII: The commission of inquiry shall be constituted in accordance with the following provisions:

Each of the members agrees to nominate within six months of the date on which the present treaty comes into force three persons of industrial experience, of whom one shall be a representative of employers, one a representative of workers, and one a person of independent standing, who shall together form a panel from which the members of the commission of inquiry shall be drawn.

The qualifications of the persons so nominated shall be subject to scrutiny by the governing body, which may by two-thirds of the votes cast by the representatives present refuse to accept the nomination of any person whose qualifications do not in its opinion comply with the requirements of the present article. Upon the application of the governing body the secretary general of the League of Nations shall nominate three persons, one from each section of this panel, to constitute the commission of inquiry, and shall designate one of them as the president of the commission. None of these three persons shall be a person nominated to the panel by any member directly concerned in the complaint.

Article CCCCXIII: The members agree that in the event of the reference of a complaint to a commission of inquiry under Article CCCCXI they will each, whether directly concerned in the complaint or not, place at the disposal of the commission all the information in their possession which bears on the subject matter of the complaint.

Article CCCCXIV: When the commission of inquiry has fully considered the complaint, it shall prepare a report embodying its findings on all questions of fact relevant to determining the issue between the parties and containing such recommendations as it may think proper as to the steps which should be taken to meet the complaint and the time within which they should be taken.

It shall also indicate in this report the measures, if any, of an economic character against a defaulting government which it considers to be appropriate and which it considers other governments would be justified in adopting.

Article CCCCXV: The secretary-general of the League of Nations shall communicate the report of the inquiry of the governments concerned in the complaint and shall cause it to be published.

Each of the governments shall within one month inform the secretary-general of the League of Nations whether or not it accepts the recommendations contained in the report of the commission; and if not, whether it proposes to refer this complaint to the permanent court of international justice of the League of Nations.

Article CCCCXVI: In the event of any member failing to take the action required by Article CCCCV with regard to a recommendation or draft convention, any other member shall be entitled to refer the matter to the permanent court of international justice.

Article CCCCXVII: The decision of the permanent court of international justice in regard to a complaint or matter which has been referred to it in pursuance of Article CCCCXV or Article CCCCXVI shall be final.

Article CCCCXVIII: The permanent court of international justice may affirm, vary or reverse any of the findings or recommendations of the commission of inquiry, if any, and shall in its decision indicate the measures, if any, of an economic character which it considers to be appropriate, and which other governments would be justified in adopting against a defaulting government.

Article CCCCXIX: In the event of any member failing to carry out, within the time specified, the recommendations, if any, contained in the report of the commission of inquiry, or in the decision of the permanent court of international justice, as the case may be, any other member may take against that member the measures of any economic character indicated in the report of the commission or in the decision of the court as appropriate to the case.

Article CCCCXX: The defaulting government may at any time inform the governing body that it has taken the steps necessary to comply with the recommendations of the commission of inquiry or with those in the decision of the permanent court of international justice, as the case may be, and may request it to apply to the secretary-general of the League of Nations to constitute a commission of inquiry to verify its contentions. In this case the provisions of Articles CCCCXII, CCCCXIII, CCCCXIV, CCCCXV, CCCCVII and CCCCVIII shall apply, and if the report of the commission of inquiry or the decision of the permanent court of international justice is in favor of the defaulting government, the other governments shall forthwith discontinue the measures of an economic character that they have taken against the defaulting government.

Article CCCCXXI: The members engage to apply conventions which they have ratified in accordance with the provisions of this part of the present treaty to their colonies, protectorates and possessions which are not fully self-governing.

1. Except where, owing to the local conditions the convention is inapplicable, or

2. Subject to such modifications as may be necessary to adapt the convention to local conditions.

And each of the members shall notify to the international labor office the action taken in respect of each of its colonies, protectorates and possessions, which are not fully self-governing.

Article CCCCXXII: Amendments to this part of the present treaty, which are adopted by the conference by a majority of two-thirds of the votes cast by the delegates present, shall take effect when ratified by the states whose rights compose the council, a league of nations and by three-fourths of the members.

Article CCCCXXIII—Any question or dispute relating to the interpretation of this part of the present treaty or any subsequent convention concluded by the members in pursuance of the provisions of this part of the present treaty shall be referred for decision to the permanent court of international justice.

Article CCCCXXIV—The first meeting of the conference shall take place in October, 1919. The place and agenda for this meeting shall be as specified in the annex thereto. Arrangements for the convening and the organization of the first meeting of the conference will be made by the government designated for the purpose in the said annex.

That government shall be assisted in the preparation of the documents for submission to the conference by an international committee constituted as provided in the said annex.

The expenses of the first meeting and of all subsequent meetings held before the League of Nations has been able to establish a general fund other than the expenses of delegates and their advisers, will be borne by the members in accordance by the apportionment of the expenses of the international bureau of the universal postal union.

Article CCCCXXV: Until the League of Nations has been constituted, all communications, which under the provisions of the foregoing articles should be addressed to the secretary-general of the league, will be preserved by the director of the internal labor office, who will transmit them to the secretary-general of the league.

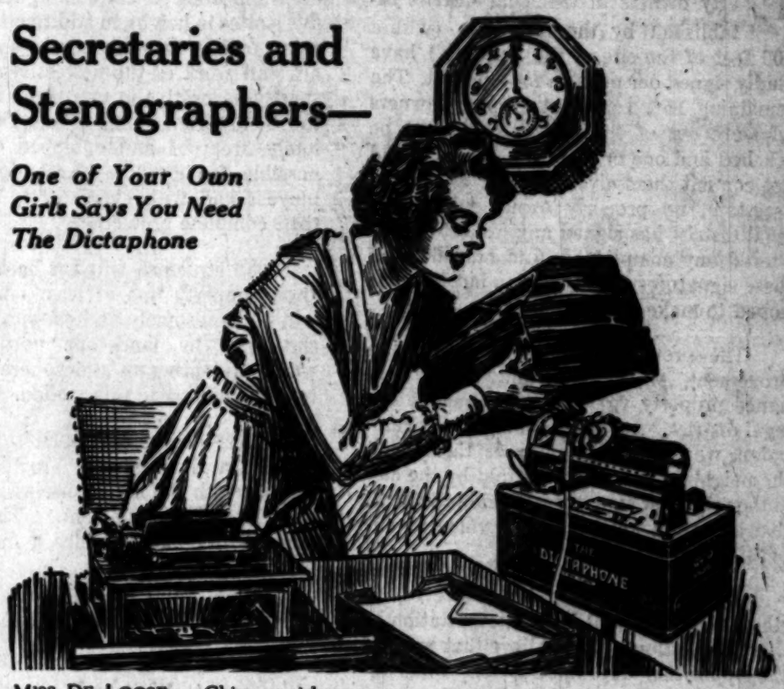
Secretaries and Stenographers—

One of Your Own Girls Says You Need The Dictaphone



MISS DE LOOSE, a Chicago girl, says:

Just cannot refrain from telling you how much I appreciate The Dictaphone.

I am now employed by one of the largest corporations in the country. I am the only stenographer in my department, yet I do all of the work with ease. I just feel so independent about it because I can tackle any kind of dictation, from the very simplest to the most technical. Why, I used to be more or less nervous when I took dictation, but now all of that has vanished, and if only more girls would realize what The Dictaphone means to their health, not to mention the numerous good points my employer has to say about it, they would soon realize how much more pleasant it is.

I just cannot say enough in favor of your machine — but I am sure I could convince any man or woman why they should use The Dictaphone.

(Signed) BETTY DE LOOSE,
1520 Oakdale Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Tell your employer you would like to have a 15-minute demonstration of The Dictaphone in your office, on your work.

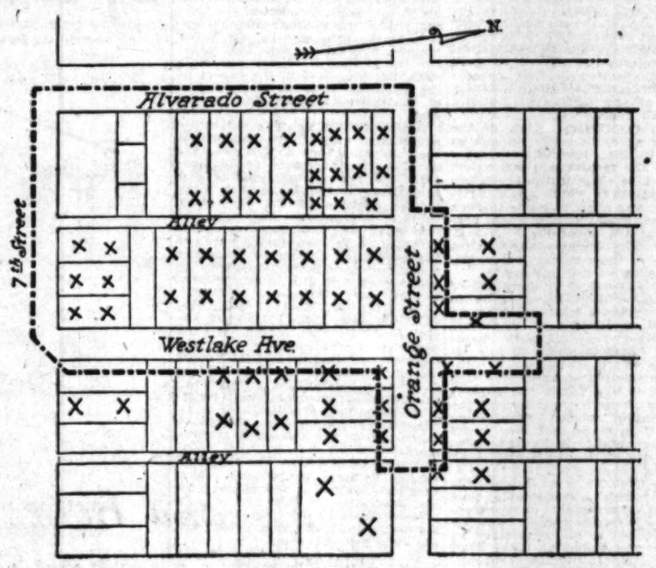
"The Shortest Route to the Mail-Chute"

This beautiful new building is planned for the Southwest corner of Westlake and Orange Streets.



The consent of 60% of the owners of the property within the dotted line on the accompanying map, must (according to the city laws,) be secured before the Council can take action. Crosses indicate signatures of 85% to our petition.

When 85 Men Out of 100 Okeh an Idea—It's Apt to Be Right

These property owners signed the petition in favor of the new Brownstein-Louis Company building because they knew it would increase the value of their property.

EIGHTY-FIVE PER CENT. of the property owners in the legal district established by the city laws (within 400 feet of the site of the building,) have gladly signed our petition for a permit. The remaining 15% represent property owners who are out of the city or could not be reached and one or two owners who would not commit themselves. As far as we can ascertain, no property owner within the legal district has signed any protest or registered any complaint. And only 60% of these signatures are necessary, but we have hoped to make the petition unanimous.

The protestants to this splendid improvement, which will undoubtedly enhance property values, are all outside the legal district. At the beginning of our campaign we solicited signatures throughout the neighborhood, but were told by the city authorities that signatures outside the legal district would not be of any value to our petition.

It is not our intention, however, to stand on a strict and legal interpretation of these regulations. We believe that most of the opposition developed before folks realized what a beautiful, imposing improvement was intended. We do not want to ride rough shod over their opinions and objections. We want to convert them into friends of the project so that they will welcome and encourage our efforts.

More Details About the Institution.

The site under consideration is the southwest corner of Westlake and Orange streets; a frontage of 305 feet on Westlake and 150 feet on Orange, abutting on a 20-foot alley! The building proposed is a modern, reinforced concrete and glass building, five stories in height, in addition to the basement; faced with ornamental terra cotta and art staff work of the newest type. It is strictly decorative in treatment, resembling the U. S. Grant Hotel in San Diego, absolutely fireproof and equipped with every possible facility for the comfort of employees and with every safety device for their complete protection.

The structure will set back from the front property line at least ten feet, and will be handsomely parked with lawns and shrubbery by landscape gardeners, the whole presenting an atmosphere unequaled by any building in this section.

Every device of the latest type is included in the plans to provide our employees with the most noiseless, safest and least fatiguing equipment. The immense expanse of glass provides a maximum of light and air.

How the Community Benefits.

The fifth or top floor of the building, given over to Welfare Work, should be of real interest to every man active in civic betterment and every club woman who is striving for ideals in the community.

Some of the features included are a restaurant, where meals will be served at a less-than-cost basis; rest and recreation rooms; a branch of the Los Angeles Public Library; quarters for resident physicians, nurses, and dentists giving free medical attendance to all employees; and a convertible assembly hall for the social gatherings of our own employees, which will be at the disposal of the local civic organizations of the district free of all expense. It will be a social and recreational center along the most modern and improved community lines.

A private court yard facing the alley in the rear of the property will provide ample facilities for the handling of the many small packages by light automobiles without any traffic congestions; the whole completely screened from the public.

Increase in Values Redound to the Present Property Owners.

Neither the Brownstein-Louis Company nor any of its agents have taken any options on property in the district with the idea of exploiting it for manufacturing or speculative purposes or making a profit on the enhancement in values which are bound to follow. The City Council is not asked to throw open this district to any sort of an industrial plant; we only ask for a permit to construct a finer establishment than the city now possesses, in a district worthy of it.

The city is teeming with new after-the-war projects. Don't discourage the new building and reconstruction campaign now under way. Unfavorable action on this permit will cause great hesitancy upon the part of many local and eastern business men who now contemplate the development of new projects or the expansion of those already here.

We ask the complete support and good will of the citizens of this city in our new endeavor.

Article CCCCXXVI: Pending the creation of a permanent court of internal justice, disputes which, in accordance with this part of the present treaty would be submitted to it for decision will be referred to a tribunal of three persons, appointed by the council of the League of Nations.

First meeting of annual labor conference, 1919. The place of meeting will be Washington.

The government of the United States of America is requested to convene the conference.

The international organizing committee will consist of seven members, appointed by the United States of America, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium and Switzerland. The committee may, if it thinks necessary, invite other members to appoint representatives.

AGENDA:

(1.) Application of principle of the eight-hour day or the forty-eight-hour week.

(2.) Question of preventing or providing against unemployment.

(3) Women's employment; (a) Before and after child birth, including the question of maternity benefit. (b) During the night. (c) In unhealthy processes.

(4.) Employment of children. (a) Minimum age of employmene; (b) During the night; (c) in unhealthy processes.

(5.) Extension and application of the international conventions adopted at Berne in 1906 on the prohibition of night work for women employed in industry and the prohibition of the use of white phosphorus in the manufacture of matches.

Article CCCCXXVII: The high contracting parties, recognizing that the well being, physical, moral, and intellectual, or industrial wage earners is of supreme international importance, have framed, in order to further this great end, the permanent machinery provided for in section 1 and associates with that of the League of Nations.

They recognize that differences of climate, habits, and customs, of economic opportunity and industrial tradition, make strict uniformity in the conditions of labor difficult of immediate attainment.

But, holding, as they do, that labor should not be regarded merely as an article of commerce, they think that there are methods and principles for regulating labor conditions which all industrial communities should endeavor to apply so far as their circumstances will permit.

Among these methods and principles, the following seem to the high contracting parties to be of special and urgent importance:

First—The guiding principle above enunciated that labor should not be regarded merely as a commodity or article of commerce.

Second—The right of association for all lawful purposes by the employed as well as by the employers.

Third—The payment to the employed of a wage adequate to maintain a reasonable standard of life as this is understood in their time and country.

Fourth—The addition of an eight-hour day or forty-eight-hour week as the standard to be aimed at where it has not already been attained.

Fifth—The addition of a weekly rest of at least twenty-four hours, which should include Sunday wherever practicable.

Sixth—The abolition of child labor and the imposition of such limitations on the labor of young persons as shall permit the continuation of their education and assure their proper physical development.

Seventh—The principle that men and women should receive equal remuneration for work of equal value.

Eighth—The standard set by law in each country with respect to the conditions of labor should have due regard to the equitable economic treatment of all workers lawfully resident therein.

Ninth—Each state should make provisions for a system of inspection in which women should take part, in order to insure the enforcement of the laws and regulations for the protection of the employed.

Without claiming that these methods and principles are either complete or final, the high contracting parties are of the opinion that they are well fitted to guide the policy of the League of Nations; and that, if adopted by the industrial communities who are members of the league, and safeguarded in practice by an adequate system of such inspection, they will confer lasting benefits upon the wage-earners of the world.

The summary covers briefly the important points laid down in this section. The original reads:

Article CCLXIV: Germany undertakes that goods they produce or manufacture of any one of the Allied or associated states imported into Germany from whatsoever place arriving, shall not be subjected to other or higher duties or charges (including internal charges) than those to whigh the like goods the producer or manufacturer of any other such state or of any other foreign country are subject.

Germany will not maintain or impose any provision or restriction on the importation into German territory of any goods the produce or manufacture of the territories of any one of the Allied or associated states, from whatsoever place arriving, which shall not equally extend to the importation of the like goods the produce or manufacture of any other such state or of any other foreign country.

Germany further undertakes that, in the matter of the regime applicable on importation, no discrimination against the commerce of any of the Allied and associated states shall not be subjected to other or higher duties or charges (including internal charges) than those paid on the like goods exported to any other foreign country.

Germany will not maintain or impose any prohibition or restriction on the exportation of any goods sent from her territory to any one of the Allied or associated states which shall not equally extend to the exportation of the like goods, natural products or manufactured articles, sent to any other such state or to any other foreign country.

Article CCLXVII: Every favor, immunity or privilege in regard to the importation, exportation or transit of goods granted by Germany to any Allied or associated state or to any other foreign country whatever shall, simultaneously and unconditionally, without request and without compensation, be extended to all the Allied and associated states.

Article CCLXVIII: The provisions of Articles CCLXIV to CCLXVII, inclusive, of this chapter and of Article CCCXXIII of Part XII, (ports, waterways and railways) of the present treaty are subject to the following exceptions:

(a) For a period of five years from the coming into force of the present treaty, natural or manufactured products which both originate in and come from the territories of Alsace and Lorraine reunited to France shall, on importation into German customs territory, be exempt from all customs duty. The French government shall fix, each year, by decree communicated to the German government, the nature and amount of the products which shall enjoy this exemption.

The amount of each product which may thus be sent annually into Germany shall not exceed the average of the amounts sent annually in the years 1911-1913.

Further, during the period mentioned, the German government shall allow the free export from Germany and the free reimportation into Germany, exempt from all custom duties, and other charges (including international charges,) of yarns, tissues and other textile materials or textile products of any kind and in any condition sent from Germany into the territories of Alsace or Lorraine, to be subjecetd there to any finishing process, such as bleaching, dyeing, printing, mercerisation, gassing, twisting or dressing.

(b.) During a period of three years from the coming into force of the present treaty, natural or manufactured products which both originate in and come from Polish territories which before the war were part of Germany shall, in importations into Germany customs territory, be exempt from all customs duty. The Polish government shall fix each year, by decree communicated to the German government, the nature and amount of the products which shall enjoy this exemption. The amount of each product which may be thus sent annually into Germany shall not exceed the average of the amounts sent annually in the years 1911-1913.

(c.) The Allied and associated powers reserve the right to require Germany to accord freedom from customs duty, on importation into German customs territory, to natural products and manufactured articles which both originate in and come from the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, for a period of five years from the coming into force of the present treaty. AMERICAN HOME-MADE BEER

The Question of the Hour. The Brewers are Defunct—the last sad rights Performed.

But may the physician still prescribe a genuine malt tonic—the convalescent use it—the family drink it—the social gathering yet enjoy an absolutely pure and genuine "before the war beer?"

This "question of the hour" is answered with a smashing affirmative by Mr. H. J. Weston of this city.

He holds the secret formula of the great brewing concern which he has represented for years.

He enables any housewife to produce his "second-to-none-in-the-world" product, in her own home and with her ordinary kitchen utensils.

That is why Mr. Weston has called his splendid beverage "American Home-made Beer."

It has the taste, tang, tonic "tingle" and food value of the best beer ever brewed—bar none.

Americans say—"I will try anything once." Very well—Mr. H. J. Weston asks only for the "once" and will refund your money if your order be not repeated.

Article CCLXXX: The obligations imposed on Germany by Chapter 1 and by Articles CCLXXI and CCLXXII of Chapter 2 above shall cease to have effect five years from the date of the coming into force of the present treaty, unless otherwise provided in the text, or unless the council of the League of Nations shall, at least twelve months before the expiration of that period, decide that these obligations shall be maintained for a further period with or without amendment.

Article CCLXXVI of Chapter 4 shall remain in operation, with or without amendment, after the period of five years for such further period, if any, not exceeding five years, as may be determined by a majority of the council of the League of Nations.

Article CCLXXXI: If the German government engages in international trade it shall not in respect thereof have or be deemed to have any rights, privileges, or immunities of sovereignty.

The concluding sections of the treaty, including the provision for making the pact effective when ratified by Germany and three of the Allies, follow:

Article CCCCXXXVII: The high contracting parties agree that, in the absence of a subsequent agreement to the contrary, the chairman of any commission established by the present treaty shall, in the event of an equality of votes, be entitled to a second vote.

Article CCCCXXXVIII: The Allied and associated powers agree that, where Christian religion missions were being maintained by German societies or persons in territory belonging to them, or of which the government is intrusted to them in accordance with the present treaty, the property which these missions or missionary societies possessed, including that of trading societies whose profits were devoted to the support of missions, shall continue to be devoted to missionary purposes.

In order to insure the due execution of this undertaking, the Allied and associated governments will hand over such property to boards of trustees appointed by or approved by the governments, and composed of persons holding the Christian faith. It will be the duty of such boards of trustees to see that the property continues to be applied to missionary purposes.

The obligations undertaken by the Allied and associated governments in this article will not in any way prejudice their control or authority as to the individuals by whom the missions are conducted.

Germany, taking note of the above undertaking, agrees to accept all arrangements made or to be made by the Allied or associated governments concerned for carrying on the work of the said missions or trading societies and waives all claims on their behalf.

Article CCCCXXXIX: Without prejudice to the provisions of the present treaty, Germany undertakes not to put forward directly or indirectly against any Allied or associated power signatory of the present treaty, including those which, without having declared war, have broken off diplomatic relations with the German empire, any pecuniary claim based on events which occurred at any time before the coming into force of the present treaty.

The present stipulation will bar completely and finally all claims of this nature, which will be thence forward extinguished, whoever may be the parties in interest.

Article CCCCXL: Germany accepts and recognizes as valied and binding all decrees and orders concerning German ships and goods and all orders relating to the payment of costs made by any prize court of any of the Allied or associated powers, and undertakes not to put forward any claim arising out of such decrees or orders on behalf of any German national.

The Allied and associated powers reserve the right to examine in such manner as they may determine all decisions and orders of German prize courts, whether affecting the property rights of nationals of those powers or of neutral powers. Germany agrees to furnish copies of all the documents constituting the record of the cases, including the decisions and orders made, and to accept and give effect to the recommendations made after such examination of the cases.

The present treaty, of which the French and English texts are both authentic, shall be ratified.

The deposit of ratifications shall be made at Paris as soon as possible.

Powers of which the state of the government is outside Europe will be entitled merely to inform the government of the French republic through their diplomatic representative at Paris that their ratification has been given; in that case they must transmit the instrument of ratification as soon as possible.

A first proces-verbal of the deposit of ratifications will be drawn up as soon as the treaty has been ratified by Germany on the one hand, and by three of the principal Allied and associated powers on the other hand.

From the date of this first proces-verbal the treaty will come into force between the high contracting parties who have ratified it. For the determination of all parties of time provided for in the present treaty this date will be the date of the coming into force of the treaty.

In all other respects the treaty will enter into force for each power at the date of the deposit of its ratification.

The French government will transmit to all the signatory powers a certified copy of the proces-verbal of the deposit of ratifications.

In faith whereof the above named plientipotentiaries have signed the present treaty.

Done at Versailles, in a single copy, which will remain deposited in the archives of the French republic, and of which authenticated copies will be transmitted to each of the signatory powers.

SQUADRON OF MATHER PLANES REACH OREGON

PACIFIC AERO CLUB TO FORM RULES FOR FLIGHT TO AUSTRALIA.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

EUGENE (Or.) June 9.—The De Haviland airplane, largest of the fleet en route from Sacramento to Portland, passed over Eugene at 12:30 o'clock today.

MEDFORD (Or.) June 9.—The flying circus from Mather Field, Sacramento, Cal., en route to the Portland rose festival, arrived over Medford shortly after 10 o'clock. After flying over the town the seven planes landed on the Gore Field west of the city, where they secured supplies of gasoline and oil.

MATHER FIELD, SACRAMENTO, June 9.—The seven army airplanes from Mather Field, left Granada, Cal., near the Oregon boundary, at 7 o'clock this morning for Medford, Or., according to a telegram received by Capt. T. C. Voes from Col. Henry L. Watson, commander of the squadron. The aviators arrived at Granada early last night on their flight to Portland.

WIRE STRIKE NOT TOLD PRESIDENT

If Action Necessary will be Through Postoffice.

Konenkamp to Direct Telegraphers from Chicago.

Claims 4000 Union Men Affected in that City.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 9.—President Wilson has not been advised of the telegraphers' strike situation, Secretary Tumulty said today, and officials have no intention of calling the matter to his attention at this time. It was said that should action by the Federal government be decided upon the intervening agency would be the Postoffice Department.

UNION CLAIMS FIRST BREAK.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 9.—What he termed the first break in the united front presented by the operating companies came tonight when the Federal Telegraph Company, which operates a combination of land lines and wireless along the Pacific Coast, received an operators' committee and signed a schedule meeting the employees' demands, S. J. Konenkamp, international president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, declared in a statement issued tonight. Konenkamp, who has called a nation-wide strike of telegraph operators for Wednesday, said he received that information from L. I. Marshall, first international vice-president of the international union at Los Angeles.

Plans are complete, Konenkamp said, for the strike, which will involve 70,000 telegraph and telephone operators. He said he abandoned hope of a peaceful settlement before he left Washington last week.

Discharges of union operators by the Western Union continued today, Konenkamp said, with seventy persons being discharged at Dallas, Little Rock, Denver, Portland, Or., and Los Angeles.

"This makes a total of 2870 now out of the Western Union service," the statement continued.

Konenkamp said union officials plan to direct all strike activities from here. He said fully 4000 Chicago workers would be affected by the strike order. This, however, is denied by officials of the Western Union Telegraph Company, who said few of the employees are union members.

L. I. Marshall, international vice-president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, declared here last night that the Federal Telegraph Company, a trunk line operating between San Diego and Portland, had entered into a verbal agreement to meet the demands of the union, and that it would probably be allowed to operate through the strike.

"The verbal agreement is to the effect that the wage demand will be paid, but an agreement to that effect must be signed today or the deal will be off," said Marshall. "The stage is all set and the strike will become effective Wednesday."

Marshall contradicted the statement of A. Hixson of the Western Union Employees' Association to the effect that none of the company's men in this city would leave their keys and go on strike.

The Executive Committee of the Pacific district council for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers meets today to ratify the order for the proposed strike of linemen and telephone operators which will go into effect Monday unless an agreement between employers and employees is reached before that time.

C. F. Mason, commercial superintendent for the Southern California Telephone and Telegraph Company, says he does not anticipate serious inconvenience as a result of the proposed strike. His estimate is that not over forty of the switchboard operators in the local office are unionized.

COMPANIES CONFIDENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) June 9.—Despite insistent announcements from headquarters of the Union Commercial Telegraphers of Portland and vicinity that not only every union operator but a number of sympathetic nonunion employees will refuse to handle commercial messages after 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, manager of the Western Union and Postal Telegroph companies here declared today that the public need not fear a tieup of wire communication.

Two Western Union telegraph operators were discharged for declaring they would obey the strike order next Wednesday, according to charges made by union officials, and confirmed by W. E. Brooks, chief operator for the Western Union here.

FEW UNIONISTS IN DENVER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DENVER (Colo.) June 9.—Ninety-five per cent. of the telegraph workers in the Denver Western Union office are members of the Association of Western Union employees and will not strike Wednesday, according to a statement issued by officials of the association today.

PHONE STRIKE ORDERED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLEVELAND (O.) June 9.—A nation-wide strike of telephone workers, involving operators and maintenance, construction and repairmen, was called today, effective next Monday morning, according to C. Sickman, local business agent, and J. H. Groves, financial secretary of the Electrical Workers' Union. It was announced the orders were received from the international headquarters at Springfield, Ill.

The strike was precipitated by the strike of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America called for Wednesday, it was stated. The telephone employees' demands are similar to those of the telegraphers —recognition of the union, the right to bargain collectively, and abandonment of discrimination in discharging union men.

THREATEN GENERAL STRIKE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MADISON (Wis.) June 9.—A general strike of all union labor in Madison in sympathy with 1500 striking machinists of the East Shops was threatened tonight. The machinists have been out nine weeks. Fourteen unions have declared their intention of joining a sympathetic strike if one is called.

GERMANY SAFER WITHIN LEAGUE?

Combination of Outside Powers is Feared.

Felt that Huns Can be Dealt with Better Inside.

Stable Government Must be Guaranteed.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, June 9.—The movement to admit Germany to the League of Nations is due mainly to the desire to avoid the possibility of the formation of another group composed of rival powers which would embrace Germany, Russia and the old Teutonic group.

Evidences have reached the conference leaders of late that influences are at work in Germany and Russia to establish relations as a basis for a combination of powers not in the league. While not regarded as imminent, it was felt the danger of such combination always would be present while Germany was outside the league, and the admission of Germany, therefore, was recommended as a means of subjecting her to the same obligations as the Allies under the League of Nations.

This sentiment was chiefly instrumental in the unanimous decision of the British, French, American and Italian members of the league committee concerning the conditions on which Germany may be admitted. One of the chief authorities said today:

"We can deal with Germany better when inside than out of the league. Outside she would be able to go her own way; inside she must conform to the same obligations as the Allies."

The covenant originally foresaw Germany's admission on giving "effective guarantees of her sincere intention to observe international obligations." The recommendations now submitted to the council of four define these effective guarantees, namely, establishment of a stable government, signing of the peace treaty and loyally executing the terms of the treaty.

The league covenant also made it conditional of Germany's entrance that she accept the league restrictions of military and naval armaments. It was proposed to define this by specific abolition of compulsory military service.

M. Clemenceau objected, however, on the ground that such specification might bring up the whole question of compulsory service. It was omitted from the recommendations presented to the council of four.

The council spent the day in examining this and other committee reports. Indications were that the reply to the Germans would be ready before the end of the week, probably Friday, when five days will be given for Germany's final answer with respect to signing.

FIREMEN, ENGINEERS CONVENE IN DENVER.

DENVER, June 9.—Eight hundred and seventy delegates of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, officers of the Grand Lodge, secretaries and stenographers and their families were in Denver today for the opening session of the triennial convention of the organization. The railroad men will remain for more than a month, transacting the business affairs of the order and discussing measures for the benefit of its members.

Twenty-five hundred is expected to be the average attendance at the convention sessions which will be held in the Municipal Auditorium. The ladies' auxiliaries will meet in the Women's Club Building. The auditorium has been leased for one month, but it is probable that a longer period will be required to take care of the accumulated business and problems growing out of the reconstruction period. The 1916 convention was in session thirty-three days.

Leaders in the brotherhood were noncommital regarding questions of general interest which will come before the convention. If the question of government ownership, increased wages and amalgamation of the four great brotherhoods comes before the convention, this will be decided as the sessions continue, it was said.

For a month a preliminary committee has been in session at a local hotel, making arrangements for the convention and for the care of the numerous visitors.

President W. S. Carter, Acting President Timothy Shea and all the Grand Officers of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen were in Denver last night preparatory to the opening of the triennial convention of the order here today. The railroad men will be in session for more than a month.

The 1919 convention is expected to be one of the most notable in the history of the organization because of important questions to be considered. Principal among these are the wage question, government ownership or control of railroads and questions concerning this subject which the brotherhood will urge upon Congress.

The sessions will be executive, the public to be informed of the convention's actions through as press representative.

Walker D. Hines, Director-General of the Railroad Administration, will address the convention Wednesday.

BRINGING IN 15 TONS OPIUM IS CHARGED.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Charging the Bulgarian government has placed on sale in the American market loot taken in the occupation of Serbia, Dr. V. M. Yovanovitch, director of the information bureau of the kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, declared in a formal statement, today, that two agents of the Bulgarian government, who arrived in New York, May 19, brought more than fifteen tons of opium, which they proposed to sell in the United States. The opium, he said, was a three years' accumulation of poppy crops in Serbian Macedonia.

INDEMNITY BIG ISSUE AT PARIS.

cate these proofs they were anxious that none should go astray and personally delivered them to the members.

It is known that Clemenceau intends to resign as soon as peace is made and it is the general opinion that he intends to ignore criticism and continue his present course until the signing of the treaty, which will be the culminating point of his political career. This explains the government's present hesitation to agree to a fixed indemnity, the knowledge of which might result in a popular outcry which, echoed in the Chamber of Deputies, might snatch the honor of having made peace from Clemenceau's hands at the eleventh hour.

REPLY DUE FRIDAY.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, June 9.—The reply to the German counter-proposals will not be delivered before Friday, June 13, it has been decided by the Allied and associated governments. The reply will give the Germans a period of five days in which to accept or reject the treaty.

The council of four spent this morning considering the various reports submitted by the commissions which had been dealing with features of the answer to the German proposals.

The Peace Conference commissions on colonies, prisoners of war, responsibilities and the labor, military and naval clauses of the treaty in their reports to the council of four, the Echo de Paris says it learns, urged the rejection of the German counter-proposals as far as the several commissions are concerned.

COMMISSIONS REPORT.

The commissions which have been examining the questions of the Saar basin, Alsace-Lorraine and the left bank of the Rhine have presented their reports to the secretariat of the conference. Several other commissions have not yet completed their work.

The feeling is growing in French official circles that the Germans will not sign the peace treaty. This is based largely on reports from Berlin indicating Philipp Scheidemann, German Chancellor, is unwilling to accept the responsibility of authorizing Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau to sign and probably will refer the matter to the National Assembly, which is believed to be unfavorable.

As the reports of all the commissions on the German counter-proposals had not been received, the council of four adjourned late today until tomorrow without action.

DELAY ON AUSTRIA.

The final draft of the political clauses of the Austrian treaty, it is understood, is being delayed by discussion of the demand of the Italians for a provision authorizing the deportation of "undesirables" in the part of Austrian Tyrol to be annexed to Italy. This demand is meeting with considerable opposition.

Premier Clemenceau, Col. House and Lord Robert Cecil have re-examined the terms under which nations other than the founder members may be admitted to the League of Nations. Their report, which modifies somewhat the covenant so as to render the admission of Germany easier, will be submitted to the council of four today.

It is understood that the conditions recommended for Germany's admission are:

First, the establishment of a stable government.

Second, the signing of the treaty of peace.

Third, the loyal execution of the peace treaty.

A proposed fourth condition relative to Germany's abolishing compulsory military service was omitted on Premier Clemenceau's suggestion. It was considered that the treaty sufficiently provided for Germany's disarmament.

BERLIN, Sunday, June 8.—Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, Minister of Finance, advocates in an interview printed in the Tageblatt, a League of Nations loan to finance nations seeking to recover their economic equilibrium.

CHINA SCHOOLS CLOSE.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

AMOY (China) June 9.—All business has been suspended and the schools have been closed in this city as a protest against arrest of students in Peking following disorders which resulted from announcements of the action of the council of three at Paris relative to Shantung and Kiao-Chow.

BENSON COMING HOME.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, June 9.—Admiral William S. Benson, chief of naval operations of the United States Navy, and naval adviser to President Wilson and the American delegation at the Peace Conference, left for Brest today. He will sail for the United States tomorrow.

REVOLVING FUND FOR RAILROADS REDUCED.

HEARING ON TARIFF FOR PERISHABLE FREIGHT IN LOS ANGELES JULY 7.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Reduction of four hundred and fifty million dollars in the $1,200,000,000 involving fund asked for by the Railroad Administration for the remainder of the calendar year, was made today by the House Appropriations Committee.

Investigation of proposed new tariffs and regulations on the shipment of all classes of perishable freight was ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission today at the request of the Director-General of Railroads, who has had the new regulations under discussion with representatives of producers and shippers throughout the country. Examiner R. C. Marshall was assigned to hold hearings at Los Angeles July 7, Portland July 16 and Denver July 23.

COMPTON COMES TO THE FRONT.

Seems on the Boom in All Lines, is Report.

Plans to Entertain Returned Service Men.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COMPTON, June 9.—The annual report of Crystal Brothers, whose claim to fame is their possession of a city store in a country town, but with the assistance of their confreres, Compton's leading merchants, they will stage a welcome home party to returned service men, is received here with no little degree of interest.

The "party" is to made of part of Compton's celebration in connection with the opening of their business house in new quarters, rapidly nearing completion, and will be a happy time for old and memories to dim the years. All of Compton's 142 soldiers have returned from war unscathed. While many of the men have seen some of the hardest campaigning all escaped Hun bullets, gas shells and a thousand other means of destruction.

The Crystal brothers came to Compton several years ago, and with them brought a spirit of progressiveness that has changed both the appearance and general atmosphere of the city. Their new grocery building is only one of the many recent improvements that prove Compton's growth.

Nothing certain when we came to Compton, said Carl Crystal yesterday, but the town's location was at once a right location in what California is a sure winner by the fact that there is no Southern California. Most people would be coming here some day, so we have built up a phenomenal business because we have brought to the attention here which are appreciated and are being developed by the fact a new modern store in direct competition with ours opened recently. We welcome competition and hope for more business interests that make Compton a town makes business in two ways."

The general activity in the improvement activity in the immediate vicinity of Compton is booming, and one of the town's banks has increased its deposits from $1,000 in 1917 to $525,591.07, at the end of this year.

The Knights of Pythias and the Masonic fraternity, both boast of new lodge homes, and an automobile dealership that under two former employees proved a failure is now on its feet, employing a number of workers and steadily growing.

"We are proud of the way we have been doing and have great confidence in the future," said H. E. Crystal, "Farmers and Merchants Bank, even if we have no gold in our service flag, we hope to wear one in our crown."

LOCAL TALENT IN WELL-KNOWN PLAY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SIERRA MADRE, June 9.—Typifying the Christ-like character in a human, Rev. Charles C. Wilson of the First Congregational Church portrayed a vivid characterization of "The Stranger" in Jerome K. Jerome's play, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," which was presented Saturday afternoon and evening at the Woman's Club House by local talent.

Rather than postpone the production, although suffering from a recent bereavement in the loss of a beloved son, Mr. Elliott Rhodes, Sr., played the character of Joey Wright, retired bookmaker, with credit, while among the women characters, Mrs. Walter Wright Alley as Stasia, the slavey, and Mrs. Milton Steinberger as Vivian, the daughter of the major, carried off the honors. With the exception of a surplus application of make-up on several women characters the play was a marked success from every standpoint.

The full cast consisted of the following local persons: Mrs. Sharpe, landlady, Helen Williams, Stasia, a slavey, Mrs. Walter Wright Alley, Miss Kite, Avis Preston, Mrs. Tompkins, Laura E. McDaniel, Mrs. De Hooley, Edith Blumer, Maj. Tompkins, Keith Walker, Vivian, Mrs. Milton Steinberger, Joey Wright, Elliott Rhodes, Sr., Christopher Penny, Walter Lynch, Harry Larckom, Franklin Wright, Jape Samuels, Argyle Tully, the stranger, Rev. C. C. Wilson.

The production and rehearsing was under the supervision and management of Norval McGregor, scenario writer, photoplay director and old-time stock actor.

"Coronado Tent City" is open.

Growers Find Many Varieties Suffer from Moisture.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, June 9.—Reports which are just coming in from the country district indicate that the rains of two weeks ago, in which a precipitation of nearly an inch drenched this section, did severe damage to the berry crop. Growers declare the second crop of strawberries is ruined, and not more than 20 per cent of a crop of loganberries will be available. Late blackberries also suffered, it is stated.

Fungus diseases attacked the maturing fruit, the growers state, and within a few days after the showers practically every berry on the vines was ruined

Quarts Mine Deal Said to Be "Get-Rich-Quick" Scheme.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, June 9.—Alleging fraud, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gleason have brought suit for the recovery of $11,500 from Mr. and Mrs. Al Urbach, orange grove owners; and A. J. Creeks, night police officer here, from whom, according to the Gleason complaint, they recently purchased "You Know" quarts mines on Cow Mountain, east of here. It is alleged in the complaint that Urbach and Creeks were partners to the transaction, which was devised for the purpose of securing 11,500 in cash from Gleason. It is further alleged that since the transfer Urbach and Creeks have disposed of their property to one F. H. Williams, to prevent judgment being secured against them.

CONTRADICT REPORT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, June 9.—Officials of publicity organizations here are investigating a report that the Massachusetts Forestry Association, several score of the members of which will tour California this summer, had been advised no accommodations could be provided for them in Tulare county

Officials of the association were invited to come to this portion of the State, and were particularly urged to visit Giant Forest. A reply received from H. A. Reynolds, the secretary, stated that when the tour originally was planned they had "been led to believe" their party could not be properly cared for on such a trip.

ALHAMBRA ADVANCES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, June 9.—Plans to make Alhambra an ideal city of homes are being worked out by the street department, which has been making extensive street improvements. Four tons of cast iron water pipe were received last week, and work was started today laying it in various parts of the city. The city is also paving several streets, one of which is Marengo avenue, which is a thoroughfare from Los Angeles to Pasadena, and residents in other parts of the city are petitioning for further improvements.

Ornamental lighting is being installed, and improvements on sidewalks, curbs, and paving is being carried out.

Aircraft Company to Take Lease at Pasadena.

Soldier Sentenced to Jail for Fast Driving.

Board of Trade Invites Factory to Crown City.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, June 9.—Negotiations are expected to be closed within a few days between the Pasadena Board of Trade and Sid Chaplin's aircraft corporation whereby the aircraft corporation takes a long-term lease of twenty acres in East Pasadena for an airplane landing station. The land is designed as a depot for the commercial airplane line that Chaplin and his associates propose to establish.

The land is situated at the northwest corner of Allen and New York avenues. It is level and has been approved by the aircraft experts as a good field.

A special committee of the Board of Trade, comprising J. B. Coulston, chairman; President L. L. Test and Secretary John H. Pearman, has been acting for this community in the negotiations, which have been carried on with Emery H. Rogers of the aircraft corporation. Members of the Board of Trade said today they expected to close the deal this week.

The Board of Trade will also endeavor to get the city of Pasadena to lease a public airplane landing space in the same area.

FACTORY INVITED HERE.

The Brownstein-Louis Company of Los Angeles, whose proposal to erect a model factory in the Westlake district of Los Angeles has aroused some protest from that residential locality, has been invited by the Pasadena Board of Trade to bring the factory to Pasadena. The invitation was extended through J. J. Mitchell, chairman of the Industrial Committee of the board, who said today no indication had come from the company yet as to whether it would come here.

DRIVE CHAIRMAN NAMED.

Frank F. Carpenter, who was active during the war in work of the War Savings societies and the Belgian Relief Committee, has been appointed chairman of the Citizens' Committee assisting the Pasadena Boy Scouts in their membership campaign this week. Adults are to be canvassed to become "associate members" of the scouts, their dues of a dollar a year to assist in the Scout programme. A large committee, comprising many prominent citizens, will act with Mr. Carpenter.

SPEEDER SENT TO JAIL.

Clarence Masten, a soldier from Ross Field, the United States Army Baloon Camp at Arcadia, was fined $25 and sentenced to twenty-five days in the City Jail for exceeding the automobile speed limit on the Colorado street bridge across the Arroyo, by Police Judge F. C. Dunham today. The judge did not suspend the sentence. It was brought out in court that when arrested Masten had a quantity of liquor in his car and the arresting officers averred that he had a quantity under his belt also. They said he was very impudent when they arrested him. When Masten gets out of the City Jail he has a sentence of sixty days "kitchen police" at the army camp awaiting him, also.

A "PEACH" OF A PRICE.

Visalia Growers to Get Big Returns for Crop.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, June 9.—On their return from San Jose, where they were in conference with deciduous fruit growers of the Santa Clara Valley the sales committee of the Tulare County Canning Peach Association announced the closing of a contract with a California canner on the basis of $92.50 per ton for clings and $55 per ton for frees. The membership of the association will be called soon to ratify the contracts.

It was stated that after bids were opened San Joaquin Valley canners, especially those of Visalia, were offered the crop at this figure, but they "refused to consider any such prices."

It has been estimated that the pool of the association this season will amount of about 6000 tons.

LIGHT-POWER STRIKE IN ARIZONA AIMED AT.

TROUBLE STARTS IN DEMAND FOR SALT RIVER VALLEY UNION RECOGNITION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, June 9.—The light and electric power supplies of the Salt River Valley are aimed at by a strike called by local union headquarters. It started in a demand made upon the Salt River Valley Water Users' Association for recognition of the electrical union and its rules, for a raise of wages from $6 to $7 a day for linemen and for $150 a month for operators, a raise of $25 a month.

As stated by an association official, "we were presented with a book of instructions for our future guidance and, of course, we could not obey. We knew for some time there had been work by agitators among our men, but we were and are sure of fealty from most of the employees."

What was considered a blow at the heart of local industry was a withdrawal of a shift of electricians from the 8000-kilowatt power plant at Roosevelt, from which comes the larger supply of power. Then there was the dropping of work by fifteen linemen at Camp, below Phoenix, where they were stringing wires for the new pump drainage system. A few more association employees dropped off at other points, but there was no paralysis. The steam plant of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company at once was fired up and Phoenix was well supplied Saturday night. Manager W. R. Elliott of the association has gone to Roosevelt to adjust matters there.

The Inspiration Copper Company, ordinarily a heavy power consumer from Roosevelt, has been supplying most of its own power at Miami and can handle its own needs as only a part of its mill is operating. In addition, the association has valley power plants on the canal systems near Tempe, Lehi and Mesa, developing 9000 kilowatts.

At the same time there was a strike of about thirty electrical employees of the Southwest Cotton Company, mainly on pumping works south of Chandler, where electricity from the valley system is used to secure water for the irrigation of thousands of acres of cotton plants now only a few inches above ground. Loss of this cotton could be prevented if needed by a diversion of reservoir water to the lands.

Union labor officials have been quoted as stating that the electrical workers' union here now has membership of 850. They claim that more than 100 have quit employment to enforce the demands made. The Pacific Gas and Electric Company is strictly open shop and the water users have held to the same policy.

The soldier guard maintained for several years at Roosevelt was withdrawn several months ago. Now there are, beside the electricians, a number of watchmen and twenty-five workmen, the latter installing a new valve system in the service pipes through the dam.

Hywell Davis, Federal mediator, with headquarters here, has been instructed by the Department of Labor to investigate.

SAYS GOVERNMENT IN DANGER IF DRYS FAIL.

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) June 9.—Prohibition, with its social consequences, was the subject of discussion at yesterday's session of the national conference of social workers. Wayne B. Wheeler of Washington, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League of America, said the great issue before this country now is "Shall the Constitution be sustained and shall the law be enforced?"

"If we fail at this point, the government itself is in jeopardy," he declared. "If the brewers can nullify the eighteenth amendment because they do not like it, then any other group of people may set aside any other policy of law or the Constitution which is obnoxious to them."

ANGELENO WINS AD CLUB ORATORY CUP.

PORTLAND (Or.) June 9.—Business sessions of the Pacific Coast Ad Clubs, now in session here, started today.

In an oratorical contest on the topic, "Why Industries Should Come to the Pacific Coast—What My Community Offers," Bert Butterworth of Los Angeles won first prize, a loving cup; R. E. Bigelow of Spokane took second prize, and Roland Ayres of San Francisco third. Other cities represented in the contest were Seattle, Sacramento, Oakland, Modesto, Cal., and Pendleton, Or.

Los Angeles and Stockton delegates were said to be trying to land the next year's convention of Pacific Coast Ad Clubs and there were indications Los Angeles would withdraw in favor of Stockton.

YANK FORCES APPEAR 100 TIMES REAL NUMBER

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

BILLINGS (Mont.) June 9.—How American forces in Italy, at the cost of incessant marching and countermarching, gave the Austrians opposing them the impression of a hundred times their actual number, was described by Rev. F. O. Kelly, chaplain of the Three Hundred and Thirty-second Infantry, upon his return home here recently.

American forces numbering less than 5000 men, according to Chaplain Kelly, were estimated by Austrian intelligence officers as 500,000 men. From a base the men would be marched to a spot within sight of an Austrian observation balloon, and as soon as darkness fell would be marched quietly back to the base. Next morning they would move conspicuously to another camp, only to return to their base the next night. One day the troops would wear their service hats of felt, the next their overseas caps, and the next their steel helmets, in order to give the appearance of different detachments.

"We marched on an average of twenty miles a day for fifteen days, with full packs," said Chaplain Kelly. "It certainly became monotonous, and we were forced to the conclusion after a while that our staff officers were hopelessly mixed in their orders. The troops were not hauled either way, for it was desired that they spread out and look as numerous as possible in the day time, and at night the motor lorries were all used for transporting supplies.

"After the big drive started last October, we captured among thousands of other prisoners, an Austrian General Staff Officer. Questioned by our intelligence department, he said the lowest estimate of the Austrian intelligence department was that there were 500,000 Americans in Italy."

NATURAL GAS CASE PUT OVER TO FALL.

CROWDED WITH LITIGATION, COURT PUTS HEARING DOWN FOR OCTOBER.

Following a conference of all the parties interested, in Judge B. F. Bledsoe's chambers, yesterday, the hearing of the case of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation and the Southern California Gas Company, against the city of Los Angeles to restrain the enforcement of the ordinance approved by the people at the general elections last November, compelling these corporations to use natural gas in their service pipes, was set for Tuesday, October 14.

Judge Bledsoe said that his engagements would be such for the next three months that he could not hear the matter before fall. He also said there were but two questions involved in the case, both technical. One was, whether the use of natural gas would present any unusual opportunity for accidents to the users of such gas; the second, was whether there was to be had a sufficient and constant supply of the gas.

PEACE TO END EUROPE UNREST.

Hoover Says Economic Delirium Tremens will Pass.

System Depends on People Getting Back to Work.

Says Small States' Recovery will Astonish World.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, June 9.—"This sort of economic delirium tremens will end with peace," said Herbert C. Hoover, chairman of the Inter-Allied Food Commission, today, in discussing the situation in Europe and the need of financing different nations. Asked for a statement as to the financial requirements of Europe from the United States, during the next year, he said:

"Any statement is premised upon peace and the return of Europe to work. I do not take it we will finance any more wars in Europe, directly or indirectly, nor that we will provide money to enable the people of Europe to live without work, or to work part time, as at present. This sort of economic delirium tremens will end with peace.

"The amount of credits from the United States to Europe during the year after peace, revolved around the inability of the nations to pay for (a,) raw materials, machinery and tools; (b,) food; (c,) currency reorganization, and (d,) interest on money borrowed from our government.

NEEDS VARY.

"The volume of financial assistance needed and the solution therefor, varies with the situation in each state. Neutral states are flourishing and need cause no concern. Rumania, Greater Serbia, Bulgaria, Turkey, except Armenia, Arabia, Portugal, Greece and Hungary will be virtually self-supporting. In fact, some of them should be able to export food and other commodities.

"Poland and the Baltic states will produce almost enough bread, grains and vegetables for their own people, but will be short of fats. Czecho-Slovakia, Belgium and Finland have a larger import problem, for they always require breadstuffs, meats and fats. They must have working capital to reorganize their currencies, to provide raw material and meet the food problem for a while. The economic problems of most of these states are simple when compared to the larger European nations, and the world will be astonished with their recovery if they have peace.

GREAT POVERTY FORESEEN.

"There will be great poverty among individuals who have suffered loss directly from the war and those individuals will comprise a proper scene for charitable work for many years, but it will be individual, not national, as has been the case this last winter.

"The condition of Germany and German-Austria cannot be discussed intelligently until peace is signed. Of the 70,000,000 Germans in these two states, some 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 lived before the war by trade, by the import of raw material and export in exchange for food and other necessities, and these cannot be supported on the land. How they will pay an indemnity and at the same time secure credits for raw materials is a problem for the new commission whose duty it will be to secure maximum reparation. If they do not get raw material and food, they will never be able to pay indemnities. In any event one possibility that must not be overlooked is that 1,000,000 to 12,000,000 of this population may emigrate eastward or overseas under the economic pressure which will be their fate at best.

UPHILL LOAD TO PULL.

"The larger Allied states have, of course, an uphill load to pull in the resurrection of industry and their economic life. France has the smallest need of the three for food imports. Great Britain can feed herself largely from her colonies, but both will need financial help in providing credits for raw material and Italy will need not only assistance in raw materials, but in food supplies. They will also want relief from the payment of interest for some time on what they owe the American treasury.

Altogether the dominant problem in rehabilitation of Europe is one wholly of credits with which to buy overseas and if such financing can be provided Europe should be on a self-supporting basis within another year.

"Whether the United States will undertake a third stage in our intervention in Europe must be for Congress to decide. The first stage was to end the war, the second to feed the people until peace and harvest and the third may be to urge us to give our financial assistance to bring back economic life.

"In my own personal view the largest part of the credits required from the United States should be provided by private credits and we should except for certain limited purposes, stop lending the money of our government. Credits next year are required for business operations and when governments are engaged in business they always overspend and the years to come must be years of economy, not extravagance.

HALF BILLION NEEDED.

"I feel that something like half a billion dollars' assistance from the American government may be needed to join with the other Allies in the reorganization of the currencies of the new states and to take care of some particularly acute and otherwise unsolvable situations.

"On the other hand, much larger sums will be required from private credit for raw material and food, and in order to secure that, the private credits to governments, and especially to individuals, should be established.

"We may have some further political revolutions in Europe because the social pendulum has not reached the point of stability in some spots, but in my view the greater danger of the red terror and destruction by Bolshevism has been greatly mitigated and will have actually passed in some countries on the signing of peace."

Babies Victims of Impure Milk.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) June 9.—Deaths of fourteen babies at the Waverly Baby Home within a period of ten days last month, were declared today to have been caused by milk from a diseased cow, in a report filed with the health department by E. F. Parnot, city bacteriologist.

MOVEMENTS OF TRANSPORTS.

ARRIVALS—ASSIGNMENTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, June 9.—More than 7000 troops were landed today from the transports President Grant and Winifredian, which reached here from Brest. The Winifredian had 2400 officers and men of the Twenty-third Engineers.

On the President Grant were detachments of the Twenty-first and Five Hundred and Fourth Engineers, hospital and supply units and casuals from Oregon and other States.

NEW YORK, June 9.—The transport Savoie with 418 casuals on board arrived here today.

Four transports—the Susquehanna, Freedom, Housatonic and Minnesota—arrived here today with 7000 officers and men. The Minnesota brought the first of the Eighty-first (Wildcat) Division and the Three Hundred and Sixteenth Field Artillery complete.

The Susquehanna brought the Thirty-second Engineers complete and a detachment of the Five Hundred and Eleventh Engineers.

The Freedom had on board the Two Hundred and Fourteenth and Two Hundred and Seventy-ninth military police units.

On the Housatonic were the Three Hundred and Fifteenth supply train and bakery company 307.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Co. L of the Three Hundred and Thirty-ninth Infantry, in addition to the units announced Saturday, has sailed from Archangel, the War Department announced today.

BOSTON, June 9.—The transport Calamares, carrying troops from Brest, was ordered diverted to this port, in radio orders announced by naval officials here today.

ESTHONIANS, HUNS CLASH.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

STOCKHOLM, June 9.—Esthonian forces have clashed with German landwehr troops in the region east of Riga, where Lettish detachments have also been in serious fighting with the Germans, according to an official statement.

LONDON, June 9.—The Esthonian General Staff considers itself forced to start military operations against the Germans, says a Helsingfors dispatch to the Mail. This action is in consequence of the action of Germans in the Riga district in advancing behind the Bolshevik lines for the purpose of occupying the eastern frontier of Livonia, which, with a treacherous attack upon the Esthonians by the German cavalry, under orders from Gen. Von der Goltz, commander of the German forces in the Baltic region, it is said, "unmasked the Germans as accomplices of the Bolsheviki."

COPENHAGEN (Sunday) June 8.—Kreitzburg and Jakobstadt, important towns southeast of Riga, have been occupied by Esthonian forces, while farther south Lithuanian troops are approaching Dvinsk, according to an official statement.

FOUNDER OF NATIVE DAUGHTERS ARRIVES.

BERKELEY AND BEAR FLAG PARLORS ACT AS HOSTESSES AT CONVENTION.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

BERKELEY, June 9.—Native Daughters of the Golden West, five hundred strong and representing upward of 200 parlors throughout California, are here today to attend the thirty-third Grand Parlor which opens tonight. The first of the delegates began to arrive yesterday with Mrs. Lily Reichling, Ursula Parlor No. 1, Amador county, founder of the order and wife of the United States Consul at Nogales, Mexico, in the lead. Throughout the session which will extend to Saturday morning, she will be a distinguished figure.

Berkeley Parlor No. 150 and Bear Flag Parlor No. 151 represented by Miss Sue J. Irwin, Berkeley, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Lottie Dizon and Mrs. Julia A. Bolton, Maud Wagner, Mrs. Emma Bergemann, in the role of official hostesses to the State convention, are receiving the visitors.

The Grand Parlor will be formally opened this evening when Mrs. Addie L. McSher calls the body together.

Mayor Samuel A. Irving on behalf of Berkeley; Ira Morris, on behalf of the Berkeley Chamber of Commerce, and Prof. H. E. Bolton of the faculty of the University of California will make the addresses of welcome.

Morning and afternoon sessions will be exclusively for delegates. The Wednesday and Friday evening sessions will be limited to members of the Grand Parlor. Other evening meetings are open to visitors. An exemplification of the secret work of the order will be given on Wednesday. Tomorrow night the grand officers and delegates will be made the guests of honor at a grand ball.

Flag Day will be observed on Thursday night when Dr. Marianna Bertola, former Grand President, and R. T. Fisher, director of the habilitation work for soldiers in San Francisco district, will be the speakers.

The opening session tonight was given over to addresses of welcome and a musical programme. The first business session will be held tomorrow.

Election of officers is scheduled for Thursday afternoon and adjournment for Saturday morning.

No opposition has developed, delegates said, to the elevation to the presidency of Mary E. Bell of San Francisco, now Grand Vice-President.

ENSIGN HAGUE GIVES OFFICERS' AID CREDIT.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—For the first time in the history of the Annapolis Naval Academy first honors in the graduating class have been won by an enlisted man of the navy, who won the right to enter the academy through competitive examination. Wesley McLaren Hague of San Diego stood first, his mark being nearly twenty points higher than that of his nearest competitor.

Before the graduating exercises Ensign Hague was invited to the home of Admiral Scales, superintendent of the academy, where he was presented to the Secretary of the Navy, Admiral Mayo, commander of the United States fleet, and a number of other ranking officers of the navy.

In replying to congratulations Ensign Hague said much of the credit for his successful entrance to and career in the academy was due to the officers who helped him, while an enlisted man, prepare for his examinations.

Ensign Hague, whose home is in San Diego, enlisted in the navy, February 18, 1915, at San Diego. He was born in Chicago, October 8, 1897. August 1, 1916, he was admitted to the academy. He was appointed midshipman-at-large from the navy after winning in competitive examination for which he was coached by Lieut. William Crane, one of the officers under whom he was serving as midshipman.

Hague commanded the First Battalion and was awarded the navigational sextant for excellence in practical and theoretical navigation. He also won the cup presented by the Daughters of the American Revolution for excellence in seamanship and navigational law. In addition, he won the prize sword, presented by the class of 1877, as the midshipman most efficient in practical and theoretical ordnance and gunnery.

GRAPES ARE WITHOUT FOOD VALUE, CLAIM.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—Arguments were resumed here today before the Federal court in the suit of Ephraim Light, wine grower of Napa county, seeking to restrain the United States Attorney from enforcing the war-time prohibition act.

Theodore A. Bell, representing the plaintiff, submitted an affidavit by Louis S. Wetmore, general manager of the California Wine Association, which showed that the California association had spent $250,000 in a futile effort to prove that the grape had a food value, when prepared as grape juice, grape sugar and other products.

At the conclusion of the arguments the court continued the hearing for fifteen days to allow each side to file briefs.

CONSERVATIVE UNION LEADER IS MISSING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) June 9.—H. A. Elder, secretary of the local union of boilermarkers, was reported to the police today to be missing. Union officials said Elder had been called from his hotel about midnight Saturday by a telephone call. His automobile was found in a distant part of the city Sunday, badly battered and showing signs of a long trip.

Fellow-members said Elder had been the chief spokesman for the conservative element in the union and had aroused the strong hostility of radical members.

DEMOCRAT POLITICAL MACHINE, IS CHARGE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Charges that a Democratic "political machine" in Kansas City, Mo., was able to prevent enforcement of Federal laws as well as to bring about the illegal election of Democratic candidates for Congress were made before the House Elections Committee today by David Proctor, attorney for Albert L. Reaves, Republican contestant for the seat in the House held by William T. Bland, Democrat.

THE CITY AND ENVIRONS.

To Give Organ Recital.

Clarence Albert Tufts will give an organ recital this evening in the auditorium of the Bible Institute.

On His Birthday.

Former Judge Archibald Mayo will entertain the members of the Octogenarian Club, tomorrow, in honor of his eighty-first birthday, at his home, 816 Beacon street.

Graded Union to Meet.

The Los Angeles Graded Union will have its annual "outdoor institute" in Echo Park at 10 a.m. Wednesday. The programme will include exercises in the morning picnic at noon, and demonstrations and "stunts" in the afternoon.

Ventura County Picnic.

The annual meeting of the Ventura County Association of Los Angeles will be held in Sycamore Grove on next Saturday, the 14th, instead of last Saturday as announced. Basket lunch will be spread at 1 o'clock. All former and present residents of Ventura county are invited.

Two W.C.T.U. Meetings.

At the meeting of the Los Angeles W.C.T.U. in the First Methodist Church at 2 p.m. Thursday, Rev. F. A. Walker of Boyle Heights Presbyterian church, will speak on his war work overseas. At the session of the Central W.C.T.U. in Temperance Temple at 2 p.m., Friday, flower mission work will be discussed by State Superintendent Mrs. Marian Boyd Scarce and Miss Goldie Upham.

Advertising Club Luncheon.

At the luncheon of the Advertising Club of Los Angeles at the Hotel Clark at noon today Maj. Walter K. Tuller of the law firm of O'Melveny, Milliken & Tuller will speak on "American Accomplishments;" Manager Carl J. Walker of Pantages Theater will provide a vaudeville surprise, and the Boy Scouts will give a brief clever exhibition of their work.

Maine Picnic Saturday.

President Hutchinson of the Pine Tree State Association is completing plans for the big Southern California Maine picnic reunion in Sycamore Grove, all day Saturday. He has arranged for county headquarters and registers for the entire day, hot coffee, souvenir badges, and a programme, following the basket dinners at noon. All are asked to bring cups spoons, dinners and appetites. Coffee will be free to all who buy the new badges. The programme will be brief and snappy and the main idea for the whole day will be to have a good time. Everyone who ever lived in the State of Maine is invited.

MAKE CHANGE IN PLANS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, June 9.—Alternative plans for the proposed memorial auditorium here were considered at a special meeting of the City Council, at which it was decided that radical changes must be made in the designs to keep the cost within the sum available from the sale of the $40,000 in municipal bonds, just ratified by the voters. Certain offices and other rooms, which were provided in the original plans, must be eliminated.

RECORD HIGH PRICE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

DINUBA, June 9.—All previous high record prices paid for vineyards went by the board in the reported sale by W. F. Venard of Coalinga, an oil operator of that place, of a twenty-six acre bearing vineyard in the Reedley district north of here, for $78,000, or at the rate of $1200 an acre. This is by nearly $100 an acre the highest price ever paid in the Alta district for property of this class. The land is planted about equally with Thompson, Malaga and Sultana grapes.

BACK FROM PANAMA.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

IMPERIAL, June 9.—J. D. Daily arrived here this week from the Panama Canal, where he has been associated for the past six years with the dredging division. Mrs Daily, who accompanied him, is a daughter of D. C. Gale, the local Southern Pacific agent. Mr. Daily expects to make his home in the valley, in all probability taking an interest in a service station opened recently at Calipatria by his brother-in-law, Kenneth Gale.

BUSINESS MAN DIES.

Pioneer Jewelry Manufacturer of San Diego Passes Away.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERKELEY, June 9.—Kinzey Naylor, pioneer jewelry manufacturer of San Diego, died in Berkeley, last night, following an attack of heart failure, at the age of 70. Naylor is the father of Byron Naylor and Horace Naylor, both prominent business men of San Diego, and is a brother of A. W. Naylor, former president of the First National Bank of Berkeley. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Emily Naylor, of San Diego. The remains will be shipped to San Diego this afternoon, where the funeral will be held Wednesday.

SCORES MODERN CHURCH.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, June 9.—The Christian church, as a whole, has no message for the people, and "for the past twenty years the religious knowledge of the people has been growing rapidly less." This was the charge that the Rev. Andrew Gilles of San Francisco made, in the course of an address, delivered at the Pacific union conference of the Seventh Day Adventists, in session at Mooney Grove.

At the closing session, last evening, the delegates chose the directors of the Lodi Academy, including H. E. Shaw of Fresno, F. E. Brown of Hanford, G. A. Gauer of Modesto, Clarence Santee of Lodi, P. H. Glantz of Lodi and C. Stone of Lodi.

ARREST BELL BOY.

SANTA BARBARA, June 9.—Max Asch, bell boy at a local hotel, was sentenced today to six months in the County Jail for the theft of a $2500 bracelet from Mrs. E. W. Fayben of Manchester, Mass., a guest at the hotel. The bracelet was recovered after having been buried on the beach.

ASK FOR INCREASE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, June 9.—Representatives of the State Railroad Commission have under advisement the petition of three warehouse owners of this district, asking for an increase in their storage rates. The increases for which request is made range from 60 cents to $1 per ton, increasing costs of labor being given as the chief contributing cause for the increase

HELPS WILSON SAVE HIS LAND.

Angeleno Pays President's Taxes to Prevent Him Being Delinquent.

George A. Fox, of this city paid President Wilson's taxes on an Indio ranch yesterday, according to a dispatch from Riverside. When it became known that the President's ranch was in danger of being sold for delinquent taxes and costs, Mr. Fox wired C. R. Stibbens, County Tax Collector at Riverside, that he was forwarding his check for $37.21 to pay the bill.

"The President is looking after our interests over there," said Mr. Fox in his message, "and we should keep things straight for him overe here." Secretary Tumulty wired from Washington to Riverside yesterday to know if the President's land taxes in that city had been paid. He was promptly advised that the nation's chief executive was absolutely square with the board in that city.

TWO HURT BY CAR.

Traffic Policeman and Civilian Are Oddly Injured.

Patrolman V. B. Eubanks, crossing officer at Seventh and Los Angeles streets, and Herman Barney of 134 North Kingsley drive, were injured late yesterday when they were struck by a Pacific Electric car, No. 832, of the Hawthorne line, outbound, at Seventh and Los Angeles streets. Eubanks is suffering from lacerations of the head and numerous cuts and abrasions, and Barney was given treatment for several lacerations.

According to the car company officials the accident occurred when the inside step of the car, which was in charge of Conductor H. W. James and Motorman S. C. McBey, struck Barney, who was standing near Eubanks at his crossing post, and threw him against the officer, causing both men to fall against the car. The car company officials claim the car was not going over four miles an hour.

Eubanks was too dazed when brought to the hospital to be able to give an account of how the accident happened. He said he thought he was directing the traffic north and south in Los Angeles street when the car, east bound, struck him. Barney's story to the hospital attaches did not add any details.

NAT GOODWIN'S RANCH IS SOLD.

Investor will Stock it with Cattle and Swine.

Realizes Life Dream by its Purchase, He States.

Late Comedian's Parents are Sellers of Property.

The famous Nat Goodwin ranch of 870 acres at San Jacinto has been sold to R. H. Gibson, an investor residing at 42 St. James Park, it became known yesterday. Mr. Gibson entered into a contract with the Goodwin estate some time ago to purchase the ranch, and the final papers will probably be transferred today, it is stated.

Mr. Gibson said last night that he is buying the ranch for himself, and that he will immediately stock it with thoroughbred cattle and swine. He denied the rumor that the ranch was being purchased by him for D. W. Griffith, the film producer.

"I am getting the Goodwin ranch more for a plaything than anything else," said Mr. Gibson. "It has been the ambition of my life to raise thoroughbred stock, and now is my chance. As soon as I take possession of the place I shall stock it with high-grade Holstein and Jersey cattle, and Poland China and Duroc Jersey hogs. I am partial to those breeds because those are the names I am particularly familiar with. I epect to remodel both of the ranch houses and will occpy one of them myself part of the time."

The purchase price was not given out, but it is understood to have been around $150,000. The ranch has at various times been valued at $300 per acre, it is said. It consists of two big fauns which lie side by side.

When Nat Goodwin bought the ranch about eight years ago, he spent money lavishly in making improvements. Three hundred acres of alfalfa were put in, and a large acreage of citrus fruits was planted. Mr. Goodwin spent money freely in developing 100 inches of deep well water for the place, and the best grade of iron pipe was used in creating the irrigation system.

In 1915, during the midwinter rainy season, a break in the San Jacinto River banks allowed a torrent of flood water to pour down across one corner of the ranch, washing 140 acres of it quite badly, and causing the noted actor to engage in expensive lawsuits in quest of damages.

At about that time the comedian's fortune began to dwindle. The ranch appeared to develop into a white elephant, interest payments taxing the actor severely, it is stated. The 300 acres of alfalfa were allowed to go unirrigated, and the crop finally died out and was plowed up. It will be planted again in the near future, however. Most of the land is highly productive, and is especially adapted to live-stock raising.

When the distinguished Thespian died in New York a few months ago, what was left of his fortune went to his father and mother, who are both past 80 years of age. The estate is being settled up for them by a local attorney.

FILM COMPANY GETS A FAMOUS RECRUIT.

NOTED CARTOONIST SETS UP STUDIO HERE WITH COL. CHILDERS IN CHARGE.

The motion-picture colony has gained another resident, Col. Herbert H. Childers of New York and Washington having come here in the interests of the McCauley Masterpictures Corporation. For several years past Col. Childers has been associated with Col. House in his work with the administration in Washington. After living in San Francisco for two months, he has decided to make Los Angeles his home. He is now at the Alexandria.

The McCauley company had an unusual inception. In 1917 in Philadelphia a convention was held by the League to Enforce Peace. At that time William Howard Taft, with the Governors of thirty-eight States, signed in Independence Hall a document known as "The Declaration of International Inter-dependence." They used the same chairs and room that was used by the original signers of our declaration. Charles M. McCauley, who for years was cartoonist with the New York World, conceived the idea of preserving the event in motion pictures. Later at the suggestion of Mr. Taft and with the indorsement of President Wilson a number of propaganda pictures were planned. Around this first scene a play was constructed under the title of "Whom the Gods Would Destroy." It is an indictment of autocracy.

Among other pictures planned in the interests of Americanism is one on Bolshevism. Mr. McCauley has opened a studio here and has engaged Nicholas A. Dunaew, a Russian revolutionist and anti-Bolshevist, as director.

BRITISH VETERAN S SEE SHOW GRATIS.

That every returned British soldier may have an opportunity to see the British play at the Mason this week, "The Better 'Ole," arrangements were made last night at a meeting of the British Soldiers' Aid Society, at the Hotel Westminster, for men in uniform to be admitted free. Those desiring tickets are asked to call at the headquarters in the Hotel Westminster today and tomorrow and secure the tickets.

Harry B. Crouch was last night elected chairman of the Entertainment Committee which has this matter in charge. He will be associated with Miss Geraldine Mortimer and Mrs. Evelyn Robinson. The men who fought in Flanders field are to be the guests of the organization. This is the first time that such an invitation has been issued.

MANIAC CURSES DYING VICTIM

Shooter of Philanthropist Raves in His Cell.

Declares Love for Children Prompted Deed.

Jewish Charities Director is Desperately Hurt.

"I shot him and I hope he dies. He refused me money for a railroad ticket back to my home where I wanted to go before I die and see my little children. He could have given me the money, but he refused, so I shot him. If I had been strong enough I would have shot the rest, too, and then killed myself!"

With tears streaming down his face, Lewis Goldfried, 30 years of age, racked with a cough which has torn his lungs to pieces, yesterday made this confession to Detective Sergeants Herman Cline and Sid Hickok after shooting and probably fatally wounding Caesar Samuels, 70 years of age, of 425 Loraine drive, retired capitalist, manager of the Jewish Free Loan Association, director of the Federation of Jewish Charities, and well-known Los Angeles philanthropist.

While hundreds of his friends gathered at the Receiving Hospital where police surgeons struggled to save his life, Mr. Samuels begged to be allowed to see his aged wife, and in broken tones assured her that he would live. In the jail at the same time, Goldfried was wailing for his three children and his wife, cursing his victim and shouting out his hopes that he will die.

From statements made by Mr. Samuels and other members of the Jewish Charities, as well as by Goldfried himself, the police learned that the prisoner has been in this city for about eight months. He came here from Youngstown, O., where his wife and three children now reside at 262 Adams street. He is suffering from an incurable disease and has been unable to work.

TO SEE CHILDREN.

Some time ago according to Mr. Samuels, Goldfried called at the Jewish Charities headquarters at 242 North Bunker Hill street and asked for aid. He was given a small sum of money and told to return as his case was under investigation and if he proved worthy he would be sent home. During his first visit Goldfried stated that he would soon die and wanted to see his wife and three children, the youngest only six months old and whom he had never seen, before the end.

"I felt when I left the place," said Goldfried yesterday, "that they would never help me return to my little children. I knew that they were laughing at me behind my back and hoping that I would soon die. Well I have known for a long time that I would have to die within the year, and that doctors could do me no good. I thought the whole thing out and made up my mind to kill Mr. Samuels as he was the one keeping me from my children. I would like to have killed them all, but I am too weak. I tried to kill myself after the shooting, but I didn't have enough strength to pull the trigger again, so I just sat down on the sidewalk and waited for the police. They will never hang me because I will die first. I want to die, but oh I want to see my children first."

At the Good Samaritan Hospital, where Mr. Samuels was removed from the Receiving Hospital, small hope is held for his life. The bullet, according to surgeons, entered just above the heart and passed clear through the body. It was removed from below the left arm, having passed through the left lung.

Mr. Samuels, before coming to this city was a wholesale merchant of Chicago, where he resided for over thirty years. He retired from active business about fifteen years ago and four years ago came to this city with his wife. He purchased a home here and at once entered into relief work. He has been prominent for years in the Jewish Federation of Charities and has donated large sums of money to assist the poor Jews of the city. Mrs. B. R. Meyers of 301 South Gramercy place, a niece and his wife are the only relations known to be in this city.

Goldfried, who according to the police is insane from suffering, is being held on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. If Mr. Samuels fails to recover the charge will be changed to murder.

STORY OF WITNESS.

William Dussy, janitor of the Federation of Jewish Charities Building at Temple and Bunker Hill streets, where the shooting took place, said:

"Mr. Samuels stood inside of his office at 242 Bunker Hill street, while the man who shot him stood in the doorway. Mr. Samuels had come to the door to speak to him. The man shot him in the breast once and as Mr. Samuels turned the man shot at him again, but missed.

"When I came Goldfried was standing there. He turned and walked toward Temple street. He opened his revolver and shook out the two used shells and put in two fresh ones which he took from his coat pocket. I grabbed him by the arm, but he made no effort to escape. He sat on the curbing and waited until the policemen came. While he sat there he said to me, 'I wanted help and they would not give it to me. I intended to shoot the whole mob of them if they did not help me, and then kill myself.'"

The man, Mr. Dussy said, is evidently a user of drugs or tubercular.

FASTER STEAMER FOR MAGIC ISLE SERVICE.

WRIGLEY TO PURCHASE LARGER BOAT IN NEW YORK, CUT DOWN TIME.

Santa Catalina Island will have a new and faster passenger steamer in service this summer, if negotiations soon to be started by William Wrigley, Jr., for a vessel now on the Atlantic seaboard, are successfully concluded. This announcement was made yesterday by David Blankenhorn, vice-president of the Santa Catalina Island Company, before departing for Chicago, where he will meet Mr. Wrigley and Capt. William Banning. Together they will go to New York, and if a vessel now under examination by a company representative measures up to the claims of its owners it probably will be purchased by Mr. Wrigley, according to Mr. Blankenhorn, and brought to Los Angeles.

Since Mr. Wrigley and his local associates took over the ownership of the island the daily passenger service to Catalina has been greatly increased through an extensive national advertising campaign, and this increased business, Mr. Blankenhorn says, has heavily taxed the capacity of the boats in service. The company's plan is also to cut down the running time between the island and the harbor, and thus to facilitate daily and week-end trips.

One of the developments now under way on the island is the construction of eighty houses for persons intending to have their summer homes there. These houses are all of the better type of construction and embody every modern convenience.

WOOLWINE ILL, HALTS HENDERSON'S TRIAL.

ATTACK OF INDIGESTION INTERRUPTS TESTIMONY OF HORACE KARR.

Testimony in the trial of George Henderson, accused of offering and giving a bribe for alleged police protection, was interrupted yesterday and the case was adjourned in the middle of the afternoon session when Dist.-Atty. Woolwine suddenly became ill. The case will be resumed today, providing Mr. Woolwine has recovered sufficiently to again take up the examination of Horace W. Karr, who was on the stand at the time. Mr. Woolwine said he felt faint and was suffering from a severe case of indigestion.

A new element was introduced into the case when George Brown, a negro politician and gambler, and one of the State's main witnesses, claimed in testimony that Henderson took an additional $1000 from their business, with the understanding that he was to add it to a like sum, said to have already been given Horace W. Karr. He said that Henderson placed the money to his own credit in a local bank.

Brown completed his testimony and said he would leave at once for Imperial Valley.

BEARING THANKS OF BELGIUM'S KING.

FIRST PROTESTANT CHAPLAIN OF ALBERT'S ARMY HERE AS GUEST OF CITY.

Maj. Pierre Blommaert, one of the heroes in the recent world conflict, and the first Protestant chaplain in the Belgian army, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday. He is the guest of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, and came to this country as the official representative of King Albert, his mission being to present the thanks of the King on behalf of the Belgian people to the people of the United States.

During the week Maj. Blommaert will fill several engagements in Los Angeles and vicinity, his first address to be given at the Union League Club Wednesday noon. Wednesday evening he will address a union meeting at the First M. E. Church, Glendale, and Thursday evening a union meeting at the First M. E. Church, San Diego. Friday noon, Rotary Club luncheon. Friday afternoon, Women's City Club, Long Beach. On Sunday morning he will speak at the First M. E. Church, Pasadena, and on Sunday evening at the Immanuel Presbyterian and First M. E. churches, Los Angeles. He will make a brief address at the Methodist preachers' meeting Monday morning, and will speak at the Presbyterian preachers' meeting Monday afternoon.

JEFFRIES'S NEW LINE.

Former Champion Pugilist will be Burbank Stage Driver.

Jim Jeffries, former champion pugilist, yesterday appeared before the Public Utilities Commission and applied for a permit to operate an interurban stage line between Burbank and vicinity and Los Angeles. He stated that his purpose is to provide a reliable service for the transportation to Los Angeles of milk and other ranch and garden products of the Burbank section.

In addition to the required permit, Mr. Jeffries also makes application for a driver's permit, as he states that he intends to hold himself in readiness to act as a driver for his stage line in cases of emergency. He will operate several auto trucks, he says.

A hearing on the stage line application will be held by the Board of Public Utilities next Monday.

KICKS ON LIGHT CHARGE.

Protests against the confirmation of assessments for the ornamental lighting of Westmoreland avenue, between Wilshire boulevard and West Seventh street, will be heard before the City Council at 10 o'clock on the forenoon of July 2, decided the City Council yesterday.

ON PROBATION BOARD.

Dr. Dorothea Moore was appointed a member of the Juvenile Probation Committee by the Board of Supervisors yesterday to fill the vacancy on the committee caused by the resignation of Mrs. Elizabeth Kress. This committee has charge of Juvenile Hall.

FAKER REAPING RICH HARVEST.

Los Angeles Ministers are Victims of Swindler.

Felon Would Return to Crime Unless He Gets Help.

Complaint is Lodged with the Police by Federation.

Los Angeles ministers and church officials, and probably others here and in near-by cities, have been victimized through an old swindle, with a new wrinkle, it became known yesterday, when the police were asked by the Church Federation for assistance in arresting a man, believed to be a fake "ex-convict" who had been working upon the sympathies of the ministers, to his large pecuniary profit.

According to the information given to Detective Sergt. Tom O'Brien, who was assigned by Chief Butler to investigate the case, the suspected swindler appeared successively at the residences of prominent Los Angeles ministers and obtained various sums of money, on the pretense that he was an ex-convict and would enter life of crime unless given assistance at once.

The man's story in its essentials, is that he had just been discharged from San Quentin, or Folsom, the stories differed on this score, and had tried to earn an honest living, but was turned down because of his past. Starved, penniless and despondent, the man told his intended victims, he was trying his last honest chance, and if turned down would give up the unequal battle and take the easiest way. Invariably the man succeeded in getting money, food, clothing and promises of work. He never showed up for the latter, however.

The matter was taken up by the Church Federation, to which the story of the alleged swindler's operations came from many different ministers. It was only after quite a few had reported the facts, and the similarity of the methods of operation were noted, that it was decided to make an investigation and the police were called.

Among the Los Angeles ministers swindled was Dr. Charles Edward Locke. Dr. Locke helped his caller and was ready to help him again, when the man failed to return at the appointed time.

Letters warning the members of the organization of the operations of the suspected fake ex-convict were printed by the Church Federation and sent to all the ministers in Los Angeles. This action, according to Miss Clara B. Horner, assistant secretary of the federation, was taken following a meeting of the executive committee, at which the matter was discussed.

The police believe the man reported figuring in the convict swindle is an old timer, and is probably a member of a gang of nation-wide beggars and swindlers of that type. That his operations along this line would easily bring him hundreds of dollars in each city, and that most of the ministers would become his victims, with but little chance of detection, is the belief of the officers working on the case.

SEAPLANES TO PATROL HERE.

Five on Way to San Diego to Start Service Along the Pacific Coast.

SAN DIEGO, June 9.—Aerial coast patrol service between San Francisco and San Diego will be established soon, with a flotilla of F-5-L type naval seaplanes, according to announcement made today by Commander W. R. Spencer, Jr., commandant of the naval air station here.

Five of these huge seaplanes were shipped from the East, May 12, and are expected to arrive this week at the trans-bay naval air academy. The F-5-L ships are equipped with two 360-horse-power Liberty motors and carry a crew of six men. They have a speed of eighty-five miles an hour.

Commander Spencer further announced that two naval seaplanes, sent aboard the cruiser Minneapolis to Portland, for flights during the rose festival, are to be shipped from Portland to Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. The seaplanes will be assembled on the shores of a lake near Coeur d'Alene and later will make a number of exhibition flights. The seaplanes will be piloted by Ensigns Lee and McMurray.

TELLS OF SEA TRADE.

Port's Business Nearly Six Million During April.

The Harbor Commission yesterday issued a statement on the volume of commerce passing through the port of Los Angeles in the month of April. This shows a grand total of 196,344 tons of merchandise, valued at $5,569,358. The total inbound commerce was 76,128 tons, valued at $3,677,924, and the total outbound commerce was 120,706 tons, valued at $1,892,331. The number of commercial vessels arriving was 136, with tonnage of 192,535 tons. There were 192 vessels departing, with tonnage of 192,552 tons.

The People and Their Troubles

LETTER TO JUDGE TAFT.

On the Subject of "The Vernon Night Stench."

Judge Fred W. Taft,
Superior Court.
Honored sir:

Your vividly pointed lecture on the "Vernon Night Stench," as published in today's Times, will be sincerely applauded by all decent-minded people—those who carry principles among life's impediments, and try to hitch their wagons to your "guiding star of ideals."

Permit me to ask if you think "clean-minded women" do go there? Would not the cleanliness depart after one mud bath? Unless, indeed, the old joke is true about a woman's mind being cleaner than a man's because she changes it oftener! Even then, are there not some mental and moral stains that will not "out, damned spot!" quoting Lady Macbeth?

Also, is it not frequently true that the "convenient, detached gentleman, ready to protect innocence (?) on such a trip," is merely automatically self-detachable from marital ties when the "Vernon Night Stench" once gets into his nostrils, stealing away brains and honor?

Your clean-cut comments have suggested the following parodies:

AT VERNON.

Where is my wand'ring ma to-night?
I want a ma's tender care!
A ma that will give me joy and light,
And teach me to say my prayer

O where is my ma tonight?
O where is my ma tonight?
A man took her 'way,
Till the break of the day,
O where is my ma tonight?

He gave me a penny and winked at me,
I don't like him one bit;
He said, "My wife's as dull as can be,
Gee! Cutie, you are IT!"

O where is my ma tonight?
O where is my ma tonight?
When she comes back,
Her feet won't track!
O where is my ma tonight?

There, little girl, don't cry!
Your ma may stay home by and by,
Probably round the first of July—
That is, if Vernon really goes dry!

A COUPLE OF OLD STORIES.

La Baionnette, a Paris paper, prints these two examples of French wit of the sixteenth century:

King Henry IV, while driving in Paris, saw an old man with white hair and a coal black beard. The King stopped his carriage and asked the old man how it came that his hair was white and his beard black.

"Sire," answer the old man, "it is because my hair is twenty years older than my beard."

A physician, having a sick horse, called a veterinarian, who drenched the animal and cured it.

"My friend," said the physician, "what do I owe you?"

"No charge, sir," said the veterinarian. "We don't take pay from men in the profession."

He was very black, and in his khaki he looked like coffee and chocolate ice cream. After eating a hearty meal in the American Red Cross canteen he sat down with a book, near the counter. The kind-hearted directress looked once or twice in his direction and was surprised to see big tears rolling down his cheeks.

"Why, now this will never do!" she said kindly. "Is there anything I can do to help you?"

He dug his knuckles into his eyes and replied:

"I sholy am ashamed to make a baby outen myself, ma'am. This yer book done make me so homesick!"

She picked up the book he had been reading. It was the canteen cook-book, and it was opened at the section on "How to Fry Chicken."—[Saturday Evening Post.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Q.: How many negro soldiers were there from the United States in the world war? K. N. L.

A.: Over 400,000 negro soldiers were enrolled in the United States army during the war and nearly half of this number went overseas.

Q.: Do lightning rods furnish protection? A. S. D.

A.: Lightning rods may not prevent strokes but they keep those from doing damage by leading them along the roll to the ground, thus protecting the building. The government issues a bulletin on lightning rods which can be secured through our Washington Information Bureau.

Q.: How can lawn ants be exterminated? V. S.

A.: The bureau of entomology of the department of agriculture says: In case of lawn ants where only a few nests are concerned, drenching the nests with boiling water or injecting a small quantity of kerosene will be effective. For larger ant colonies inject into the nest a quantity of disulphid of carbon, which can be purchased at any drug store.

Q.: How long has the Statue of Liberty occupied its present place? T. M.

A.: The Statue of Liberty was unveiled and lighted in the autumn of 1886. It was designed by the French sculpter Barthoudi, is made of bronze and is a 150 feet high. The top of the torch is more than 300 feet above the water.

Q.: Where is the largest buffalo herd in the world? J. J. H.

A.: The herd in Wainwright Park, Alberta, Canada contained 3500 animals in 1918. This is believed to be the largest herd in the world. There is also a good sized herd in Yellowstone Park.

Q.: Do many people live to be over a hundred? E. F. H.

A.: According to the census of 1910 there were then in the United States 3555 persons of 100 years of age and over. Of these 1380 were men and 2175 were women.

CAMELS LIKE TOBACCO.

Dromedaries and camels are passionately addicted to tobacco and can be made to do almost anything under its influence, according to stories from the East. The driver carries a triangular piece of wood, which is pierced at one point like a cigar holder. This is inserted in the beast's mouth, a cigar-like roll of tobacco being then lit and pressed into the hole. The camel immediately closes its eyes and puffs away through his mouth and nostrils till the tobacco is entirely consumed. It seems to thoroughly enjoy the experience. Furthermore, the nicotine appears to exercise a stimulating and refreshing effect upon the animal, so that, though ready to all appearance to drop from fatigue before its smoke, it will plod on for many more miles after it.—[Detroit News.

A Campaign of Lies.

PACIFIC GROVE, June 7.—[To the Editor The Times]—Money talks! Money tells lies to make more money! In 1917 the United States Steel Corporation made net profits of $478,204,343 against only $46,520,476 in 1914. (The figures are from Report No. 1173 of the Sixty-fifth Congress, third session.) This of course was because of war opportunities. Many therefore want to continue conditions that make for more war, and are spending money to make the covenant for a League of Nations a political football to be kicked in party mud and mire.

Lies are being widely circulated as to what the league will do. As yet it has had no chance to do anything, for it has never met. It is still unborn.

Here are a few things it will NOT do.

It does NOT commit members to obligations they cannot get rid of.

It does NOT place the United States in a position where it can be coerced by the votes of other nations, either in the council or the assembly.

It does NOT involve the calling out of American soldiers to settle local squabbles.

It does NOT place peace above justice; but agrees to restrain and prevent aggression; does NOT obstruct union or division of existing nations; NOT nullify authority of Congress to declare war; NOT weaken the Monroe Doctrine, but extends its principles; NOT interfere in any nation's domestic affairs, and does NOT exceed the treaty power under the Constitution.

Don't let us permit ourselves to be fooled by those who make millions from mankind's miseries and war's horrors!

Let us at least give the new method a trial! Let us permit the League of Nations to come to birth, and see what development is possible. Do NOT let it be strangled by party rancor!

Could Graves be Elected?

LOS ANGELES, June 7.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Referring to J. A. Graves's letter in The Times this morning stating the reason Senator Hiram Johnson should not be nominated for President in 1920, why did he not also mention that any man taking the position he has against the League of Nations could not be elected for pound master? I believe three-fourths of the voters in the United States are in favor of the League of Nations, and I also hope and believe every Senator and Representative who votes against adopting the League of Nations will be politically doomed for any office in the future.

After the First. What?

PASADENA, June 5.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Will storms be permitted to brew after July 1?

Do the physicians of this country anticipate an epidemic of Ryeneck after same date?

Sundry gentlemen will have a nervous shock when they see the water waggin'. W. H. S.

Is this the Land of Liberty?

LOS ANGELES, June 8.—[To the Editor of The Times:] What will be the substitute for "Sweet Land of Liberty" after bone-dry prohibition goes into effect? Surely we won't have to stand with bared heads and perjure our souls like that. This movement is wrong in so many ways. There is something so baffling about the way it all happened, but above all is the psychology of it. This saying, "You can't," is so dangerous, so very dangerous, that we avoid it to get the best results.

Fanny Johnston is not the only woman against this fanatical movement, but we'll remain the power behind the throne until necessary to be otherwise.

Getting a Taste.

VENTURA, June 7.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I see by the London Times of June 7 that the Hun delegates at Versailles are suffering from sickness and nervousness caused by the food and the fact that they are kept behind wire inclosures. They are just getting a slight taste of what our boys had to contend with while in Hun prison camps during the war. A few other restrictions might bring them to their senses and make them realize that they have not won the war.

THE CONTRAST IN BELGIUM.

The bitter cry of Belgium for financial help is in tragic contrast to conditions in the little country before the war. To go to Belgium then was the cheapest—and pleasantest—holiday it was possible to take. Three dollars took you from St. Catherine's Dock to Ostend and back. On arriving in Belgium you could for $1.80 get a season ticket for a week, which took you everywhere. At Bruges you could stay in an excellent hotel for $1.40 to $1.60 a day, with all meals— and such meals: six courses and as many helpings as you could cope with.

At Malines hotels were even cheaper. I have stayed at a comfortable little hotel for $1 a day, lunch being omitted. Malines was the dormitory of Brussels and Antwerp, both of which could be reached comfortably by train in twenty minutes. For incredibly small sums you could take trams and trains all over the country.—[Manchester Guardian.

The World's Most Daring Chicken Comes Over from Next Door and Takes a Mean Advantage of Mr. Smith's Figure.

Your kiddie has something to say on the subject, too!

You expect that kiddie of yours to have good teeth—don't you? But, what are you doing to insure her getting them?

Now, this child needs every one of her teeth; she needs them every day; she needs them three times a day—not counting the nibbles at in-between times. As one bright youngster put it, she needs them "every time she puts her feet under the table." And that, by the way, applies with equal emphasis to all of us—toddling tots, romping kiddies and sober grown-ups!

Saving your teeth hinges upon two persons: your dentist—and yourself! Your dentist first—because he can do for your teeth what no dentifrice, unaided, can hope to do for you. And yourself—because nothing will help your teeth as much as regular daily cleansing with an efficient dentifrice.

And Pyo-Rem is just that! A soft, gritless Dental Cream that cleans and whitens and polishes the teeth; that removes and prevents tartar; and that prevents and cures acid-mouth—the chief cause of tooth-discoloration and tooth-decay.

What's more—Pyo-Rem has such a delightful flavor that your kiddies, instead of shunning tooth-brushing time, will look forward to it. And so will you!

Stop in at your druggist's today—and ask for Pyo-Rem Dental Cream, in generous-sized tubes, 25 cents.

HE WOULD SAVE INNOCENT MAN?

So Says Former Policeman in Opium Case Affidavit.

Admits Perjury on Stand and Lying to His Lawyers.

We are not Interested, States Federal Prosecutor.

An affidavit of William E. Hill, former member of the police flying squad, who was convicted, with his associate on the force, Howard J. Proffitt, on a charge of violating the opium smuggling act, intended to exonerate the latter, was filed in the United States District Court, yesterday. No action will be taken in the matter until next Monday, when the affidavit will be presented to Judge Trippet, when the case of Hill and Proffitt comes up on a motion for a new trial.

A copy of the paper was submitted to Assistant United States Dist. Atty. Lawson, who prosecuted the case, by Frank E. Dominguez, representing the defendants, with the request that the government address itself to the task of trying to show whether or not the statement of Hill as to Proffitt's part in the conspiracy was true, but Mr. Lawson said that nothing of the sort would be attempted.

"Both Hill and Proffitt have been convicted, and that ends the interest of the government in the case," said Mr. Lawson. "It is up to the court to say whether or not the showing made in behalf of Proffitt is sufficient to warrant a new trial so far as he is concerned," said Mr. Lawson.

There are a number of new features of the Hill affidavit that have not heretofore been touched on. He admits that he committed perjury in swearing that he had no dealings in opium, that he had not been in Pasadena, did not know "Cockeye" Smith and had not delivered any opium to W. F. Edmondson, a co-defendent in the case.

Hill states further that he thought that in order to convict him it would be necessary for the jury to find Proffitt also guilty, and as he knew Proffitt was not guilty, he imagined that he could escape, as the charge was conspiracy. He admits that Proffitt was with him at the Washington Building and at the Sherman Hotel, but declares that Proffitt knew nothing about the business between Edmondson and himself. He says that Proffitt was drawn into the case innocently and was taken along for the sake of appearances.

Hill claims that he was accompanied to Pasadena by "Cockeye" Smith, and a man named Woodward, a buyer of stock, and well-known in Chinatown. He does not know where Woodward is now, he states. He admits having received money from Edmondson; also that he got $265 from the Chinaman, but declares he did not participate in the robbery of Hom Hong. In this connection Hill says in his affidavit that he went over to Pasadena, February 9, to introduce Smith to Hom Hong, and the latter and Hom Hong got into an argument and he left to avoid trouble. All the money he ever received from the sale of opium was $1075, of which he returned $425 to Smith, leaving him a net balance of $650. None of this money was ever given to Proffitt, Hill declares.

Hill's affidavit then goes on to say that he had always maintained his innocence in talking to Proffitt, and to their Attorneys, Frank E. Dominguez, Milton M. Cohen, Claire Woolwine and W. H. Dehm; that they had always advised him to tell the truth, but he swore falsely on the witness stand and in a former affidavit, because he was so confident that Proffitt could not be convicted and that he would go free with Proffitt.

Closing he says: "I now appreciate the whole situation and am only prompted by my conscience to come forward and save an innocent man whose only crime has been an association with me."

Senator Hart Fly to Oakland and Back.

Senator Dwight Hart All Ready to Start.

Senator Dwight H. Hart will fly to Oakland, Thursday, to attend the annual convention of the California Hotel Men's Association, and is planning to return to Los Angeles in his airplane taxicab, Saturday. The Senator completed his preparations yesterday at the Mercury Aviation Company's field, tried out the seating arrangements, obtained his wife's permission, and said to Pilot Al Wilson, "I'll be here at 11 o'clock on Thursday morning. Let's go."

Senator Hart will be the first passenger to fly from Los Angeles to Oakland and also the heaviest yet to aviate from De Mille Field. The Senator weighs 250 pounds, hence he felt it necessary to look over the lifting possibilities of the special Canadian army plane which had been selected for the trip. Pilot Wilson said, "Oh, the Senator is not too heavy to make a good passenger. We'll have a fine trip. But the Senator's baggage goes by train."

Stops will be made at Bakersfield and Fresno for gasoline, and Mr. Wilson plans to deliver his passenger at the convention not later than 7 p.m., after from six to seven actual hours in the air. Senator Hart is a part owner of the Hotel Rosslyn.

Some local hotel men who will go by train to the convention are Vernon Goodwin, of the Alexandria, Charles A. Cooke, president of the Southern California Hotel Men's Association, and Ed Cason. Henry Barker is State president and W. C. Jurgens, chairman of the committee which is arranging this year's convention, which will be held at the Oakland Hotel. The convention next year will be held in Los Angeles.

Zane, who is a guest of her aunt, Mrs. John Wilson, of 344 South Oxford avenue, in formed here of a charming compliment to the memory of late Maj. Zane, that a torpedo boat destroyer had been named Zane by him and he wished her to name the sponsor. Mrs. Zane wired back that if permissable for a child to christen a boat, she would like her little 5-year-old daughter, Marjorie, to do it.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward David Roberts of 3301 West Adams street are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Grant of New York who will be with them a few days before going to the Yosemite.

Mrs. James Nelson Burns has returned to her handsome estate at Montecito. She came down for the marriage of her daughter, Miss Betty Carr, and Capt. Lawrence Fox, in Oak Knoll and which was one of the fashionable society events of May.

Miss Betty Garland of Tennessee is a charming visitor here and will be the guest all summer of her cousin, Miss Louise Burke of Berkeley Square.

Miss Neva Wiggins, soloist of the Ninth Christian Science Church, who recently sang the soprano role in the "Creation" at Trinity Auditorium, left yesterday for a visit with her sister in Shreveport, La., and will stop en route at Houston and Beaumont, Tex.

Mr. and Mrs. Willim Howe Kennedy and sons, William, Jr., and Donald, who have been in New York the past year and a half, are expected in Los Angeles this week and will be at their former home, 616 South Serrano street.

DAMAGING REPORT OF WRITING EXPERT.

GIVEN AGAINST YOUNG WOMAN CHARGED WITH GETTING BONDS BY FRAUD.

Whether Miss Elsa Bullard of Long Beach defrauded Woollacott & Co., brokers, out of $192, in order to buy two $100 Liberty Bonds, was a question that arose yesterday at the young woman's hearing in Justice Brown's court. She is accused of embezzlement.

Deputy District Attorney Hill produced evidence to show that on April 29 Mrs. J. W. Bullard, the young woman's mother, gave her to mail a cashier's check for $192, payable and addressed to H. C. Steele, secretary of the Rotary Products Company. Steele testified that he never received the check, but received a letter.

A. G. Low of Woollacott & Co. testified that on May 5 a man inquired over the telephone the price of two $100 Liberty Bonds, and that the next day the check meant for Steele, and indorsed with his name, was received. According to instructions, the bonds were mailed to "H. C. Steele," at the Maryland Hotel, Pasadena, the $192 check being taken in payment.

Milton Carlson, a handwriting expert, testified that the known writing of Miss Bullard on the letter to Steele, the signature on the check and the letter to Woollacott & Co., were the same. The defense asked for time, and the case was continued to June 17.

CUMNOCK COMMENCEMENT.

The Cumnock School of Expression, of 200 South Vermont avenue, which began its commencement festivities last week, will tomorrow night produce two plays, "Charming Leander" and "The Mask of Two Strangers." The senior recital will be held on June 20 and 23. The girls will give a Greek play on June 26, entitled, "The Bacchae," by Euripides, under the direction of Reginald Pole. The final commencement exercises will be held on June 27.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS.

BY LADY JANE.

Ebell Club.

Mrs. Mathew S. Robertson paid a tribute to the sons and brothers of club members who have lost their lives in the country's service, at the Ebell Club's memorial service, yesterday. Enrolled and hung in a laurel wreathe were the names, also of club members who have died during this club year.

Mrs. Guy Bush, who has served for a year past in the War Camp Community Service, sang several songs, self-accompanied, which she had found popular with the soldiers. Mrs. Bush has a vivacious manner of singing, and her songs are of the caliber that finds a place in the average rooky's heart.

An operalogue was presented by Havrah Hubard and Claude Gotthelf. "Andre Chenier," an opera in four acts by Giordano, was the medium chosen by the pianist and the interpretative speaker. It was sung here some years ago and made, as it has generally, only a slight impression, as the music is trivial and the book somewhat banal.

Mr. Gotthelf played from the score at the piano and Mr. Hubbard essayed the parts of the several characters; Chenier, poet and soldier of the French Revolution; Countess de Coigny; Madeleine, her daughter; Gerald, servant and leader of the revolution, and two minor characters. With piano assistance, Mr. Hubbard tells the story and takes the various parts. He has a resonant voice, of great volume, which is unfortunately hampered by modulations and intonations which are artificial to the point of affectation. The mincing manner of the Countess, the sanctimonious whine of the old Abbe and the roar of Gerard were overdone. Mr. Hubbard has a familiarity with his subject and a feeling for its qualities which are deserving of a better manner of delivery. He prefaced the operalogue with some remarks anent German music, and announced himself as in favor of German operaproduction, provided it be sung in English. Mr. Gotthelf played an Albeniz dance and the Handelian Rhapsody of Cyril Scott.

Woman's City Club.

Clark Hetherington, state supervisor of physical culture, spoke at the Woman's City Club, yesterday, on "Problems of Education and Recreation." Suggestions for public places of expansion from a recreational and educational view, were emphaized in the talk. Mrs. Herman S. Darling, newly-elected president of the club, presided with vivacity and aplomb at the meeting. A meeting of the Big Sisters' League followed the club programme.

TRIP TO YOSEMITE.

The trip to Yosemite under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association for June 21 to June 30 has interested many young women, and there is only two more weeks for others to join us. Sleeper reservations should be made at the registration office at 251 South Hill street, beginning this week.

Developed Shipping, Railroad and Sugar Companies.

"Sunday Observance Line" One of His Projects.

James McFadden, a pioneer of Orange county, and a leader in its development, died yesterday at his home at Altadena, at the age of 67. He had been gradually failing in strength for the past two years.

He was born in 1832 at Delhi, Baltimore county, New York, and came to Southern California in 1864, and soon was followed by his three brothers, John, Robert and Archie. All settled at Santa Ana and became prominent in the life and development of that city. James McFadden was one of the first buyers of land included in the old Rancho Santiago, where he built a fine home.

Mr. McFadden built the railroad between Santa Ana and Newport Beach, which, while he owned it, was known as the "Sunday Observance Railroad," because Mr. McFadden, who was a man of strong religious convictions, would not permit the road to be operated on Sundays.

He built a sawmill, one of the first industries of Santa Ana, and helped to organize other industries. A staunch Republican, he took an active interest in politics, although he never sought office. His political influence was strong and he consistently supported the best men for office and the best measures.

With his brother Robert, he established the shipping business which later developed into the Newport Wharf and Lumber Company. He was at one time a partner of former United States Senator George W. Perkins and was one of the organizers of the Southern California Sugar Company and the Santa Ana Co-operative Sugar Company.

Of the four brothers, Robert, who lives in Los Angeles now, alone survives. Archie died in 1913 and John in 1915. Mr. McFadden also leaves an adopted brother, Finley McFadden of Santa Ana, two daughters, the Misses Jennie and Elizabeth McFadden of Altadena, and the widow.

SEEKING SHARE IN SHIPBUILDING DEAL.

ALLEGED PROMOTERS OF SAN PEDRO PLANT ARE SUING LOCAL CAPITALISTS.

Trial was begun yesterday of the suit of Mr. Mitchell and T. E. Wetherholt against Marco Hellman, Irving H. Hellman, Emanuel Cohen, and Daniel K. Drake to recover $735,000 damages for alleged breach of contract, and incidentally the profits of shipbuilding were much in question. The defendants, it is said, will ask for a nonsuit at the conclusion of the testimony of the plaintiffs.

It is claimed by the plaintiffs that they entered into an oral agreement with the defendants in 1917 to supply the technical organization for a shipyard at San Pedro, with a capital stock of $1,500,000. Under the terms of this agreement, the defendants were to assign to the company a lease they held to property of the Pacific Wharf and Storage Company at San Pedro. The plaintiffs were to take, they say, fifty-one per cent. of the capital stock and $700,000 in bonds. The defendants were to buy an additional $300,000 of the bonds and extend banking credit to the proposed company.

The alleged deal was called off, it is alleged, by the statement that the defendants had decided to sell the shipbuilding site to other parties and would not themselves engage in the shipbuilding business.

Subsequently the Southwestern Shipbuilding Company was organized, and David Hollywood who, meantime, had written the plaintiffs declining an alleged contract to serve for them, was employed superintendent of the plant.

The defendants claim there never was such an agreement as the plaintiffs declared; that Mitchell and Wetherholt were trying to promote a game for which they were not qualified.

PLEADS LOT SELLERS DIDN'T MISUSE MAILS.

Former United States District Attorney John W. Preston, of San Francisco, argued in Judge Oscar A. Trippet's court, yesterday, a demurrer to an indictment returned several months ago against A. F. Haraszthy, F. M. Cook, and others, charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

The indictment charged that the defendants used the mails illegally to promote the sale of lots in what was known as the Washington Home Park Tract, located along the line of the Pacific Electric Railway between Los Angeles and Long Beach, claiming that the lots were valuable, that streets had been laid out and other improvements made, when, as a matter of fact, as claimed by the government, the "subdivision" was nothing more than an alfalfa field.

Attorney Preston made a forcible argument, claiming that by no stretch of the imagination could the charge be considered a violation of the postal laws. The demurrer was taken under submission.

NEGLIGENCE NOT PROVED.

Division No. 2, District Court of Appeal, yesterday reversed the judgment of the Superior Court of San Bernardino county, in favor of the plaintiff for $12,500, in the action brought by Frank M. Arnold against the California Portland Cement Company, to recover damages on account of personal injuries. The court held that the negligence charged in the bill of complaint was not established by the evidence.

INCORPORATIONS.

California China Company, incorporators, Francis E. King, C. M. Castruccio, John D. Clayton, Arthur E. Rose, Carroll E. King; capital stock, $300,000; subscribed, $70. California and Mexican Steamship Company, incorporators, Charles A. Wiley, J. A. Rominger, Lloyd Swayne, Frank W. Philpot, John Craig; capital stock, $500,000; subscribed, $500.

HUBBY DIDN'T DO EXPECTED.

Wife Would Die; Husband Stood Calmly by; Now She Says that was Cruelty

When Beulah Booker O'Hara, known in motion picture circles as "Little Miss Booker," tried to kill herself, she says in a divorce complaint filed yesterday against Kenneth A. O'Hara, scenario writer, her husband stood calmly by and did not attempt to stop her. This constituted cruelty, she charges.

After reading the complaint yesterday, Judge Taft called Mr. O'Hara, who said he had been paying his wife $15 a week until recently. This amount was continued under an order of the court.

or both. The three women office attaches who heard the conversation at the door, said that Mr. Samuels told the visitor to return in a few minutes and he would talk over his case with him.

Rabbi S. Hecht of the Temple B'nai B'rith, said last evening: "Mr. Samuels came here several years ago from Chicago, and he soon made his personality felt by his philanthropic work here. A few months ago I asked him to take over the membership of the Free Aid Society, of which I had been both manager and president, and he has rendered important service in this position. He also fitted up the gymnasium at the Federation of Jewish Charities Building. He was a member of my congregation, and was admired and beloved by all who had come in contact with him."

ATHLETIC CLUB LOSES.

Waited Too Long to Find Out what Manager, Owed, Court Rules.

Word was received here yesterday that the Los Angeles Athletic Club lost the appeal of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company to the District Court of Appeal from a judgment found by Superior Judge Wellborn, for $2015.08, alleged to be due on a fidelity bond executed by the surety company in behalf of Walter L. Patterson, who was manager of the club from November 1, 1911, to May 2, 1914. The bond was for $5000.

Patterson was engaged as manager at a salary of $200 a month, but it was the agreement that if he wanted any of the liquor, cigars, candy, etc., kept in stock by the club he should pay the retail price for the goods. It was claimed in the suit on the recovery of the bond that Patterson had used about $2100 worth of goods which he had not paid for.

The court found that the club was a long time discovering that Patterson was delinquent in his account, and that it did not appear what part of the bill he had not paid. The lower court found for the Athletic Club, but the higher court reversed that judgment and found for the surety company.

ALL DRAFTED MEN ARE ORDERED DISCHARGED.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—An order from the War Department for the discharge of all selective service men and duration of the war volunteers in line units were received today at Western Department headquarters of the army here. The order, which is in part as follows, does not apply to any of the staff corps or special service branches, army officers said.

"We authorize all posts and stations to discharge all enlisted men who were enlisted or were drafted for the emergency, and who are a part of line organizations of the Regular Army. If all are not discharged by July 1 report to these headquarters."

JEWISH POGROMS IN 50 RUSSIAN CITIES.

LONDON, June 9.—Jewish pogroms have occurred in fifty different places in Russia, according to a Russian wireless message. Three thousand Jews have been killed in Felshtyn, 2000 in Shitomir, 4000 in Teplek and 350 in Ovruch.

PORTLAND TO SUPPLY EMERGENCY FLEET.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) June 9.—Portland is to be Pacific Coast headquarters of the supplies and sales division of the Emergency Fleet Corporation of the United States Shipping Board, C. O. Yoakum, district manager of this division, announced today on his return from an official trip to Washington and Philadelphia. All supplies and materials no longer needed because of cancellation of contracts for building wooden and steel ships for the government at the yards on this Coast, will be disposed of by a sales organization now being formed, he said.

GASOLINE 26 CENTS.

LINCOLN (Neb.) June 9.—Gasoline prices were advanced in Nebraska today 2 cents a gallon, to 26 cents. The advance is due principally to a law enacted by the Legislature at its recent session adopting for the State the army and navy specifications as to grade.

TO BID IN LANDS.

Councilman Mallard, chairman of the Finance Committee, was delegated by the City Council yesterday to bid in for the city the properties on which there are delinquent assessments for the opening of Thirty-eighth place from Van Ness avenue to the western city line. The sale of these properties is to take place at 10 o'clock next Friday forenoon.

NAB SUSPECTED MAINE LOOTER.

Capture Alleged Embezzler After 3000-Mile Hunt.

Alleged Faker of Thousands Caught in Grocery.

Fugitive Deserted Family, is Charge of Sheriff.

A nation-wide man-hunt that brought Sheriff Fred E. Stevens of Androscoggin County, Maine, from Lewiston to Los Angeles in search of his quarry ended with the arrest here yesterday of Vincent J. Salvia, former general manager and treasurer of the Lewiston Confectionery Company. Salvia, who has been in this city about six weeks, is charged in a warrant signed by Gov. Carl E. Milliken of Maine with the larceny of $950, the complainant being H. M. Dingley of Lewiston, a son of the late Congressman Nelson Dingley.

Salvia was taken into custody while waiting on customers in a grocery store owned by him at Washington and Main streets. While the specific amount named in the warrant is only $950 Sheriff Stevens says Salvia's books were found short about $15,000 and that he is also alleged to have passed a number of worthless checks in the East.

WON'T FIGHT EXTRADITION.

The arrest was made by Detectives Louis Rico and Thomas Rico, who were assigned to the case by Capt. Chapman when Sheriff Stevens arrived here Saturday night. Salvia, while admitting his identity, expressed astonishment at his arrest, believing that the distance between cities at the extremes of the continent would afford him security from arrest. The accused man is about thirty years of age, and according to Sheriff Stevens left a wife and children in Newton, Mass., when he disappeared from the East.

In addition to the charge of larceny on which Salvia's arrest was based, there are ten other charges alleging larceny and embezzlement, according to Sheriff Stevens. Salvia yesterday said he would return to Lewiston without the delay incident to the preparation of extradition papers, but Sheriff Stevens said he nevertheless would make the application to Gov. Stephens.

TRACED BY LETTER.

Salvia, according to the Androscoggin Sheriff, came originally from Italy, and several years ago settled in Lewiston, where he started a confectionary business and soon gained the confidence of local merchants. He disappeared about six weeks ago, and for a time all trace of him was lost. Sheriff Stevens learned through an intercepted letter that he was in Newton, Mass., but on arriving there found that he had flown. It was not until the Sheriff had visited most of the larger cities en route to Los Angeles that he found the clue which brought him to this city. He was highly gratified yesterday at the successful termination of his man-hunt and expressed to the local detective bureau his gratitude for the assistance given him here.

Although Salvia yesterday refused to make any statements to officers, Sheriff Stevens believes the prisoner has most of the looted money in banks in this city. Efforts will be made to recover it.

TO BE TEST CASE.

Habeas Corpus Has Attack on Immigration Law As Object.

United States District Judge Trippet yesterday issued a writ of habeas corpus, returnable next Monday, in behalf of A. Ono, who is the representative of a large class of Japanese found in Southern California, without passports. They originally came from Japan, under passports issued by that government, landing in Mexico, whence they made their way across the line. Some of them are among the prosperous members of the Japanese colony in Imperial county, and have accumulated what might be considered in Japan as a large fortune in agricultural pursuits.

It is claimed by the government that a suit for deportation may be maintained at any time within five years after the alien comes into the country, but the theory of the attorneys representing the Japanese is that such action must be taken before they are three years in the country. There seems to be much confusion as to the real meaning of the immigration law in that regard.

Some weeks ago, Judge Trippet refused the writ and application was made to the United States Circuit Court of Appeal, whence the application was sent back to the District Court. There are hundreds of Japanese to be affected by the judgment of the court, and a bunch of about fifteen are financing the present test case.

"BUCK PRIVATES" NEW FRATERNITY OF ARMY.

BY EDWIN L. JAMES.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

COBLENZ, June 9.—The latest fraternal organization to be launched by the A.E.F. is "Buck Privates' Society," which blossomed forth with huge posters placed at many points of the Army of Occupation. Some of these posters are rather striking. They proclaim only bucks, first-class privates, cooks and mechanics are eligible to membership. But the most striking poster says:

"Who fired the barrage? Who pulled the lanyard? Who cleaned the guns?"

This expression of sentiment is very unusual among American soldiers, and I have heard no little unfavorable comment on it. The originator of the society appears to be Private Paul Collins, Battery D, Sixth Field Artillery, of the First Division. No explanation is forthcoming as to who is paying the expenses of printing the posters, and so on.

It is stated the object of the society is "to promote closer fellowship socially and otherwise" among privates.

So far, the society seems to be confined to the First Division.

Kansas to Have Suffrage Session.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TOPEKA, June 9.—A call for a special session of the Kansas Legislature to consider the ratification of the Susan B. Anthony woman suffrage amendment was issued today by Gov. Allen. The session will open Monday, June 16.

JOLT COMING.

People who spend more than they make, eat more than they want and drink more than they can hold are due for a prodigious bump.

BELOW THE BORDER.

The United States having been requested to help out in Nicaragua, it might not be amiss to turn the capable administrative and military talents of Gen. Leonard Wood in that direction. At the same time he could keep a watchful eye on interests in Southern Mexico.

DEAD SEA FRUIT.

Now they are finding that the bottom of the Dead Sea is mainly made up of a grade of asphalt that is excellent for road building. Presently they will be putting in a steam shovel in order to perfect the new auto boulevard between Bethlehem and Jerusalem. Give the New Zionists a chance.

MORE BURDENS.

In addition to facing new overhead charges which will exceed a billion dollars a year the railroads are expected to promptly repay some $800,000,000 expended by the government in the process of operating the properties almost to the point of wreckage. Government operation is a fine thing if there were no auditors and no accounting.

THE HOME TOWN.

It now seems to be understood that President Wilson will leave France for Washington within the next two or three weeks. He will find a good many changes in the old town, but he should be able to recognize it by Washington monument, which is still there. Even as a comparative stranger he will be received with Tumulty applause.

KEEPING THE BALANCE.

It seems to be agreed among financiers that the United States will never get a refund of its foreign loans until Americans become heavy investors in foreign securities. In no other way can exchange be balanced so as to permit and encourage trans-Atlantic trade. The visible supply of money and credit will not admit of Europe's repayment of loans and buying our surplus products at the same time. But if we take to investing in foreign securities business may proceed as usual. The conditions of a generation ago are merely reversed. Meanwhile it is safe to assume that Europe will not buy one dollar's worth more of American goods than is absolutely necessary. Now is the time to be developing trade in South America and the Orient.

SAVING THE PIECES.

Besides the historic Oregon, eleven other once great dreadnaughts of the American Navy are included in the junk pile order of the department. From the scrap to the scrapheap is but a day's journey in the life of the battleship. These holy terrors of another day are said to be helpless before the modern armaments of ships of their class. Some of them will be used as targets and some broken up into old metal, but it is now proposed that three or four of them should be sunk in shoal waters near the entrance of important harbors. In that way they might still be utilized as veritable forts in coast defense. This calls for some permanent expenditure, but is more satisfying to sentiment. There is always a popular objection to coldly consigning our war dogs to oblivion.

A FRENCH VIEWPOINT.

One of the leading religious publications of America has in its last of May issue an interview with Joseph Reinach, the celebrated French author, whose book, "The Year of Verdun," is considered abroad as the greatest work of the war. Also present at the interview was Col. Philippe Reinach, a brother of the writer, who had just returned from a special mission to America. Between them the interviewer gained the French idea of prohibition in America and this church paper, with characteristic liberality, permits its expression. The French historian says:

"My brother tells me that your country has been starting reforms since the war. He speaks of your prohibition. He thinks that it will greatly affect the labor conditions in your land. The foreigners in the United States who do your rough work are used to their beer and light wines—and will go where they can get them. . . . Maybe prohibition will not last. In France it would not—France could not get along without her wine. And yet one seldom sees an intoxicated Frenchman. It seems unfortunate that prohibition should come to you while the young men of your country are overseas. So many of them feel cheated. Prohibition would have gone through, doubtless, even if this army of yours had been back in the homeland, but it seems a shame that the young men should not have their part in it. They would have made a splendid guard of honor to the—in your slang you call it the 'water wagon,' do you not?"

Even from this church magazine may be gathered an idea of the difficulties in the path of those zealous crusaders who would make a dry France. The feeling there is that prohibition here may be but temporary because the opposition claims not to have had a square deal. Without a nation-wide referendum and a full chance for the soldier to vote the question would not there be considered settled.

WIRE TROUBLES.

Advocates of government and municipal ownership can find an object lesson in how such experiments work out by studying the results obtained by Postmaster-General Burleson in handling the telegraph and telephone systems of the United States. A playful kitten never tangled a skein of wool more effectually than our government controllers have raveled up this network of wires.

On last August 1, presumably as a war measure, the Democratic administration took these extensive businesses out of the hands of their legitimate owners. When the armistice was signed even this obvious excuse for meddling was removed.

Mr. Burleson, however, had in the meantime grown so enamored of the game of ninepins he was playing with the heads of the various telegraph and telephone companies that he was loath to part with his toys. Or else the Democratic party expected to gain an immense prestige in placing great systems, worth enormous sums of money and employing hundreds of thousands of men and women voters, at the disposal of a political machine.

As a wrecker of established order the Postmaster-General was an undeniable success, but in their last object the Democrats have failed miserably.

The end is in sight, but not such an end as any but a Bolshevik would desire. Mr. Burleson is not "returning" the wires in a strict meaning of that term. Rather he is reluctantly compelled to cease his game of skittles by the apprehensions of the President that the gains are problematical by the swift action of a Republican Congress and the persistent pressure of public opinion.

A survey of the field is sufficient to dampen the enthusiasm of the keenest advocate of government ownership. The cost of the service to the public has been raised without either rhyme or reason; taxes have been increased (of course, under the old war excuse) to cover the business blunders of inexperienced operators of great enterprises which they have divorced from the scientific management of men who have specialized on these industries through long years of apprenticeship. Many cities, counties and whole States have been stirred to fury against the arbitrary fashion in which telephone rates and tolls have been manipulated by amateur politicians who knew nothing of the local or general needs of the service with which they were tampering. Numerous contests with State Railroad and Interstate Commerce Commissions, involving costly lawsuits, have added to the general confusion.

Even in its prime object, to supply political ammunition for the Democratic big guns, the wire control has yielded nothing but duds. Instead of gaining prestige and votes the Washington administration has been roundly scored by men of all shades of political opinion. For one vote that the Democratic party has obtained by concessions to employees it has lost a score by the inconvenience and annoyance it has caused the general public. For every extra dollar exacted as toll by the labor unions from vote-seeking politicians the consumer has had to pay ten.

Nobody has been satisfied. Certainly not the heads of the Postal Telegraph Company, who have been forced to one side while they watched the systematic wrecking of business built up after years of energy and enterprise. Does this sound too strong a statement? Those who question it we refer to the bitter correspondence carried on between Mr. Clarence H. Mackay and Mr. William J. Deegan on the one hand and Messrs. Burleson and Koons on the other.

Nobody has been satisfied. Certainly not the general public, considered either as taxpayers or telephone subscribers or patrons of telegraph offices. As the rates went higher the service became proportionately poorer. Delays in delivering cablegrams since the armistice was signed have exceeded the longest waits encountered during the heat of the war—before the companies were compelled to turn over their properties to the politicians.

Nobody has been satisfied. Not even the unionized labor employees to whose demands the government controllers have especially catered. By ill-considered concessions, always granted in the wrong place and generally at the wrong time, and by an equally ill-considered display of obstinacy when a graceful concession would not have been amiss, a spirit of unrest and dissatisfaction was created among the telephone and telegraph operators that never existed under complete private ownership.

At any rate, the net result of the Postoffice Department's injection of government control ideas into the labor troubles of the wire companies has been a threatened strike of national magnitude. Moreover, President S. J. Konenkamp of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union places the blame for the agitation at the doors of Postmaster-General Burleson.

For the people of Los Angeles at the present time the worse-than failure of the government to adequately run the telegraph and telephone businesses of the country has a special significance. For are not our citizens flirting to a dangerous degree with the notion of municipal ownership and in a too-light-hearted manner voting heavy bonded indebtedness for themselves and their children?

We in Los Angeles have not, it is true, the unlimited resources enjoyed by the national government with which to embark on the wrecking business. Neither can we withdraw, as can the government at Washington, from the enterprise as soon as it is proved to be financially a failure and afterwards leave it to the old business heads to straighten out the kinks and stand the gaff.

To our view it is more important to free the United States of some of the war-time rules than it is to free the Philippines. Both questions will be before Congress.

It is a sure sign that the new husband is loyal and true when, if the wife forgets to put any salt on the meat, he refuses to comment on the fact. That is an acid test.

Some of these fine days Secretary Burleson will quit us cold and let the country get along as best it can without his assistance. Hail, happy day!

President Wilson may stump the country in the interest of the covenant of nations. In that case he might double up with Premier Orlando in a "brother act."

The Latest Style in Holdups.

INDIGESTION AT THE PEACE TABLE.

Diplomatic Europe appears to be suffering from chronic indigestion.

In the case of Italy, an upset tummy seems to be causing bad dreams and nightmare. Other nations are not quite so upset; they show signs of suffering only in pettish grouches and aggravated cases of the blues.

England is cross at France because of the latter's enthusiasm for hating Germany and wanting revenge. France is upstage with England because John Bull has absent-mindedly carried off, since the armistice, everything in the world he didn't already have.

Italy hates everything and everybody. Guttural noises ramble up and down her throat and the hair rises at the back of her neck. She is continually threatening to fight to the death. Nobody can find out whom she proposes to fight or what about. But that she nurses a sea-green grouch is painfully apparent. She "just feels perfectly awful" and she wants everybody to know about it.

President Wilson, meanwhile, maintains an air of patient suffering. A kind of forgive-them-they-know-not-what-they-do attitude. He has no complaints to make. He just sits at the council table and looks out upon the others with an air of gentle but offended resignation. "I-am-trying-to-be-polite-under-trying-circumstances" sort of demeanor which goes with one kind of indigestion.

The international stomachache seems to progress in violence. Beginning as a simple case of grumps, it is now becoming the jumps. Somebody saw a Jap and a German diplomat talking in a Swiss town and immediately raised a squawk of alarm and dismay. The latest dyspeptic symptom is the rumor that Germany and Japan are about to combine in a war alliance with Russia and chase the rest of us off the earth entirely. An outcome, by the way which is not at all improbable if somebody doesn't rush to the rescue with a dyspepsia pill and calm the storm in the innards of the fussy old gentlemen now at Versailles.

Most wars are the result of overstrained nerves.

Nobody has ever been able to give a satisfactory explanation for this great world war because there was no real reason. Germany frantically armed herself because England was arming; and England frantically armed herself because Germany was arming. Neither knew what for. But they suddenly found themselves fighting—which is the way of things.

As a matter of logic and common sense there is no reason for any country to fight any other country. There is plenty of room for all of us. International credits and transoceanic commerce have become so highly developed that no country could ruin another country's business without also ruining itself.

All countries are usually in an attitude of welcoming commerce of all countries for purely selfish reasons. There is nothing on earth that could possibly be gained from a war.

Wars are fought because of overstrained nerves; and if these nerves are not the result of indigestion, then we do not know what they are due to.

Economy in Matrimony.

Marriage agencies in Japan are now limited to twenty-five pesos fee on each match made. One peso for an introduction, five for a hunt for a life partner and twenty-five more for actually binding two together are the legal prices. This arrangement cuts out all the sorbetes, carriages, flowers, jewelry and other expenses of this country, and after all is more economical.—[Manila Times.

There is no immediate prospect of overseas flying becoming the fashion while it is necessary to postpone a "hop-off" as long as there is any wind or a cloud can be seen in the sky. We have far to go yet before the airplane will be a commercial success.

A score of States have "favorite sons" and the Republican National Convention is more than a year away. Plenty of time for the suicide of booms.

LAND AND MONEY.

Steadily and surely the great estates of England are being broken up. The landed nobility is fast becoming a memory—a leaf from history. Many of the returning soldiers find opportunity to secure small holdings that once could not even be rented. The number of so-called small farmers is vastly increased and the ability of the island to feed itself is thereby much improved. The government itself is buying heavily of lands that have been forced upon the market in the general change and former tenants are given opportunity to secure permanent title on easy terms. The lordly original owners are seeking fresh investments and are somewhat puzzled to find that stability which the Briton so desires. One of them purchased a stretch of salmon river in Ireland in the odd belief that Ireland would be the last country in the world to permit the confiscation of estates. Others have invested heavily in the vineyards of Southern France, where lands have been held in families since the memory of man. Also, they are buying great tracts in British Columbia and Australia—colonies, where land is still plentiful and cheap. What is left of the landed gentry still seeks the soil, although there are a few of those who have had to sell their estates who have been putting their funds in old paintings or works of art on which no income tax can be levied and yet seem to have a permanent value. There is a great rearrangement of conditions and investments in England, and many who are parting with the land are wondering what to do with the money. There has always been a sentiment in the kingdom that land was the basis of all values and that if you had a lot of it it represented something, even if it was not earning its keep. The needs of the war have shown that it is better to have ten families than one on a thousand acres of land. In America it is found that general production and prosperity increase as the country is broken up into smaller holdings.

OH, YOU ED HOWE.

It is now proposed to raise twenty million dollars for the Sunday-schools. The campaign will begin some time next month.

I predict that the newspapers will print the same page advertisements printed during the Red Cross and Liberty Loan campaigns; that from one end of the country to the other editorials will appear urging the people to give, give, give; that four-minute orators will appear at all public gatherings and urge that the people give, give, give. The people are such easy picking that the pickers will not let up for some time.

The newspaper men became very tired of the Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives; they are not continuing exactly the same methods for the Y.M.C.A., the Boy Scouts, the Sunday-schools, etc., simply to be good fellows. There is something going on in newspaper business offices we do not know about.—[Ed Howe's Monthly.

MAY WE NOT?

Another Red Cross campaign is proposed; this time to secure subscribers for the Red Cross Magazine. The usual methods will presumably be adopted: Committees will be appointed; newspapers will print lurid page advertisements "paid for by" the gas company, the water company, etc.; editorials will be printed calling upon us to go over the top or forever be disgraced; Boy Scouts will ring every door bell in a clean-up campaign; girls will establish booths on the streets; certain ones will be called Huns, and certain others will be painted yellow.

Is this campaign necessary? May we not have the small privilege of selecting our own reading matter without interference from committees?—[Ed Howe's Monthly.

Investigators have discovered the fact that some of the suddenly-contracted war marriages are having deplorable endings. The trouble seems to be that many girls who entered wedlock were not old enough to know their own minds when they became wives. And some of the returned soldiers have made unfavorable comparisons with the business abilities of the American girl as compared with English and French young women, holding that the training of the last-named fits them better to be life partners.

BOYHOOD BLUE BOOK.

BY BESS MUNN.

This blue book has 256 pages. And on the front and back covers of blue there is an emblem in red, and on the emblem are the words "Be Prepared." It is the American "Boy Scout Diary" and it contains all the information a young mind can hold and all that an adult mind can use.

The book begins with a statement of who the owner is, where he lives, how old he is, his weight, his height, the number of his watch, his bicycle number and the measurements of his neck, chest, waist, thigh, calf, forearms, biceps and wrist.

It gives the scout oath, an oath the world might wag better by than many of the rusty-hinged creeds still on the books. The oath says: On my honor I will do my best.

(1.) To do my duty to God and my country and to obey the Scout law.

(2.) To help other people at all times.

(3.) To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight.

Simple enough, isn't it? And yet what tomes of ethics or libraries of philosophies could say more?

Then this wonderful little blue book goes on to give the scout law which also puts to shame much of our religious canting. In this law it is declared that a scout is trustworthy, he is loyal, he is helpful, he is friendly and courteous and kind and obedient and cheerful and thrifty and brave and clean and reverent.

And a little further on in the book, after a description of the classes of boy scouts, for it seems it takes quite some time to perfect boyhood to the ultimate in scouthood, there is this statement.

"The final and chief test of the scout is the doing of a good turn to somebody every day, QUIETLY AND WITHOUT BOASTING. This is the proof of the scout. A boy honors God best when he helps others most. A boy may wear all the scout uniforms made and all the badges ever manufactured, know all the woodcraft, campcraft and scoutcraft and yet never be a real boy scout. To be a real boy scout means the doing of a good turn EVERY DAY with the proper motive." How many of us could qualify to be a boy scout? How many of us could honestly chalk up against our name a good turn every day, with the PROPER MOTIVE? How many of us belong in this blue book?

And on page twenty-five is the "Star Spangled Banner." Every word of it, and it is the only song in the book. And it has the name of the author and the date on which it was written. Then there is a history of the flag and a page devoted to the forms of respect due the flag and in this list are forms of reverence strange to many an American not a scout.

And on through the little volume under the days of the year are comments on some event in history, American history. There is something said about a mariner's compass, how to help in case of fire, a long list of first-aid suggestions, how to operate a heliograph and camp hints. A page is devoted to business laws in brief and the first line says, "It is fraud to conceal a fraud."

Truly this little blue book is laying a pretty firm foundation for a new and democratic nobility who, coming up under the scout oath, will do their duty by God and their country, will help other people at all times, and keep themselves physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight.

PEOPLE MAY VOTE ON REORGANIZATION.

There are indications that the people of California, at the 1920 election, will be given an opportunity to vote on a reorganization of the State government along efficiency and economy lines. During the last campaign there was much talk of reorganization; but the Legislature came and went without accomplishing the job. It now appears that, instead of weakening, the demand for efficiency and economy is growing stronger. In this connection the following statement was recently issued by Will H. Fischer, executive officer of the Taxpayers' Association of California:

"It is encouraging to note the many expressions which are coming from all parts of the State, urging that there be a direct vote on State reorganization. The failure of the Legislature to enact Assembly Bill No. 1089, involving the fundamental plan proposed by the Taxpayers' Association, seems to have disappointed the people, who had been given every reason to hope and expect that the Legislature would enact such an economy measure. Hence the strong insistence on popular action by the initiative process. A reorganization law may be submitted in that manner.

"The State of Illinois has reorganized, and great benefits have followed. Idaho reorganized this winter. A reorganization scheme is under consideration in Oregon. A proposal of reorganization will be laid before the next New York Legislature. Ohio is studying reorganization, and there is a similar story from other States, which are coming to understand that governmental affairs must be placed on a business basis if the people are to receive satisfactory service without being subjected to a crushing tax burden.

"California, which has been a leader in so many other matters, should not lag when it comes to putting its governmental house in order in conformity with approved modern ideas of efficiency and economy."

FASHIONS SET EARLY.

At a meeting in Philadelphia of the American Association of Museums one speaker declared that "fashions of today can be traced to old Egypt, Peru, the Philippines, Siberia and other far-off places." This is going back some time, but we venture to go still farther and suggest that some of the modern fashions seem traceable to the Garden of Eden.—[Hartford Courant.

ALLEGED JOKERS IN THE TREATY.

Taft Points out a Tactical Error by the President.

BY WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

PHILADELPHIA, Sunday, June 8.—The right of the President to withhold from the Senate the full text of a treaty that he is negotiating with other powers until he submits it to that body for its advice and consent is clear and undoubted, but the issue now is not one of strict constitutional procedure. It is one of courtesy and tact.

The League of Nations from the first was known to be part of the treaty. Indeed, in the view of those who advocate the League of Nations, the treaty could not have been made without it. The President gave to the public, and so to the Senate, the full text of the covenant, even as it was reported by the committee to the conference. Subsequently he gave the full text of its revision. Then there was published a very full abstract of the peace treaty as it was submitted to the Germans for their assent and signature. The abstract contained 20,000 words, while the text was said to contain 50,000.

No sufficient explanation has been given why the full text of the treaty was not given out at the time when the abstract came. It was supposed at first that the abstract preceded the full text because of convenience in transmission. If the text of the treaty contained something the Senate ought not to know until after the Germans had acted, why give out such an abstract at all? To withhold the text when the abstract is given out, of course, raises curiosity and suspicion as to what the difference is between the abstract and the text. If they both had been given out at the same time, or within a short interval, the public and, indeed, many Senators, would probably not have read anything but the abstract. Only those Senators and others charged with the responsibility in respect to the matter of preparing for discussion would have gone carefully through the full text. But now that the text has been withheld so long it is natural that those opposed to the League of Nations and to the President's course in respect to the treaty should make much of the failure to give out the text and should complain when it is discovered that the text has found its way to New York into the hands of private citizens, although the Senate has been denied opportunity to see it.

It is not conceivable that the abstract misrepresented the text. Yet when the situation is tense such an unexplained course on the part of the administration naturally gives rise to impatience and criticism, all of which must have been avoided had the text been submitted in the first instance. The result now is that the text will be examined with a microscope by the opponents of the league and the details in the text not contained in the abstract will be exaggerated into what are called "jokers" and seized upon as full of danger and sinister purpose.

It is unfortunate that such a course should be taken by an administration that has made so much of the necessity for publicity. It has been reported that the text was withheld at the instance of Lloyd George, but with no explanation of why he desired to withhold it. Whatever his reason, his request and the compliance with it were a mistake that merely furnishes ammunition for the opponents of the treaty.

Probably never in the history of our treaties have the Senate and the public been given as full opportunity to know and discuss the controversial points of a treaty in advance of its official submission as in this case. Yet by this last error the administration has lost any credit attaching to such a policy.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

FLIES.

They say that everything on earth was made for purpose wise; there's nothing that's devoid of worth—but what's the good of flies? They keep their merit so concealed we can't discern the same, the while our swatting stick we wield and cuss the endless game. Ah, happy thought—perhaps the flies were dumped upon the land that we might have some exercise, a swatter in each hand. That may explain it, in which case, let's make the combat hot; enjoy the pleasures of the chase, and swat, and swat, and swat! Now is the time to swat them hard, before they get too thick; pursue them through the house and yard and soak them with a brick. The fly that now escapes its doom will rear a countless brood; so let no fly sidestep the tomb—on with the deadly feud! Rise, then,
O sluggard, from your chair, from lounge and downy cot! Go forth, all brave and debonair, gird up your loins and swat! Let no foul fly escape your search! If one's left on the floor, that fly will lead a bride to church and raise ten million more. So take your hauberk and sour helm and like a knight arise; put on your greaves and overwhelm about ten thousand flies.

THE HIGH COST OF ECONOMY.

Economy is something practiced by people who don't have to economize.

Mrs. Wealthy buys eggs by the dozens and puts them down in water glass. Mrs. Poor never could afford more than one dozen eggs at one time regardless of price.

Mrs. Wealthy buys flour and sugar by the barrel—at a great saving. Mrs. Poor buys hers by the pound—and it is expensive.

Mrs. Wealthy takes advantage of the sales and gets real bargains in furniture, shoes and clothes. Mrs. Poor can only look in the display windows longingly.

In short, Mrs. Wealthy uses her head where Mrs. Poor must use her husband's salary.

It is a pathetic fact that it takes money to economize.—[G. W. Gabriel in New York Sun.

STRIKERS SEEK OLD JOBS BACK.

Conservative Element Already Tired of Idleness.

Unions Disrupted by Many Members Leaving.

Now Hope for a Sympathetic Walkout in North.

That the various unions representing the shipbuilders who are now out on strike at San Pedro are disrupting their own organizations is indicated by the fact that the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company is receiving scores of letters daily from former employees, who are desirous of returning to work under the conditions which prevailed before the 6000 employees of the plant walked out, two weeks ago.

The letters mainly come from the conservative element, which was unfavorable to the idea of striking. While this course is being pursued, scores of the radicals are packing up their tools and leaving for the north, to seek employment in other shipyard cities. Still others are going inland and securing employment as carpenters and metal workers. The unions are making a strong effort to hold the men together, but the strikers are already badly scattered, hundreds of them being wholly out of sympathy with the strike.

WOULD SPREAD IT.

An attempt on the part of striking shipbuilders in this city to tie up all the shipyards on the Pacific Coast by calling out all the union machinists on a sympathetic strike was exposed at the harbor yesterday. This plan has been contemplated by the local machinists' union since the very beginning of the strike here.

J. W. Kelley, international organizer and a member of the Grand Lodge of the International Association of Machinists, who has been co-operating with the local machinists' strike committee, returned to San Pedro from San Francisco, yesterday morning, and announced that he had "got things started" in the Bay district, intimating that a sympathy strike of union machinists may be called all along the Pacific Coast.

Kelley left San Pedro for San Francisco on a mission in connection with the local strike, and officials of the Metal Trades Council at that time did not deny that his purpose was to involve mechanics at San Francisco and Oakland in the strike. Kelley stated yesterday morning that he had communicated with machinists at Portland, Seattle and Tacoma, and that he would make a full report to the Metal Trades Council at its meeting in San Pedro tomorrow.

TO MEET TODAY.

The directors of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company will hold a meeting at the plant today to discuss various angles of the strike situation. It has been reported, semiofficially, that Mayor Woodman, who concerned himself with the settlement of the strike about ten days ago, will appear at the conference and offer some sort of compromise proposition which has been submitted to him as mediator, by the strikers.

Attempts to call thousands of strikers to the shipyard yesterday morning by circulating a report to the effect that the gates were to be thrown open to all who wanted to return to work fell flat. There were only the customary number of picksters on hand—perhaps 150 of them, and there were nearly fifty policemen there to see that order was preserved. It is said that, despite a warning on Saturday that they had better not return to work yesterday, more than 100 foremen, superintendents and office workers went back to their jobs yesterday.

The strikers are growing impatient and are anxious for action of some sort they say. They are losing about $160,000 a week in wages, while the company is only losing what is being paid to a small force which keeps the plant in running condition.

FISH DEALERS TO GET BETTER CAR SERVICE.

PACIFIC ELECTRIC WISHES TO ABANDON LINE ON LONG WHARF, HOWEVER.

At a hearing before the Board of Public Utilities yesterday an agreement was reached between representatives of the Pacific Electric Company and wholesale fish dealers operating at the long wharf in Santa Monica Bay, which is now within the Los Angeles municipal boundaries, whereby better train service is to be provided for the fish industry at that point. Complaint has been filed with the Board of Public Utilities that the transportation service was such that frequently large quantities of fish spoiled before reaching the markets.

Agreement was reached to have a 2 o'clock car service daily from the long wharf to Los Angeles, and such service as may be required in the morning hours, provided two hours' notice is given to the company and at least twenty-five boxes of fish at a time are provided for shipment.

In this connection, the constantly growing importance of the fish industry at the long wharf was set forth by facts and figures presented by Clifton Oliver, a wholesale fish dealer located there, and by wholesalers of Los Angeles.

It was also brought out, through statements of Frank Karr, legal counsel for the Pacific Electric, that the company has made application to the State Railroad Commission for permission to abandon its tracks on the long wharf, and that the structure is disintegrating so rapidly that it may be entirely abandoned by the company. Incidentally, the subject was discussed of the advantage the city might derive by taking over the wharf, shortening it to approximately 800 feet in length, and putting such a section in repair in order to foster the fish industry at that place.

BURY AUTO'S VICTIM.

Funeral services were held here Wednesday for Oran L. Alexander of 1158 South Harvard boulevard, who died in Fresno as a result of an auto accident in that city May 30. Mr. Alexander was an Elk and a Mason. He leaves a widow, Mary E., and a son, Benjamin B. Alexander of San Diego.

INFLUENZA CUT BY OSTEOPATHS.

Convention Speakers Claim Success for Method.

Mortality Only 1 Per Cent. Among Their Patients.

Several Hundred Delegates at State Meeting.

Statistics show that where influenza cases were treated by osteopaths the mortality averaged 1 per cent., was the claim made yesterday at the Gamut Club House, where the eighteenth annual convention of the California Osteopathic Association convened for a week's sessions. Between 300 and 400 persons from all parts of the Western States attended.

Dr. H. E. Penland of Berkeley conducted the "Influenza Symposium." He declared that aspirin, used commonly as a treatment for influenza, really did more harm than good. Dr. Louis Chandler of the University of California and expert chemist for the State Board of Health enlarged on Dr. Penland's statement. Dr. T. C. Morris of Spokane, Dr. Lillian Whiting of Los Angeles, Dr. N. B. Rundall of Petaluma and Dr. W. Curtis Brigham of Los Angeles, all spoke of influenza and the success of their treatments.

Dr. Charles H. Spencer, president of the association and well known to Pacific Coast baseball players, made the address of welcome yesterday afternoon. Dr. C. J. Gaddis of Oakland and secretary of the association also welcomed the delegates. Rev. Reynold E. Blight pronounced the invocation.

ROUND TABLE.

In charge of Dr. T. J. Ruddy of this city the regular round table discussions were held beginning at 5 o'clock. Subjects of professional interest were discussed and views and ideas were exchanged.

Yesterday morning at the College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons in the San Fernando Building unusual operations were performed by celebrated osteopathic surgeons. The clinics will be open each morning in the week.

A reception to all visiting delegates and osteopaths was held last evening at Hotel Alexandria. A special programme was given, consisting of one-act plays by the Los Angeles County Osteopathic Association, Long Beach association, Pasadena association, Pomona, Upland and Ontario association and the Orange association.

TODAY'S PROGRAMME.

Today's programme will include the discussion of "Arthrides" by six specialists, Drs. Carle H. Phinney, Stewart J. Fitch, Edward Abbott, Emma Donnelly, Mary E. Wright, and H. E. Penland. Dr. William H. Ivie of Berkeley will be in charge, assisted by Dr. Spencer. At 4 o'clock a "Child Welfare Hour" will be conducted by Dr. Gladys Morgan of San Diego.

A public lecture will be held in the Gamut Club auditorium at 8 o'clock this evening. The speakers and their subjects will be Dr. Dain L. Tasker on "The Osteopathic Physician;" Dr. Walter V. Goodfellow, "The Teeth and General Health," illustrated; Dr. T. J. Ruddy, "Osteopathy in Hay Fever," illustrated; Dr. L. N. Van H. Gerdine, "Osteopathy in Mental Diseases;" Dr. C. J. Gaddis, "Osteopathy in Influenza;" Dr. C. H. Spencer, "The Disabled Soldier." Music will be furnished by the Girls' Glee Club of the Los Angeles college of the University of California. Dr. A. A. Hummell is in charge of the evening programme.

HIGHLY COMMENDED.

National Engineering Corporation Wins Government Praise.

Officials of the National Engineering Corporation which has had the contract for outfitting all the ships built at Los Angeles Harbor by the Fulton Shipbuilding Company, have just received high commendation from the Emergency Fleet Corporation for splendid work in filling government contracts.

Contrary to the report which was published June 4 to the effect that the National Engineering Corporation had finished its government work and was closing down, corporation officials said yesterday that the concern had no intention of closing up shop, that it is a going business, enjoying great activity in the way of ship repairing and engineering, and that it expects to expand from time to time to keep pace with the development of the harbor.

Beautiful Women of Society, during the past seventy years have relied upon it for their distinguished appearance. The soft, refined, pearly white complexion it renders instantly, is always the source of flattering comment.

Twelve Hundred Women to Aid Campaign for Associate Memberships Here.

Mrs. J. T. Anderson, vice-chairman of the citizens' committee of the associate membership campaign for the Boy Scouts, yesterday received a telegram from William G. McAdoo, chairman of the National Citizens' Committee, asking that the organization of 1200 women which has worked under Mrs. Anderson's leadership lend their assistance during the present week.

Mrs. Anderson has called her cohorts together this morning at 10 o'clock at the City Hall, when final instructions will be given to the workers who are to solicit memberships in the residence and downtown districts. The Boy Scouts themselves will not be permitted to solicit any memberships.

Their contribution to the campaign will be in the form of a parade and encampment which is to take place on Thursday afternoon. Through the interest of Mrs. Leslie Sloan-Orcutt, president of the Park Commission, and W. H. Cline, permission has been granted to the Boy Scouts to hold their demonstration encampment in Pershing Square.

Tonight at Normal Hill Center, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, there will be a meeting of the seventy-two scoutmasters of the city. Maj. Walter K. Tuller, chairman of the citizens' committee; Walter Brinkop and C. N. Miller, the deputy national field scout executive, will address the scoutmasters, outlining the purpose and plans of the local campaign.

At a luncheon held at the Alexandria yesterday it developed that the help of every war organization active in Los Angeles will be forthcoming during the drive, which is to culminate on Thursday, when a green ribbon pinned to the coat will tell whether or not each Los Angelan has joined as an associate member.

Those attending the luncheon were Maj. Walter K. Tuller, Charles Toll, Mrs. E. P. Brainerd, R. H. Moulton, I. Graham Pattinson, Mrs. J. T. Anderson, C. N. Miller, Mrs. Sloan-Orcutt, Miss Belle Hall, Harold Benner, Miss Bess Muan, James Sheldon Riley and Walter Brinkop.

KILLED CALF BY MISTAKE, HE SAYS.

Ramon Lugo, an Indian from the Marengo Reservation, near Banning, was bound over to the Federal grand jury in a bond of $500 yesterday by United States Commissioner Long on the charge of killing a calf that was the property of the government. Lugo admitted the act, but claimed that it was an accident.

WRIT IS DENIED.

A writ of habeas corpus, sued out on behalf of Louis Briere, wanted in San Francisco on a charge of felony embezzlement, was denied yesterday by Judge Craig. It was shown that an officer had arrived from San Francisco with a warrant for the man's arrest. Briere was arrested here and held in the City Jail.

IDAHO STATE REUNION.

The Idahoans will meet in Snead Hall, 934 West Sixth street, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. President Charles W. Dempster will preside. The meeting is open to all who have lived in that State.

LOWER COLORADO REACHES CREST.

Second High Mark Due Latter Part of July, Says Forecaster.

According to the Weather Bureau's weather forecasts of the last month the Lower Colorado River reached its crest yesterday. In answer to an inquiry as to whether this will change the seasonal crest, the official in charge of the Weather Bureau at Denver wires today that the melting of the snow on the upper water shed checked by the cool weather of the past week will give a second crest day the latter part of July if sustained higher temperatures continued within the next two weeks.

Reports from Yuma state that the river has reached twenty-three feet, but in the opinion of river experts, this is not as important as the fact that the present discharge of the river is 60,000 feet per second.

MANY AT CANADIAN REUNION.

About 300 participated in the reunion and dance of the Canadian Maple Leaf Club at the Gamut Club House Saturday evening. J. F. Amberg, president for three years, was given a gold watch fob chain by his successor, Howard Shaver on behalf of the members.

TO CLEAR UP NOTED CASE.

Sixteen-Year-Old War for Big Estate to be Finally Fought to Finish.

A $100,000 estate contest originally started nearly sixteen years ago will be stirred next month, as Federal Judge Bledsoe yesterday insisted that the trial involving the estate of the last Ferdinand Fensky, proceed on July 14. The action was brought by Louisa Pickens and Johanna Schutt against J. H. Merriam and others.

Eugene Welke, Alma J. Schmidt, Amanda Katzing, Minnie S. Farnsworth, Corinne Loveland and Don Ferguson are named as co-defendants with Mr. Merriam, as executor and administrator of the estate of Jeannette Fensky, widow of Ferdinand Fensky. Fraudulent misrepresentation of the value of the husband's estate is alleged by Fensky's two sisters, the plaintiffs, who say they signed deeds of release on the payment of $1000 to each of them under a misapprehension of the value of the estate, caused by the inventories filed by the widow, since deceased, and her attorney.

The estate consists largely of real estate in Los Angeles, San Pedro and Orange county. There enters into the case also the complicated charge that lands owned by the plaintiff's brother in Kansas were deeded away to certain parties named as defendants, without consideration, and for the alleged sole purpose of covering up the value of the estate.

The litigation started soon after the death of Fensky, on August 7, 1903. On September 7, 1915, Judge Bledsoe dismissed the suit brought by the present complainants and they appealed. The United States Circuit Court reversed Judge Bledsoe and sent the case back to be tried on its merits. The defendants submitted a supplementary answer based on a decision of the Supreme Court of Kansas, where some of the property involved is located. The complainants asked for time to consider the amended answer and the court ruled that they were entitled to it.

TACOMA MEN STUDY OUR ROAD BUILDING.

With the object of profiting by the experience of Los Angeles county in highway construction, James R. O'Farrell, J. W. Slayden and D. I. Cornell, of Tacoma, Wash., arrived in the city last night on a three days' inspection trip. Mr. Cornell is a past president of the Tacoma Chamber of Commerce, and Messrs. O'Farrell and Slayden are members of the Board of Supervisors of Pierce county, which, the day before their departure south, voted a $2,000,000 bond issue for highway construction, Mr. Slayden being the father of the good roads movement in his part of the State.

"We came south, primarily," said Mr. Slayden, "to investigate the interesting experiment of your road commissioner, Mr. Joyner, in laying a Willite armor plate pavement across Nigger Slough, using the materials found at the side of the road. We plan to begin immediately on the building of 100 miles of roads in our county, and the process offers very large possibilities to us."

BRIGHT FUTURE FOR THIS CITY.

New Realty Board Head is Optimistic About It.

Says Now is Proper Time to Start Forward Move.

New Real Estate License Law Praised by Speaker.

W. I. Hollingsworth was formally installed as President of the Los Angeles Realty Board yesterday at the annual meeting of the organization at a luncheon at the Broadway Department Store. At the same time the officers and directors who will serve with Mr. Hollingsworth in guiding the affairs of the board during this year were installed. These included C. E. Miller, first vice-president; O. A. Vickrey, second vice-president; Gilbert S. Wright, third vice-president; J. M. Best, secretary; Frank Ryan, treasurer; Benjamin E. Page, counsel, and the following directors: H. T. Coffin, Fred W. Forrester, W. I. Hollingsworth, C. F. Hunter, D. F. McGarry, Austin O. Martin, C. E. Miller, R. C. Mitchell, P. D. Rowan, Frank Ryan, William A. Ryon, George M. SoRelle, O. A. Vickrey and O. G. Wildey.

President Hollingsworth, in assuming the headship of the organization, spoke optimistically of the great development enterprises now under way in Los Angeles, declaring that at no time in the city's history had there been a better opportunity than now to undertake a "Los Angeles forward" movement. Such great development plans as harbor improvements, the building of a suitable civic center and the "build-your-home" movement, he said, should be pushed to a conclusion, all works in which he urged realtors to participate. He paid a fine tribute to the work accomplished by Mr. McGarry as president of the organization, who was given a vote of thanks.

At the conclusion of the reading of their annual reports by Secretary Best and Treasurer P. C. Campbell, both of which showed the organization to be in a flourishing condition, Gilbert M. Wright extended an invitation to the members on behalf of the National Association of Real Estate Boards to attend the annual convention of that organization at Atlantic City on June 25. Mr. Wright urged the attendance of at least twenty-five members of the local board, in order that Southern California's message to the convention might be presented in a striking way.

William W. Mines explained the provisions of the new real estate license law recently signed by Gov. Stephens, and urged the realtors to give it their earnest support. He described it as the most beneficial act of legislation that had ever been enacted in the interests of ethical practices in the real estate business.

EXTENDING CITY'S STREETS AND SEWERS.

A petition before the City Council yesterday, asking for the sewering of Van Ness avenue, between Melrose avenue and a point 450 feet southerly of Melrose, was referred to the City Engineer for his recommendation. Final ordinances were adopted for the sewering of Meridian street, between Avenues 52 and 54; Seventy-first street, between Moneta avenue and Figueroa street, and the Roman-avenue district in Wilmington. A petition from property owners on Garnet street, between Soto and Boyle avenue, asking for the improvement of the street, was granted and sent to the City Engineer for the necessary ordinance. The map of the assessment district for the improvement of Avenue 53, between York boulevard and Irvington place, was adopted.

TAKES NO CHANCES.

Though Prisoner Absolves Partner, Court will Hold Both.

What the court declared was a plain attempt to absolve his partner failed yesterday in the court of Justice Forbes, when Earl Marsellaise changed certain features of a confession to burglary he had made. Marsellaise and W. E. Carter were accused of the offense, and the former made a complete confession, and at first implicated Carter. He said that he and Carter entered the shop of the Burton Tire Company, 332 West Pico street, and took twelve auto tires, afterwards selling them to a local dealer. Carter denied his guilt. When Marsellaise took the stand yesterday he said his partner was a man named Tyson, and not Carter. The court held both to answer, fixing bail at $500.

NO ACCIDENTS WEEK.

Central Western Railroads Make a Notable Record.

The officers and employees of the railorads in the Central Western region are being congratulated by the regional director, Hale Holden, on the fact that the railroads in this section have passed a whole week without having a single accident. The director praises these workers to whose care, skill and vigilance such a creditable exhibit is very largely due, he exhorts them to keep up the good "safety first" work and to do their utmost to combat the idea that it is impossible to run a railroad without accidents.

HOLD YOUNG BOY ON SERIOUS CHARGE.

YAKIMA (Wash.) June 9.—Roy Wolff, aged 16, charged with murdering Elmer Greer, driver of a rent automobile at Bakersfield, Cal., on May 26, was arrested this afternoon at the county probation office here. He is held in the City Jail awaiting arrival of an officer from Bakersfield.

JOINS JEWISH PROTEST.

The City Council accepted yesterday an invitation from the Jewish Protest Conference Committee to attend and participate in a mass meeting to be held at 2 o'clock next Sunday afternoon in Temple Auditorium to protest against atrocities against Jews in Poland and other countries.

Why Brownstein-Louis Company Selected Westlake and Orange

THE BROWNSTEIN-LOUIS Company, of Los Angeles, apparel manufacturers, having outgrown their present buildings, plan to build a splendid structure at the corner of Westlake avenue and Orange street to house their institution. When this announcement was made in the Los Angeles papers on Saturday evening and Sunday morning, the question immediately arose: "Why do you wish to build in the Westlake district?"

This question was prompted in most instances by the idea that the Westlake district is an exclusive residence section. A moment's thought and most people will realize that this district east of Alvarado street is no longer the exclusive district that it was some years ago.

Through the medium of this announcement, Brownstein-Louis Company wishes to answer the question and to set forth some of the many reasons for selecting this logical and ideal location.

We have an institution employing hundreds of young women and girls. We want to give them the finest, yet most practical environment in which to do their work. We do not merely wish them to make a living—we want them to enjoy their work by giving them pleasant surroundings away from the smoke and roar of a manufacturing district. Our present force is overjoyed at the project and desirous of such a location west of Broadway. We want to attract more young women of the highest type. The location we have selected will make this possible as we pay the highest wages and manufacture the highest grade of silk and fine fabric merchandise. We must maintain our high standard and we know the type of women we desire to employ will respond to these pleasant surroundings. Can we ask these young women to come into a neighborhood of dirt, dust, noise and confusion?

At the same time we must be practical. We must be adjacent to the business district, available for out of town buyers and visitors. The plans call for a building of the highest type—out of place in a strictly industrial district. The location selected is ideal for the purpose, both from our standpoint and that of hundreds of citizens who recognize the increase in property values bound to follow, and the rebirth of a section no longer strictly residential nor one devoted exclusively to business, but one undergoing the transition stage when property values are at a standstill.

With the kind of building that we propose to erect and the character of our business—without the noise, smoke or heavy traffic—we are not spoiling a residential district. Our showrooms will be located in this building and as our product is distributed over the various parts of the world, we naturally have out of town buyers continually calling on us. For the convenience of these and the merchants of our own city we must be within reasonable distance of the business center of the city. The car service is excellent, which is a very particular factor in our consideration of a site. This location is but ten minutes from Seventh and Broadway. Seventh Street has become the city's main business artery. Westlake Avenue and Orange Street can be reached from practically all parts of the city by one change of cars. The Seventh Street, Eighth Street, Ninth Street, Sixth Street and West Second Street lines are all available within two blocks. Furthermore the heavy morning and evening traffic will be neutralized by increasing the number of morning outbound and evening inbound passengers.

Pioneering always seems radical. Five years from now people will be surprised that there was ever a question raised as to the desirability of the coming of this great institution.

Our aims and ideals are beyond the mere question of profit making and we hope to see the fulfillment of our ideals in this building.

We ask the complete support and good will of the citizens of this city in our new endeavor.

You Will Never Be Cured by Local Treatment With Sprays

Catarrh is a condition of the blood and cannot be cured by local applications of sprays and douches; this has been proven by the thousands who have vainly resorted to this method of treatment.

Catarrh should not be neglected or experimented with. The wrong treatment is valuable time lost, during which the disease is getting a firmer hold upon its victim, and making it more difficult for even the proper treatment to accomplish results.

Though Catarrh makes its first appearance in the nostrils, throat and air passages, the disease becomes more and more aggravated

Said a friend to Bill Essick one day, "Say, Bill, I'm not long on your left fielder in the sticking line." "Never you mind," replied Bill, "you just wait a bit and see if he don't land on the apple." Here was another case of Essick's rare judgment bearing fruit. Bill knew his man and he knew that when the apple dumpling began to get his orbs on the sphere that it would be only a short time before Edington would lift himself into the .300 column.

And now for Babe Borton. This clever sticker ran amuck with his bludgeon last week, gaining thirty-eight points, and climbing so close to .300 that it will require only a day or two more to bring him up where he belongs among the league's best swatters. Johnny Mitchell started the week with nine shots in fifteen times up—then he stopped suddenly, and in the last four games failed to hit safely. Even at that, the league's best shortstop clung to his mark of the week previous. He is still close to the .300 line.

That Rock of Gibraltar in center field—a master workman in that position—of course, we mean the old, reliable Chadbourne, gained five points, and is still holding his own at .305. He is one of the craftiest players in the league, and is par excellence the sacrifice hitter of the Coast.

Bobby Meusel slipped slightly with his cudgel, but hardly enough to perturb his hundreds of admirers. He is probably the greatest natural sticker ever seen in Coast League baseball, and unless all signs fail is sure to set the big league on fire when he goes up. The averages to date follow:

PASADENA TO PRESENT LETTERS.

Letters will be presented in track, baseball, swimming and tennis next week by the Pasadena High School. Nine men will receive a track letter, eleven in baseball, ten in swimming and five in tennis, which is a minor sport.

Keep Your Seats, Ladies and Gents; Don't Get Excited.

This is Young George, who is certainly an untamed-looking young man in the picture. They say he's even wilder than he looks when he gets in the ring. His left hand is a teaser, and just as he gets 'em feeling silly with it he knocks 'em dead with his right. Some half-dozen young men have faced him in the Vernon arena and all but one have been carried out on a plank. Tonight he is to fight again and you may send your flowers to Mike Doll's dressing-room. At least, that's what Georgie's friends say. However, if Mike can still swing like he used to and should happen to connect, George is liable to ride out feet first himself.

WELTERS WILL FEATURE CARD.

Three Matches at this Weight Booked for Tonight.

Mike Doll and Kid George in the Main Event.

Semi-Windup to be Between Mende and Spencer.

TONIGHT'S CARD.

Young George vs. Mike Doll 145 pounds.

George Spencer vs. Kid Mende, 122 pounds.

Kid Mexico vs. Jack Hartford, 145 pounds.

George Moss vs. Jack Oliver, 145 pounds.

Ted Frenchie vs. Young Papke, 122 pounds.

Johnny Woodruff vs. Dave Williams, 130 pounds.

Three bouts between welterweights will feature the boxing card at the Vernon arena tonight. Of the entire six bouts there is but one boxer listed who makes any pretense of being clever, and that is Georgie Spencer, who meets Kid Mende in the semi-windup.

Mike Doll and Kid George are down for the main event, and if the bout goes the limit it will be a surprise to the fans. Doll is a slugger all the way and George is about the heaviest hitter that has performed in the Vernon ring. The bout will be a pretty tough tryout for George, who has been in the ring but a few times. Doll is an old-timer at the game and is always dangerous.

The semi-windup between Kid Mende and Georgie Spencer looks good. Spencer is remarkably fast, and is a clever youngster, while Mende is an aggressive slugger, who depends on his willingness to mix it to win for him.

Kid Mexico, who beat George Moss last Friday night, after the toughest kind of a slugging match, is matched with Jack Hartford, who put up a tough scrap with Jimmy Wynn. Hartford is gradually working himself into good condition and as soon as he gets endurance he will be a dangerous boy for any of the 145-pounders to tackle.

George Moss is matched with Jack Oliver, an old-timer, who is said to be something of a slugger.

Ted Frenchie and Young Papke are scheduled to meet in a return match. The two went on in a substitute bout a week ago, and after a rather sensational mill, Papke won the decision over his more experienced opponent. The defeat failed to please Frenchie, who at once asked for another chance, and tonight he gets it. If they put up as good a bout as they did in their former meeting they will make a hit with the fans.

Johnny Woodruff and Dave Williams, a pair of hard-hitting 130-pounders, are down for the curtain-raiser.

INTER-ALLIED SHOOTING MATCHES.

FORTY RIFLEMAN WILL REPRESENT THE UNITED STATES.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LEMANS (France) Friday, June 6.—The names of the forty riflemen who will represent the United States in the inter-Allied rifle and pistol competitions at Lemans, June 22 were announced today. Thirty are from the army and ten from the Marine Corps. The selections were made at the close of a three weeks' elimination shoot in which 200 of the best shots in the army and Marine Corps participated.

Monday the American marksmen will begin the final stage of training, after which selections for team and individual competition will be made.

Ten nations, including the British overseas dominions, will take part in the inter-Allied matches. Among those selected are Corp. Leyland K. Peyton, Fifth marines, South Pasadena, A.E.F. rifle champion, and Sergt. L. A. Chenoweth, Thirteenth marines, Sebastopol, Cal.

GOLD MEDALS FOR GOLF WINNERS.

WILL BE AWARDED AT THE ANNUAL TOURNEY IN THE NORTHWEST.

SPOKANE (Wash.) June 9.—Gold medals for winners of the open championship, the woman's championships, the amateur championship and the first six flights for men's competition, and the first four flights for women are to be awarded in the annual tournament of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association here June 16 to 21, it was announced today.

In addition, championship prizes will be awarded the first five professionals in the open championships and cups and silver medals will be given the winner, runner-up and medalist in various other events.

MUSINGS OF MISSOULA MIKE

Tells of Outrages Committed in the Name of Salvage.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

"Was jes' thinkin' of that ball which was fouled into the right field bleachers Sunday, an' the fat guy that tried to get away with it," mused Missoula Mike, the marine, by way of leading up to mooching a few tickets for this week's series between Los Angeles an' Oakland. "The obese party chucked the pill in his inside pocket, an' it took two special deputies to pry it loose.

"This reminded me of what we call salvagin' in the army. Oh, Salvage, what crimes has been committed in thy name! It got so you'd have to nail anything down, or spike it to a tree with your bayonet, if you wanted to keep it. Finally, it got to be an unwritten law in the A.E.F. that you could take anything so long as you could get away with it, providin' it didn't belong to an officer, an' even an officer's belongings was legitimate prey for a buck private if he didn't get caught in the act.

"This practice was partly the product of necessity. Up along the front, where it was hard to get supplies, the army would run short of a lot of things. Some guy would lose his safety razor or his iron rations, or maybe throw away his blankets, helmet an' gas mask on a long hike, jes' naturally bein' too 'fategery' to carry 'em, as the French say.

Generally, they would have no trouble replacin' these things when they bivouacked for the night, as the chances is that there was another division just in front who had thrown everything over board while it was marchin'. I has known soldiers to have as many as seven different steel helmets inside a week, an' they never did roll up in the same blankets twice. Then, in battle a man jes' about naturally loses everything he has except his fightin' tools. If his clothin' an' pack ain't shot off him, they is generally worn out an' ruined in a few days of fightin', an' he walks the shoes off'n himself.

"A battlefield is a strange an' littered sight after a big scrap. All over the ground is rifles, revolvers, canteens, belts, shoes, shirts, socks, pup tents, overcoats, bandoliers, helmets, masks, mess kits, field kitchens, field glasses, busted cannons, machine guns an' what not. What a time a bunch of kids would have followin' up a victorious army an' helpin' themselves to what they wanted. It looks like a terrible an' wanton waste, but this stuff is all gathered up an' placed in great piles, or what is called salvage dumps. Comin' out the soldiers help themselves to what they want in these dumps, an' lots of time get better equipment than what they went with. This also is called salvagin'. It's a necessary system, but it gets a guy in the habit of takin' anything he sees layin' around lose, an' the result was that you never knew whether you would wake up the next mornin' with any personal belongin's.

"One of the cleverest piece of salvagin' I ever saw done was down at Cantrisson. The boys was badly fagged after twelve days in the Argonne, an' slept so sound that they seemed to be in a trance. One doughboy, however, was out of luck. He hadn't been able to salvage any blankets or bed linen, an' found it entirely too cold to sleep. So when the two guys in the pup tent next to him began snorin' in chorus, he crawls in, rolls 'em both out of their blankets without wakenin' 'em, an' the result is that he sleeps warm an' comfortable himself the rest of the night.

"But there was one case which beat this. I had been detailed off for police duty, an' a good many of the police was mounted. Havin' nothin' to do for half an hour, I tied my mount to a tree an' stretched out on the ground under some bushes for what rest I could get among the bustin' shells.

"About this time a doughboy happens along on his way to the front. He is a straggler. Suddenly he spots my horse. He goes over without seein' me, an' begins uncinchin' the saddle. I wondered what in the world that doughboy wanted with a saddle, an' my curiosity prompted me to let him go ahead. To my surprise he don't take the saddle, but lays it on the ground. Then he climbs on the horse an' starts to ride off, when I jumps out, sticks a gun in his face an' asks him what he means by stealin' my horse. He protests that he ain't stealin' the nag, but just salvagin' it. Imagine salvagin' 1300 pounds of horse flesh. His idea in takin' off the saddle was that with it some of the M.P.'s would recognise it as belongin' to their outfit. Without the saddle they would think the hoss just a stray which he had picked up. That ball bein' fouled off sent my thoughts off in this track, an' I recited the hoss incident just to show you to what lenghts salvagin' was beln' carried when the war ended.

"Jes' mention 'salvagin'' in the hearin' of any ex-soldier, an' see him give you the big grin.

"Do y'h know," resumed Mike, thumbing Spalding's record book, "there is times when I can't get the drift of you sportin' writers. Now, when something leaks out about the big salary paid some athlete in baseball, or how some magnate paid another a fancy price for a player, y'h all stand up in your swivel chairs an' yell 'commercialism!' Then you sit down an' bang out a few hectic sentences about the dollar mark predominatin' in the great national pastime, an' expects the public to take you seriously. But if a big boxin' match is pulled off you put the purse in the headlines, an' then dig out

ANGELS HAVE A BIG LEAD.

BY ED O'MALLEY.

And now the Coast League fans are asking "what's Red Killefer going to do with that big lead he has at present?" San Francisco just now is Red's nearest competitor, but the faltering Seals are eight and a half games to the leeway, and unless all signs fail arch ardly in a position this week to close up on the winging Angels If one closes one's eyes and visualizes the space between Killefer and Charley Graham, one will run up with an awful gap. The Seraphs take on the Oaks this week at Washington Park for seven games. Unless all form goes awry, the Cherubs should annex this series to their long list of victories.

Killefer's pitchers, almost to a man, are projecting high-class ball. This fact of itself is a great asset to any club, and to a leader it spreads discouragement throughout the other clubs of a league. These hurlers are backed up by a bunch of sluggers that would almost hold their own down east among the big babies. Hardly any other teams in the Coast League can boast a reliable hurling staff, and for this reason alone it looks might squally for those managers who are expecting the Angels to get into a slump. They had a batting lapse during the middle of the week in the last series with the Tigers, but came out of it at the end and just lambasted the tired onion all over the lot.

The Angelic lineup at present boasts one of the best ever seen west of the Mississippi. If there is anything that it is really lacking in, it is speed on the bases—apart from this, the nine is almost ideal. Slyboots, Killefer, is there with a little reserve strength if such a desideratum were really needed for Cherubic success at present.

He has a three-diamond special, one-best-bet up his sleeve in the form of Ray Bates, who has not yet been used regularly. Many baseball pinseers are of opinion that Ray will prove a sensation in this league when he gets into fettle. As a third-sacker he is in the first flight, and he can just maul that old apple to a fare ye well. Ray's arm is a little sore just now, but he is fast rounding into himself.

Now here is a paradox in Coast League baseball—a winning combination held intact while one of the greatest players ever graduated from the West sits idly on the bench. Is Red Killefer a second Johnny McGraw, who some years ago had a number of utility men that were as good as his regulars? If the Angels are to be halted, who is the Moses that will lead the halters into the promised land.

When the Senators made their first appearance here this year they looked indeed like foemen worthy of Johnny Powers's boys' steel. They played excellent ball, and the way Griggs, Wolter and Eldred were hammering the orb, it really seemed as if the home team was to have its work cut out for them to prevent the Yippers from heading them off. Bill Rogers took the series, four to three, after a hard and exciting struggle.

Then lo, and behold! the Coyotes went away from here and began to lose everything but their yip. The big blow off came several weeks ago when the Tigers in a frolic lambasted them to a frazzle, grabbing five out of six games. The Solons then went from bad to worse and from there to Portland, where they lost four out of six.

When the Seals left here several weeks ago with four Angel scalps in their belts, the cry went up: "It's up to Frisco to stop Killefer." Just about this time Red throttled this cry in its infancy by slipping up north and trimming Charley Graham, five out of seven. In extenuation of this debacle suffered by the runner-up in the race, it may be said that Roy Corhan, the master mind of the Seal infield, was absent from the game last week, and with this handicap it remained only for Fitzgerald to be missing in right field to make the San Francisco team a thing of shreds and patches.

Heaping Mt. Lowe on Old Baldy in the trouble line, Charley Graham's moundmen at present are nothing more than a coterie of batters' delight. The one bright particular exception is that old battle ax, Tom Seaton, who this year has given the crutch the cradle's infancy. Tom is the big wig in Moundsville on the Coast this year—why?—well 'tis easily explained in three words—he has control.

Lack of this has heretofore been his bete noir. During his fiasco with the Angels several years ago, he grew so wild that he soon became obsessed with the idea that the mound at Washington Park was too high, and really recommended that it be lowered for the purpose of coaxing back his control. It is nothing else than Seaton's great crag work this year that has kept Dr. Straub's pets so well up in the race thus far. Should anything happen to Thomas, it is more than likely that the Seals would soon

RUBE MARQUARD FRACTURES LEG.

Blossom Seeley, the famous exponent of the terpsichorean art, who is at present filling an engagement at the Orpheum Theater in this city, received a telegram to the effect that her husband, Rube Marquard, equally as famous as a baseball pitcher broke his leg in the game between Cincinnati and Brooklyn in the former city, yesterday.

Miss Seeley will finish her engagement at the Orpheum, after which she will leave immediately to join her husband in Chicago. The exact extent of Marquard's injury could not be learned last night.

TRACK EVENT AT HOLLYWOOD.

Snappy Affair Pulled Off by High School Lads.

Is Real Battle for the Inter-Class Honors.

Meet Part of Physical Education Now in Effect.

The Freshman of Hollywood High School, green as grass, but not so green when it comes to track events held a peppy, snappy track meet amongst themselves, the B-niners pitting themselves against the A-niners yesterday afternoon. After quite a hot and very tight race all the way through for the inter-class honors the upper section of the low-ly scrubs finally gained the lead over the lower crew by one lone point. The score was A. nine 53 1-2, B. nine 51 1-2. The meet was run off as part of the physical education propaganda now in effect at Hollywood High School, where-by every boy in the institution gets plenty of wholesome exercise and has a chance to show what he is worth from an athletic standpoint.

That system has been the making of most all of the high schools that have taken it up. Stars are often discovered by it, and that at the first year the students are in school. By the time they graduate the students become really expert and are big point winners. The affair was not a very stiff workout, and both grades rather loafed on the job, according to the coach. The results of the fracas are as follows:

880-yd. dash—first, Rooker, A-9; second, Heyn, A-9; third Wycliff, A-9. Time 2min. 30s.

100-yd. dash—first, Citron, A-9; second Jones, A-9. Time 11s.

70-yd. high hurdles—first, Rooker, A-9; second, Smith, A-9; third, Cole, A-9. Time 10s.

440-yd. dash—first, Sears; second, Stickney; third, Cole, all A-9.

120-yd. low hurdles—first, Tryon, B-9; second, Jones, A-9; third, Smith, A-9. Times 15 3-5s.

220-yd. dash—first, Stickney, A-9; second, Waggler, B-9; third, Garey, A-9. Time 32s.

Mile run—first, Rooker, A-9; second, Spears, B-9; third, Walton, B-9. Time 5min. 56 2-5s.

8-man relay won by the B-9 grade.

Pole Vault tied by Jones and Tryan, A-9, Harper and Stimpson, B-9, height 8ft.

8-lb. shot put—Harper, B-9, first; Johnson, B-9, second; Smith, A-9, third. Distance 35ft. 2in.

High jump—Borton, B-9, first; Cole, A-9, second; third tied by Wycliff, Smith, and Tredhole, B-9, height 4ft.

Broad jump—first, Jones, A-9; second, Barton, B-9; third, Cole, A-9. Distance 16ft. 7in.

CONVENTION IS ONE OF A NUMBER TO BE HELD IN STATE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OAKLAND, June 9.—Traffic officers from cities and counties from Fresno north began a two-day session here today. The convention is one of a number that have been called for various places in the State. A considerable number of subjects will be taken up, from "jay-walkers" to the best way of regulating lights. Resolutions were adopted today urging all communities to place proper signs on thoroughfares, approving the proposed $40,000,000 highway and the Yosemite highway bonds. Among those attending the convention are: George W. Matthews, Chief of Police, Santa Rosa; Guy R. Robbins, Santa Rosa; F. L. Ekgvard, Assemblyman and author 1919 Motor Vehicle Act; C. R. Collins, secretary, Sacramento Auto Trades Association; William Simpson, Chief of Police, Stockton; E. W. Wofford, Charles H. Reade, Santa Clara county, and Thomas Niceley, speed officer, Fresno.

PLAYERS' DIVISION WILL BE CHANGED.

NO CHANCE OF WRANGLE IN THE WORLD'S SERIES THIS FALL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, June 9.—The method of dividing the players' share of the world series profits undoubtedly will be changed again, according to a statement by President Ban Johnson of the American League. He said the subject would be considered at a meeting of the National Commission to be held at Cincinnati Thursday. Johnson said the new plan probably would allow the first two teams in each league to share in the receipts.

ANGELS HAVE A BIG LEAD.

find themselves submerged in the second division.

The Angels hook up with Del Howard's aggregation of sluggers this week, but it will be a different crew than Red met up north recently. Hack Miller, one of the best sluggers in the Coast League, is out of the game with a broken ankle, and can hardly hope to get into the traces again inside of two months. Claude Cooper, recently bought from the Angels, is covering center for Howard, and is doing fairly well, but he is not a Hack Miller with the stick. A. Arlett at third is in the old position formerly occupied by Rod Murphy, while Rod himself is holding down the initial sack for Roche, who has gone floozy in his batting.

Stumpf, at short, had a bad week against the Tigers, and he fell away miserably in his sticking. Wilie also showed to poor advantage, and to add to all of this, Howard's projectors looked as if they were shot to pieces.

Holling, the great find of Scout Connery of the Yankees, didn't show much, and the old reliable Harry Krause, who, by the way, is not at his best just now, fared badly when he tried his luck against the Vernons, last Sunday morning. Should Howard be fortunate enough to grab hold of a good first sacker and shoot Rod Murphy back to third he will then have a pretty nifty team. Murphy is a host unto himself, and as a slugger he just simply busted up three games for the Tigers last week.

Killefer will probably send Bill Pertica or Brown against the Commuters this afternoon. Both hurlers are in rare fettle and pitching about the best ball of their careers. Brown has shown wonderful improvement over his work of last year, and is among the top-notchers in the twirling line thus far. Howard may hit upon Holling to do his heaving today, but unless the young man shows better control than he displayed last week he should be in line for a good lambasting.

The following were the results of the series last week: Vernons took 4 out of 7 from Oakland. Angels trounced the Seals 5 out of 7, Portland hung it on Sacramento 4 out of 6, and Seattle and Salt Lake each won three games.

The teams play in the following cities this week: Oakland at Los Angeles, Vernon at San Francisco, Salt Lake at Portland and Sacramento at Seattle. The game between the Oklands and the Angels this afternoon will be called at 2:45 sharp. Ladies admitted free on all days except Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

PORTLAND TAKES ANOTHER GAME.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) June 9.—Playing errorless ball and backed by free hitting, including a home run by Blue in the third inning with the bases full, Portland won from Sacramento, 12 to 1. The Beavers made six runs in the third inning. The Senators used three pitchers.

OWNER OF THE HOOSIERS HERE.

PRESIDENT OF INDIANAPOLIS LOOKING AT COAST PLAYERS.

J. C. McGill, owner of the Indianapolis club, which is now the runner-up in the American Association, is at present in Los Angeles and expects to remain here for a short sojourn. Mr. McGill is here for the double purpose of looking over some of the Coast league players and also for rest and recreation. McGill in speaking of baseball in general in the Middle West this year had the following to say to a Times scribe at Washington Park last Saturday:

"We have a sensation in our league this year, a fellow named Miller, who is playing centerfield for the St. Pauls. He has just set the fans crazy with his work, both in the field and at the bat. Bill Essick tried to get Miller from the New York Yankees. My, but it's too bad Bill didn't get him! For I really believe if he had, that Vernon would be leading the Coast league right now.

"Believe me when I tell you that I sold a mighty sweet piece of pitching machinery to Essick when I sent him Rex Dawson. If the American Association hadn't put the kibosh on spitters, I wouldn't have left Dawson go for any inducement. Rex was my best heaver and when it comes to a pinch he is simply a dandy. Of course, when they wouldn't allow him to use his spitter it was like putting a toe hold on a man and I simply had to let him go. I would rather have him in the ninth inning in the box than any other pitcher I ever knew."

In speaking about Pacific Coast League affairs, Mr. McGill spoke as follows: "Bill Clymer made the mistake of his life in getting a lot of old has-beens together, although I must say that he got two good men in Compton and Derrick, but the others run for Sweeny."

In commenting on the baseballs used this year in his league, he declared they were the worst he had ever seen. "Many of them," said he, "after being hit several times look like eggs. The covers are rough. I used more balls this year in the first twenty-five games than I did in fifty games last year. It is of frequent occurrence for the batters to quarrel with the umpires in their insistent demands to have the lopsided balls thrown out of the game."

Mr. McGill is much impressed with Johnny Powers's club from what he has heard since arriving in Los Angeles and predicts that unless the unforeseen happens, the Angels should carry off the pennant of 1919.

EXHIBITION GAME OF BILLIARDS.

A very fine exhibition game of 200 points 18.2 balk line was played at Morningstar's Billiard Parlor between Frank Kenniston and Ora C. Morningstar. The former champion scored 200 points in seven inning against Kenniston 43, making an average of 29 for Morningstar and 6 for Kenniston. Fancy shots after the game contributed to make the evening a pleasant one. Morningstar will lecture on billiards every day this week from 12:30 to 1 p.m., and play local amateurs every evening at 544 South Spring street.

BELIEVES DEMPSEY A SURE WINNER.

Al Munro the well-known tire man and one of the best posted persons in Los Angeles on sports in general has come out flatfooted and pickes Dempsey to trounce Jess Willard at Toledo on July 4. Muro is a keen and ardent follower of pugilism and has seen both men in action. "I think Willard is too old," said Muro to a friend yesterday. "Dempsey on the other hand, has youth and has aggressiveness that is hard to stop. Jack has done everything that has been asked of him and has knocked out almost every man he has met. Now what more can a man do?

"When I was down east recently, I saw Dempsey in action at Milwaukee and believe me he can step some. He simply tore in and battered down his opponent's guard and soon shot over the sleep producer. I was so much impressed with his work at the time that I felt then and there that there wasn't a man living today that could stand up long under the fierce aggressiveness of Dempsey."

When asked to express an opinion as to how many rounds the bout would go, he smilingly replied, "Ah, that's a different matter. You see Willard is a giant and may be hard to get at for a round or two, but I feel sure that Jack will get to him not long after the fight begins and any man he can get to he is sure to lick."

ST. LOUIS MAN LEADS THE FIELD.

HAS BEST SCORE IN TRANS-MISSISSIPPI GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS, June 9.—R. E. Bockenkamp, the public links player of St. Louis, led the field in the first qualification round of the trans-Mississippi golf championship at the St. Louis Country Club today with a 75, when one more than half of the contestants had finished the round. R. F. Knepper, Sioux City, Iowa, scored 76, while Sam W. Reynolds of Omaha and Nelson Whitney of New Orleans took 78 each, and L. B. Broomfield, Denver, 79.

The largest field in the history of the Trans-Mississippi Golf Association championship tournament began teeing off early today at the St. Louis Country Club.

With nearly 300 entered and paid fees to help swell the fund of the Red Cross, more than 100 contented themselves with aiding charity.

Among the southern entries were Nelson Whitney and Ruben Bush of New Orleans, both of whom are picked as likely finalists in the contest for the title held by G. L. Conley of Kansas City, who was unable to defend his honor on account of business.

From the headwaters of the Mississippi, the entrants included Harry G. Legg of Minneapolis, five times winner of the title, and Dudley Mudge of St. Paul, who has attracted attention in national meets.

There were also many starters from Far Western States. The growth of golf in the Southwest was indicated by the unusually large number of entries from Oklahoma and Texas.

IS WINNER IN INDIVIDUAL POINTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 9.—A. E. Teschner, the former Harvard sprinting star, was the individual point winner in the championship track games of the American expeditionary forces, held at Colombes, France, Saturday, according to a cablegram received today at Y.M.C.A. headquarters from Dr. George Fisher.

LIBEL SUIT DISMISSED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—Demurrer by the Chronicle Publishing Company to the suit of the Spring Valley Water Company asking $50,000 as damages for alleged libelous statements published in the San Francisco Chronicle concerning the company was sustained today in the Federal court here and the suit dismissed.

AUTO ACCIDENT MAY HAVE FATAL ENDING.

VISITOR AT ONTARIO STRUCK BY TOURISTS' CAR FROM ARIZONA.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ONTARIO, June 9.—George A. Applegate, a visitor from San Francisco, is in the San Antonio Hospital tonight and may die as the result of injuries sustained when struck by an automobile driven by J. T. Moore, an Arizona motorist. Moore, who was accompanied by his wife and daughter, had driven from Arizona without mishap and had almost reached his destination, the home of F. C. Jacobs, a friend residing on North Ramona avenue.

The accident was the result of Moore's headlights failing to work properly. He was driving with only the small sidelights burning and failed to see Applegate, who was walking in the same direction, until too late. The slow speed of the car probably saved the pedestrian from instant death. He suffered dangerous cuts about the head, several broken ribs and probably internal injuries.

AUTO TURNS TURTLE.

Ventura Man is Victim of Double Misfortune.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VENTURA, June 9.—On their way to Ventura to make funeral arrangements for Mrs. Frances Morales, who passed away at her home in El Rio, the car in which her husband and two brothers were riding turned turtle and the three men were all severely injured.

The husband was the most seriously injured of the three, and is reported in a precarious condition at St. John's Hospital, Oxnard, where he was taken.

HOLDS HER HUSBAND.

Court Helps Actress When Sued for Alleged Desertion.

Marie Poesner Murray, whose stage name is Marie Pavis, who objected to her husband, John W. Murray, giving out their telegrams for publication to a New York theatrical magazine, won a victory in Judge Taft's court yesterday when, having Mr. Murray's divorce suit under submission, the court denied Mr. Murray a decree.

The messages between husband and wife are records of the case. She wrote:

"Dear Jack: I knew all along you could not prove your accusations. Go as far as you like with your desertion charges. Wishing you luck, Marie."

"Dear Marie: I understand you have some one you are in love with and want to get married, so I shall do my part and wish same. Jack."

"Dear Jack: You have been misinformed regarding my forthcoming marriage. Am still your wife. Marie."

MORE HONORS SHOWN TO MARY PICKFORD.

Matteo Sandona, a noted portrait painter, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday to paint a portrait of Miss Mary Pickford, to be hung in the National Gallery at Washington. Miss Pickford recently won a contest conducted by a eastern magazine for the most popular world's motion-picture star, and the magazine commissioned Mr. Sandona, who was one of the jury of award for paintings at the Chicago World's Fair, to come to Los Angeles. The sittings will take place at Miss Pickford's home, and it is expected will continue daily for six weeks.

One Woman Fails to Get One Man Pays Alimony.

Judge Taft presiding in Katie Harlow vs. Robert Harlow on the grounds of desertion; Emily Golden vs. George Golden on the grounds of desertion; Daisy Edwards vs. Harry Edwards on the grounds of desertion, and Chloe B. Divorce from Harry C. B. ground of misconduct. In the case of Katie Harlow vs. Robert Harlow the court ordered Mr. Harlow to pay his wife alimony of $75 per month. All of these cases were submission and were taken under advisement.

Alma Eicord was granted a divorce from Leo Eicord, the ground of desertion.

Awarded Damages for Breach of Promise Suit. Called a Thief.

A jury in Judge Houser's court trying the $15,000 breach of promise suit of Mrs. Alice P. Gerrie against her nephew, Frank P. Howard, for the latter's wife for alienation of affections, returned a verdict awarding in favor of Mrs. Gerrie the sum of $1000.

Mrs. Gerrie testified that she had loaned her nephew and upon her return accused of stealing articles from the house upon a previous visit. Howard was arrested, the charges were dismissed. The Howards denied the charges and filed a sensational counter charge against Mrs. Gerrie, in which Howard's little boy testified that he heard Mrs. Gerrie say to Howard's wife: "You d—n fool, you ought to be glad that teddy bear is gone." This was also denied.

In fact, the expansion of the company's business into lucrative fields was restricted by the repeated failure of tires to bear loads and give traction.

The solution was found in the deep, burly treads of De Luxe Tires.

BIG SWIMMING MEET THURSDAY

Promises to be the Very Best of the Year.

Sylvester and Kilburn in Hundred-Yard Dash.

Large Entry List Secured for Various Events.

The Los Angeles Athletic Club will stage one of the best and most peppery swimming matches which has been engineered yet this year on Thursday, June 12, at 8 p.m. Vance Vieth says that in all of his life he never had a better entry list or a peppier bunch to choose from.

Guy Sylvester and Jack Kilburn have had an argument as to their relative merits in swimming the 100-yard dash, and Jack feels that he is the best man. Sylvester is worried and is running around full of dubious fears and is training and having rubs every day, in preparation for a special 100-yard dash to be put on between the two swimmers. A large entry list has been secured and a great programme will be the result. The meet will be open to the public. The entry list is as follows:

150-yard back-stroke championship—Fletcher, San Diego Rowing Club; H. B. Unruh, Pasadena; Lieut. Tod Burns, Walter Rau, Jr., Kenneth Carraher, Ray Kegeris, L.A.A.C.

Life-saving exhibition—Little Norah Moore of the L.A.A.C. will rescue Fatty Lampman of the Rolin Film Company.

Under-water swimming exhibition—Charles E. Ramsell, unattached, crawl stroke; O. R. Buck, L.A.A.C., breast stroke.

Blindfold race—Arthur Allen, Leroy Mansell, Paul Nelson, Ralph Summeril, N. M. Lyon, A. Harrison.

Relay race—Reds: A. Allen, L. Mansell, E. Field, T. Witt, R. Summeril, Guy Sylvester; Blues: P. Nelson, R. Kegeris, C. Swendsen, G. Vultee, W. Rau, Jr., J. Kilburn.

EAGLE CONVENTION IS ON AT VENICE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, June 9.—Three hundred delegates of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, each bringing with him fifty or more guests belonging to the same order, arrived in Venice this morning, and proceeded on their campaign of turning the canal city up side down for the next week. As the automobiles and crowded cars approached the scene of gaity today, a general buzzing of voices began, and delighted shouts were sent up in appreciation of the decoration that brightens Venice from its gates to the end of the pier. Banners bearing the insignia of the Order of Eagles, and profuse draping with American flags was adopted by Venice as the back ground for the Eagles' week of merry-making.

Regular meetings of the convention were started this morning when Worthy State President, Warren Shannon, called the first session to order and greeted his fellow members, and thanked the city of Venice. President Shannon was followed by Mayor A. E. Coles of Venice who welcomed the Eagles to the city and carried out the striking ceremony of presenting the key of the municipality to them. In the auditorium on the pier, Grand Worthy President of the United States, A. B. Duncan of St. Joseph, Mo., made the address of the day, which was followed by an address by State Senator, Charles W. Lyon. In the evening at the hand plaza addresses were made by Judge Alex B. Goodcell, and President Duncan.

The feature of tomorrow's programme is to be the All-Star show at the Venice Auditorium at 7:30. Nomination of officers will be held early in the afternoon.

ESPEE VERSUS BUS.

Railroad Contends Extra Freight Line is not Needed.

The bus freight line from Los Angeles to Westminster, Orange County, which was recently licensed by the Board of Supervisors of this county, is meeting with a protest from the Southern Pacific on the ground that the latter corporation is giving adequate service and another line is not needed. Yesterday B. J. Cross, a representative of the Southern Pacific, made a formal protest before the Supervisors.

It is a question with the Supervisors whether they have any jurisdiction in such cases. The question of adequate service is a matter for the State Railroad Commission, they say. The county simply issues the licenses which is in the nature of a fee to recompense the county for the use of the highways by the bus lines.

GOLF PLAY AT NEWTON.

NEWTON (Mass.) June 9.—Charles Hoffner of the Philmont Club, Philadelphia, shot a fine 72 over the Braeburn Country Club course today and led a field of 132 starters in the first eighteen holes of play in the national open golf championship. The card ties the course record, held by Tom McNamara. A stroke behind Hoffner were Louis Tellier of Braeburn and George L. Bowden of Commonwealth. Mike Brady of Oakley was in fourth place, with 74, and Francis Ouimet fifth with 75. Charles (Chick) Evans, Jr., the present champion, trailed Ouimet by one stroke. Nearly all the other favorites returned low scores.

Hoffner grasped the lead by playing the last six holes in the remarkable low figures of three, five, three, four, three, three. His seventy-second stroke was a yard putt, after he had played a long brassie to the green. Hoffner is 22 years old.

Francis Ouimet drew the largest gallery. Except for two shots out of bounds, and three putts on the home green, he played perfect golf.

FIGHTERS DOWN TO WORK.

TOLEDO (O.) June 9.—Jess Willard and Jack Dmpsey tonight are nursing bruised heads as a result of spirited workouts today.

While boxing with the Jamaica Kid, a sprightly 180-pound negro, an old wound over Dempsey's left eye was opened when the challenger's sparring partner landed a grazing left hook. The blood streamed from the wound. The cut may prevent Dempsey from boxing for several days, as it is feared the wound may keep opening up.

Willard received a bump as big as a doorknob on the left cheek bone as a result of a right-hand swing landed by Jack Hempel in the first round. The champion increased his boxing to eight rounds afetr doing five miles of road work.

In the morning he went three each with Hempel and Walter Monahan, and two with Soldier Stanton, who was all but knocked out yesterday. The champion apparently was afraid to hit Stanton. Willard imitated the style of Dempsey while following Stanton around the ring, much to the amusement of a big Monday crowd.

"Big Jess" crouched as Dempsey does and shifted and feinted his way into close quarters.

Dempsey opened his workout facing Jack Ross, a 200-pound youth from Winnipeg, who claims the heavyweight championship of Canada. Within thirty seconds Ross was knocked out, after being floored with a short right-hand punch to the chin. After Ross staggered to his feet the challenger whipped over a left hook, which finished the job.

The challenger stepped two furious rounds with Bill Tate and was in the middle of his first round with the Jamaica Kid when the wound was opened.

Dempsey pleaded to be allowed to continue, but was overruled. He left the ring in humiliation, saying to the crowd: "Accidents will happen, you know."

TIGERS LEAVE BADLY CRIPPLED.

ARE OFF FOR SAN FRANCISCO FOR A SERIES WITH THE SEALS.

The Tigers left here for San Francisco last night with a sort of a crippled line-up. Catcher Brooks and Southpaw Ross were left behind. Brooks broke the second finger of his right hand last week by its being hit with a foul tip and will hardly be able to catch again inside of a week. During his absence Scotty Alcock will help out De Vormer in the backstopping line. Essick will also be minus the services of Bobby Meusel for several days as Bobby's furlough from the submarine base expired Sunday and he had to return to San Pedro.

Fisher will be put back on second while Meusel is away. Essick expects a pitcher or two this week and if they show up in good condition he will be in fair shape to return home next week for his five weeks stay in Los Angeles. Even with the loss of Meusel and Brooks, the hustling manager of the Tigers was of opinion that he had a good chance to cop the series from the Seals.

LOCAL FANS TO ATTEND BIG FIGHT.

About seventy-five fistic fans are planning to attend the Willard-Dempsey argument, going on the Kelley Special which still has accomodations for all who have not yet made reservations for the trip. About ten days or two weeks are to be consumed by the party in making the journey to the scrap and back. For reservations see Mr. Oliver at Spalding's.

CHARITY WORKER DIES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VENTURA, June 9.—Miss Adelaide Kamp, for forty years a resident of Ventura and Widley, known for her charity work, is dead here at the age of 80. Miss Kamp was born in Sonoma county, and the family lived in Santa Barbara county before coming here. She is survived by three brothers, Louis, Ed and John, all residents of Ventura. Funeral services were held today from the old mission.

TOPEKA, ST. LOUIS MEN DIVIDE HONORS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) June 9.—Arthur Bonebrake of Topeka, formerly Kansas champion, and Clarence Wolff of the Algonquin Club, St. Louis, today took medal honors with scores of 73 in the first qualification round of the trans-Mississippi golf championship at the St. Louis Country Club. Their scores were only one stroke over par for the course and autdistanced most of the other 156 players.

Leading scores:

Clarence Wolff, Algonquin, St. Louis, 37-36-73.

Arthur Bonebrake, Topeka, 36-37-73.

R. E. Brockenkamp, St. Louis Public Links, 37-38-75.

SUPERVISORS STOP SCHEME TO BUILD TOWN NEAR CAMP KEARNY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, June 9.—Kearny City, as planned by its promoters, will never be a reality; at least not in the near future. San Diego County Supervisors today rejected the proposed maps and plats offered by the Mack-Copper Company, for a proposed industrial townsite bordering the remount station at Camp Kearny.

The board's action followed adverse recommendation from the City Planning Commission, to which body the Supervisors had submitted the project for an opinion. The Supervisors' sanction is necessary to the establishment of any townsite in the county. In a resolution branding the Kearny City scheme as detrimental to Camp Kearny the Planning Commission reflected the general opinion that the War Department is opposed to having a town within a three-mile zone surrounding the cantonment.

The Mack-Copper Company recently organized in California, owns several thousand acres of land adjoining Camp Kearny, which was to be platted into lots and streets. Grading has already been commenced.

the dope on all the fat purses which has ever been paid a couple of roughnecks, an' commend all concerned for their enterprise. Of course, for a couple of lowbrows to demand half the money in the world for fightin' a few rounds ain't commercialism. It's pure an' undefiled sport. No, boxin' ain't no more commercial than a pawnbroker. Alongside these championship scraps, the Standard Oil Company is a simon-pure amateur. All I ask of you guys with the flat heads an' protudin' typewriters, is that you be consistent, which probably ain't possible.

"Got a letter here in my inside pocket from your ole friend, Corp. Lloyd E. Hidden of San Bernardino. Funny, met his dad down there just before the letter arrived, while haulin' S. W. McNab an' George W. Hellyer back to San Berdoo, who had been up here on legal business.

"Corp. Hidden is sore as a boil. Peeved to beat the band because he didn't lose an arm or a leg. Was one of the first to volunteer after Uncle Sam tossed his chapeau into the ring. He jumped in with the Grizzlies. Had more of his share of intensive trainin,' an' the war ended just after his outfit reached the front, an' was all primed to land some tellin' punches. In the service well nigh onto two years an' didn't get a chance to kill a Hun. He writes that it gets his nanny when he meets guys who was on the firin' line six months after enterin' the service. After the armistice, Hidden was transferred to the Military Police Corps, an' is doin' patrol duty at Bordeaux. Thinks he's on the verge of bein' transferred to Antwerp, an' I reckon it won't displease him to have a chance to see that historic spot.

"But this boy's case is typical of thousands of others. This war has been jes' one disappointment after another for gents with real fightin' spirit. Some of the fellows never got out of the camps of this country, an' others was on the firin' line little more'n a month after enlistin'.

"Then I'm reminded of the boys who really wanted to fight, but never got beyond the S.O.S. But that wasn't all. Remember durin' that first Chatty-Terry scrap, Con Riordan had one of his legs shot off. A buddy had stopped the flow of blood for him. But as you know, some of the wounded lay where they fell for days. Remember that I was enveyin' Con because he had the distinction of losin' a leg. Then all of a sudden he emits a sound which ain't a moan, but a complaint. Pat Coughlin is layin' about ten feet in front of Con, an' deader'n a doornail. 'Pat sure was lucky to get killed outright,' complains Con. An' so it goes. The feller who was turned down because of physical flaws envies the guy who got into uniform attall. The guy in uniform who was kept in camp here envies the guy who got as far as the S.O.S., and the S.O.S. lads is green with envy when they meets one who got to the firin' line. Then the guy who got to the firin' line an' came back without a mark, is consumed with envy when he meets one bearin' the honorable scars of battle, an' then I just got through tellin' you about the wounded guy who was peeved to think that he didn't get killed. Americans is the hardest people in the world to please.

"While down at San Berdoo, happened onto Lieut. Bob Garner. Hadn't seen him since the day he was awarded the Belgian Croix de Guerre at Proven. When he got home he found a brand new baby callin' for papa. His dad didn't do a thing but deed him half the big Garner cattle ranch down near Hemet, which would seem to indicate to me that Dad Garner is somewhat proud of Son Garner's fightin' record.

"You sportin' writers ain't the only hopeless ones among the scribes. Some of the stuff bein' pulled by an occasional war correspondent or special writer is enough to make a fightin' gent sick at his stomach. Ain't safe to leave 'em over there too long. Too many of 'em fall, an' become inoculated by the germ in German. Can you beat those recent spiels about England an' France not givin' America any credit for winnin' the war. That musta been written on the assumption that the people of this country has become feeble-minded since the armistice.

"When in France, I never heard a boastful chirp out of one of our Allies, be he French, English, Belgian or Italian. Did you ever notice how hard it is to get a man to talk who has really been under fire. If there is any braggin' done it by some gent who never got no nearer the firin' line than the docks of Saint Nazaire. When a guy goes through a big battle he comes out a new man, an' is a lot more meek an' lowly than when he went it. He leaves it to those who stayed 300 miles back lapping up vin ordinaire to do the pouter pigeon stuff. Rubbin' elbows with death, an' eatin' an' sleepin' with the Grim Reaper, just naturally takes all the narrowness an' meanness an' boastfulness out of a man.

"Speakin' of scribes, I never'll forget the actions of some of them which come to Paris for the Peace Conference. One of the first things that some of 'em did was to begin' to bleat about the censorship, the grub, the prices, the weather an' what not. I reckon this struck some of you newspaper guys as funny who had been writin' in mud holes, an' cheerfully submittin' to a censorship such as the world has never seen before or since. Most of 'em seemed highly peeved because the first gatherin' of the Peace Conference wasn't turned into a mass meetin'. What they seemed to want was a soviet. Bein' accommodatin' the French government requisitioned one of the few remainin' hotels for the American scribes, turnin' a lot of people who had lived there for years an' others who was sick into the streets.

"Then there was the guy who every night would come tearin' into your hotel on the Rivoli, yell at the top of his voice if there was any cablegrams arrived from his paper an' then would gallop up stairs three steps at a jump. You'd a thought the whole world was burnin' up the way he acted. An' then when he had a day off, he got fightin' mad because the French didn't furnish him an automobile for a joy ride up for Rheims, although he knew that private automobiles hadn't been used in France for four years, everything bein' needed for military purposes. He yells that America will never help France in another war. If a bunch of foreigners would come over here an' carry on like some of us did in France, we'd lynch 'em an' not offer any explanations.

"So our beloved Angels will be with us again, startin' tomorrow. They won't be here but a week, after which they will go for a month's road trip. This seems to be worryin' some people, but not me. They seem as stout on the road as at home. Begins to look as though Powers, Morley an' Killefer had squared off for another pennant.

"An' what do you know about McGraw an' his bunch of spavins that nobody was figurin' much. We have our Stallingses, our Morans, our Robinsons an' our Mitchells for a day, but John J. McGraw goes on forever.

"Recollect me tellin' you about protectin' monuments, statues an' art treasures with sand bags in Paris. When I left there they was removin' these, an' Paris was lookin' less like a Sahara in jute bags. Why I revived this subject was to remark that if Los Angeles is ever besieged, we won't need to worry much about our statues, monuments an' art treasures. One pint of sand would just about protect all these things we have worth worryin' about. Los Angeles not only is the most beautiful city in the world when it comes to natural beauty, but it also is rich in lore an' legends worth perpetuatin' in marble an' brass. But you have overlooked these bets. As near as I can figure, you all has been so busy pesterin' one another, an' sflakin' each other miserable with a lot of fool laws an' regulations, that you has entirely overlooked the larger an' finer things of life."

FISHING IS FINE ON SANTA YNEZ.

According to a number of Isaak Waltons, who have just returned from their annual stamping grounds up and along the Santa Ynez River, the fishing to be had there is of the very best and a trip up would be most enjoyable for the fish are there in large numbers. Chalk Rock is a favorite spot for casting, a big twenty-eight inch trout being caught there yesterday. Fishing in pools is best as there seems to be no results in the ripples.

Up at Big Bear Lake the finny ones are not at all numerous as a few unfortunates have testified. This is due to the fact that the fish are late in sprawing. The fishing is improving right along although it is not as good as last year.

MISS. BLATZ WINS TENNIS FINALS.

Owing to an unfortunate occurrence The Times on Sunday printed the name of Miss Carolyne Bryant as winner of the women's finals of the annual handicap tournament instead of Miss Hilda Blatz the real winner.

MAY STAR IN FILMS.

LUCILLE CAVANAGH IS APPROACHED BY BIG FIRM.

By Grace Kingsley.

It looks as if another star were to be added to the motion picture colony of the West. This prospective star is none other than the lovely Lucille Cavanagh, who had apparently become rooted in vaudeville, but who has lately been turning her eyes Kleig-ward, due to the fact her services have been sought by one of the largest producing companies of the West. Negotiations are on, but terms have not yet been arrived at, but it appears that sooner or later so much beauty and talent as Miss Cavanagh is possessed of will not be permitted to get away from the camera-grinders. In case a contract with the said company is made, Miss Cavanagh will return to Los Angeles at the close of her Orpheum contract in July.

"Otherwise," said Miss Cavanagh, "I'm going to take a few weeks' rest before resuming my vaudeville work. I mean to go away off in the woods and fish—striking attitudes, you know, like the girls on the calendars. Probably my fish line will bounce back, and I'll find my eye on the hook, but never mind, it'll be one of those picturesque vacations anyhow!"

ALICE BRADY HAS REFRESHING PLAY.

My, it is refreshing to see Alice Brady for once not tearing emotions to shreds, but behaving like a nice, sensible, right-headed young woman! That's what she's doing at Tally's Broadway this week in "Redhead," in which there are no tremendous emotional scenes to wear you out, no chewing up of the scenery, but instead, a freshly human, original and delightful story, in which a girl redeems the man she has married by good sense and real honest devotion, and not by any hifalutin' squish-squash usually indulged in by scenario writers, and which sentimental bosh is about as true to real life as a tin minnow.

"Redhead" is a sort of "What Every Woman Knows," 1919 model. A young man, nephew of a rich manufacturer, gets down and out and in a cabaret finds a red-headed girl who attracts him. He weds her while he is drunk, but she is honestly devoted to him, and doesn't sit down to wail, but puts him through a sobering-up process and then makes him go out and find work. He declared his wife tricked him into marriage. He doesn't slam the door in her face and leave her forever, however, because deep down in his heart he has to respect her, but he gets a job and supports her. She remains a kissless bride for some time, during which time he refuses to acknowledge her influence. Then he sees her with another man at lunch, and realizes how much he cares. When he comes home he doesn't throw the furniture around; he doesn't even sneer; instead she tells him in matter-of-fact manner of the meeting with an old friend, and he decides to take no chances with these old friends, but takes her in his arms. Miss Brady plays the role of the young wife with real tenderness and appeal. The popular and clever Conrad Nagel plays opposite Miss Brady.

There is a travelogue that is a thing of beauty and a joy forever, in addition to the feature.

BILL HART WRITES AND ACTS OWN PLAY.

B'gosh, boys, maybe Bill Hart ain't any regular ink-slinger, but he sure did round up and brand a lot o' lively thrills in "The Money Corral," at the California, this week—which he wrote that there drammer himself!

In "The Money Corral," Hart is requisitioned to go to New York and help solve a robbery mystery. Or rather he is engaged by the president of a trust company, to round up a gang who are practicing persistent robbery of his offices. It would seem as if a band of local metropolitan police might have attended to the matter. But I'm glad they didn't, because in that event we should have missed a capital story. The capitalist spots him at a Wild West show, and without waiting to change his shirt, Hart hies him to New York to accept the commission. Of course, he finds the capitalist's confidential adviser, Herschall Mayall, to be the guilty party, but not until after he has, single-handed and in picturesque Hart fashion, vanquished a couple of gangs of thugs. Hart is as delightful in his role as usual.

Naturally, there's a girl. Jane Novak is the heroine, and a very alluring little heroine she is. Rhea Mitchell is attractive in a leading part as the daughter of the capitalist, which latter character is played by Winter Hall in Mr. Hall's own finely sincere manner, while Herschal Mayall is as convincingly wicked as usual.

There is an amusing comedy starring Smiling Billy Parsons, a news weekly and other attractive features.

LOTS OF MUSIC ON NEW ORPHEUM BILL.

If you like music you're certain to be quite dippy about the Orpheum bill this week, as there are all sorts of music on the programme—high-brow, low-brow and no brow. They not only dance and sing to music, and hit and blow and toot music, but there are announcers of acts who spout blank verses to music and there are flirtations to music, so that the poor orchestra members don't have a minute's chance to go downstairs and play pinochle.

Lucille Cavanaugh continues to head the bill with her lively and artistic dances, to which she and one of her three boy assistants yesterday added a sensation in the shape of a shimmy dance which brought down the house. It was a very nice, quiet, expurgated shimmy, which wouldn't shock a Quaker, but it's a shimmy, just the same, and as such welcome to the shimmey hounds, whose name is legion.

Blossom Seeley, more New Yorky than ever, returns with a number of delightful new products of Tin Pan Alley, which she and her four jazz boys put over in fine style. Their act opens with curtains having gossamer-covered niches, from which peer forth her violinist and saxophone players, lighted with mysterious lights, like a sort of Hamlet's father's jazz ghost. Miss Seeley has some stunning gowns, and is as lissome as ever. All the jazz boys score, and Bennie Fields is one of the big hits of the bill, as well as of the act.

Carrying her press agent right along with her in the form of an announcer, is Maud Earl, who has an elaborately-staged act which frames Miss Earl in her nicely-costumed song numbers. Miss Earl has a really beautiful and finely cultured voice, and made a tremendous hit yesterday, both in her grand opera selections and in more popular numbers.

The high-brows will rejoice in the piano playing of Daisy Nellis. I wondered yesterday when there were rolling from beneath her skilful young fingers such difficult things as MacDowell's Etude Concerto and Liszt's first Hungarian Rhapsodie, if these were not above the mood, if not above the heads, of her audience; but it seemed not, for at the last she had to respond to a most prolonged and noisy recall.

Don't know why they put those pepful and altogether attractive youths, Orville Whitledge and Rube Beckwith, on to open the show with their piano jazz act, unless it is because of the plethora of good acts. The boys play separate pianos, kid and sing, and clean up on applause. Jack Dunham and Sammy Edwards are at the nether end of the bill, and get a lot of laughs in their act, entitled "Fun"—which is. Clark and Verdi remain as the only holdover.

D. W. Griffith Returns.

D. W. Griffith is returning to Los Angeles tomorrow, following his recent big metropolitan success. "Broken Blossoms."

Rumors have been rife that Mr. Griffith would return to New York to work there permanently, but no confirmation could be gained yesterday from the studio. Mr. Griffith was in the midst of a production when he left for New York to launch "Broken Blossoms," and he will complete this production, at least, before going back to New York, and thence later, according to his plans, announced some time ago, to Europe.

Lillian Gish, star of Griffith productions, and her mother, returned from New York yesterday, where they went to witness the premiere of "Broken Blossoms."

Bebe Daniels in Clover.

Bebe Daniels, it seems, has fallen into clover with the Famous Players-Lasky organization. Not only has she signed up a nice fat contract, but the first picture in which she will appear will be a De Mille production, in which Lila Lee and Gloria Swanson will also have leading roles. Later, according to her own statement, she is to star in a De Mille picture.

May Allison to Score.

Now look out for something good! One of the first Metro specials in which May Allison will appear is to be a film version of Avery Hopwood's farce, "Fair and Warmer."

Myrtle Steadman's Own Company.

It is rumored that Myrtle Steadman, formerly a Morosco star, now long absent from the screen, is to form her own producing company.

Mme. Nazimova Returns.

Returning on Sunday from New York were Mme. Alla Nazimova, Metro star, and her handsome actor-husband, Charles Bryant. The pair went directly to their home near the Hollywood foothills, where they are resuming their housekeeping. Mme. Nazimova is as conscientious a housekeeper as she is a dramatic artist, and in spite of the fact she has a corps of servants, she personally inspects every bit of it.

In her first statement upon her return from the East, Mme. Nazimova announced that she has signed a new contract with Metro Pictures Corporation. The agreement is for six big screen productions, allows her practically an unlimited time for each one, and, while she refused to discuss the terms of her contract, it is whispered that her net income will be something like $2000 per day.

Mme. Nazimova has selected four plays and three novels, which have been purchased for her use by Maxwell Karger and Richard A. Rowland. She will start on the first of the new productions, a combination of two novels, within a fortnight.

In the party of the Russian actress returning from New York was her husband, Charles Bryant; Jean Acker, and Dagomar Godowky, both personal friends of Nazimova's.

Tomorrow Mme. Nazimova plans to consult with Director-General Karger, inspect the new stage platforms under construction for her special use, view the projection of "The Brat," and arrange for the cutting and titling of that production, which was finished just before she went east.

COLLECTOR FINALLY COLLECTS SENTENCE.

LONG TERM FOR MAN ACCUSED OF FLIMFLAMMING MANY WHO GAVE ACCOUNTS.

C. L. Schroeder, formerly manager and principal owner of a collection agency in this city, was sentenced to from one to ten years in San Quentin yesterday by Judge Craig. Schroeder was convicted on April 28 on a charge of defrauding the Ward Iron Works out of $420.82, which had been collected for that company. The offense was committed on November 15, 1917.

The activities of Schroeder, according to county detectives, covered a period of several years and was said to involve several large sums of money. He had applied for probation, but Capt. A. C. Dodds, probation officer, advised against probation, relating in his report to the court the numerous activities of Schroeder during several years. Capt. Dodds said that Schroeder said he took the money for himself because the Federal government had given him twenty-four hours to account for moneys collected in connection with the trusteeship of the Coachella Valley Development Company. He was afterwards removed as trustee of the company.

County detectives claimed that Schroeder kept five rooms as his offices and used a number of dummies, or fictitious names, in manipulating the collection business. It was claimed that he gave receipts under fictitious names and afterwards denied to his clients that he had collected the amounts.

An oral notice of appeal was filed on behalf of the defendant.

COUPLE REUNITED, DECREE SET ASIDE.

Mrs. Hazel Beatrice Simmons wrote her mother:

"We are very happy and contented."

This letter coupled with the motion of Attorney Jesse Shafer that Judge Crail set aside the interlocutory decree granted Frank Simmons in his divorce suit against Hazel Beatrice Simmons some time ago, was pretty good evidence that the couple had agreed to forget and forgive. Unless further evidence shows that the Simmons have again separated, Judge Crail said he would grant the motion.

"MAYTIME" CHARMS

REFRESHING MUSICAL PLAY AT MAJESTIC.

By Edwin Schallert.

"Maytime," which opened at the Majestic Theater last night, is more than "a play with music" in four acts. It is a little of everything in the matter of entertainment. It starts like an old-time comic opera, becomes a light drama of sentiment and ends with something of the atmosphere of a Midnight Frolic cabaret. Altogether this is quite a suitable sequence for a story that is supposed to open in 1840 and to end at the present day, and for a show that begins at 8:15 and lasts until 11:30 in Los Angeles.

There is really much more of manner than of matter to "Maytime." It is delightful and refreshing in breaking away from conventional boundary lines. The first act has a brightness that the title suggests. The more serious second and third episodes are constantly illuminated by the gleams of lighter entertainment. The entire play is delicately shaded with a sentiment that is fragrant.

The story of "Maytime" is really serious because it is of an undying love of a man for a woman. That its people grow old and still retain the spirit of youth is what makes "Maytime" seem less serious than it is. The music of this play is woven around this idea, except that which is purely episodic.

The cast for the play is very large, because the story allows for so many different types. John Murray kept the breezy life of comedy circulating through the atmosphere of the play. He works with a rare ease and unctuousness, and a comprehension of the business of his role. Alfred Hemming as the cockney auctioneer made his bit in the third act very laughable. Carolyn Thomson was charming in the role of Ottilie and John Charles Thomas was effective as Richard Wayne. Howard Marsh has a voice of grand opera proportions and the audience paid him the tribute of their applause. Many other minor parts were handled with effectiveness, in particular the chorus girls' scene with Matthew Van Zandt in the last act.

"Maytime" should by its charm appeal to audiences throughout its stay. It is new and refreshing and appealed to the big audience that attended the opening.

HORSE DOCTORS TO PASS EXAMINATIONS.

Hereafter veterinarians who apply for license to practice their professions within Los Angeles will have to satisfy the City Clerk that they have been duly qualified by the State Veterinarian Board of Examiners. The City Council yesterday adopted an amendment to the license ordinance, making this provision. This was done at the request of the Southern Branch of the State Veterinarians' Association, the claim having been made that persons who had not qualified before the State Board had been able to times past to secure licenses to practice within the city, and were able to get some patronage before their status was discovered.

NAMED AFTER ZANE.

New Destroyer to be Memorial to Famous Major of Marines.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, June 9.—Torpedoboat destroyer No. 537, to be launched soon at Mare Island navy yard, will be christened Zane, in honor of the late Maj. Randolph T. Zane, United States Marine Corps, son-in-law of Gov. Stephens. Maj. Zane died of wounds received in fighting in France.

A telegram to this effect was received here today by Mrs. Zane, from Secretary Daniels of the Navy. Mrs. Zane, who now is in Los Angeles, in response to Daniels's request that she designate a sponsor for the destroyer, named Marjorie, her 5-year-old daughter and only child.

LILA LEE PLAY.

"RUSTLING A BRIDE" HEADS GOOD GRAUMAN BILL.

By Edwin Schallert.

Did you ever fall in love via the correspondent method? Well, you generally take some chances. But you would probably hardly encounter quite as much danger and excitement as Miss Lila Lee does in "Rustling a Bride" at Grauman's Theater this week. The photoplay is a comedy melodrama which opens down on the farm in Ohio and closes with a near-lynching out West. Of course, it is only a near lynching, because it's the hero whose neck was in jeopardy, and Miss Lee as the heroine naturally has to save his life before they pull the rope taut. The hero made the mistake at the outset of sending the villain's picture to the girl when he happened to discover her name in an old school book. Of course, the girl thought the villian was her hero, and then later thought her hero was the villain. But the tangle is unraveled very nicely in the final scenes. Miss Lee is very effective in this play, acting with naturalness and grace, and with sufficient intensity to make her resistance of the villain convincing.

There is a smart little comedy in which Mr. and Mrs. Carter de Haven are the fun makers. You can guess that it's about babies when you know the title—"After the Bawl." It's not a "Baby Mine" show either, but a real refreshing bit of humorous pleasantry.

Distinction is lent to the musical portion of the programme by the appearance of Constance Balfour, who yesterday sang the "Jewel Song" from "Faust" and the "Last Rose of Summer." The Clintons' dance act is attractively varied, to include Egyptian, and other themes. Mr. and Mrs. Carter de Haven are also appearing as "Themselves."

"UNPAINTED WOMAN" AT THE SUPERBA.

Pharisaical small-town ideas play a large part in evolving the plot material of "The Unpainted Woman," a dramatic photoplay with a melodramatic spectacular ending, at the Superba this week. Mary McLaren is the star, and "Mickey" Moore a bright little starlet of the production.

The photoplay has really two distinct episodes to its plot, which have no specific connection with each other except that they involve the counter-ideas of degeneration and regeneration of ideals, with an unhappily married woman as the central figure. As a result of being wedded to a man above her station in the eyes of the villagers, both he and she are banned socially. The husband is later killed in a barroom fight. The girl then takes up farming, and here begins her second romance. The spectacular finish is provided when the arch villain of the plan sets fire to the barn.

The heroine of the play is rather a simple-minded type. The charm of Miss McLaren's personality lends a certain amount of character to the colorless role. David Butler, Thurston Hal and the other members of the cast give a very excellent performance.

SHIMMYFEST AT PANTAGES'S THEATER.

Ever seen it done?

Well, if you haven't, you got the chance of a lifetime this week at Pantages. They're wiggling it as they do in Paris, Frisco, Vernon and Venice. And you can take your choice of which way you like best, and demonstrate your approval by applauding the couple that's doing it.

There were four couples of shimmy dancers on the bill at the opening show, and Manager Walker says maybe there'll be more as the week progresses. The dancers also reintroduced the one-step, the hesitation, the maxixe and the fox trot. They are all top-notchers, too, and pretty nearly shook down the stage yesterday.

The exhibition must be seen to be appreciated, as words will not properly describe it. Crowds packed the playhouse at the opening shows yesterday. It is planned to invite all those who attend the matinees on Thursday and Friday of this week, to be present at classes of instruction on the Pantages stage after the afternoon shows, when the expert dancers will teach the dizzy art of "shimmying."

In addition to the "shimmy" dancing contest the customary vaudeville programme is given with an excellent array of talent. Colina's dancers head the bill with a dainty and pretty offering, consisting of classical, oriental and fancy dancing. The Four Danubes, spectacular and sensational athletes and acrobats, give an unusual exhibition of strength, skill and agility. Housch and Lavelle offer a laughable comedy skit. Beth Challis sings lively songs most acceptably, and there are two Elko comedies to round out the bill. The show throughout is an unusually good one.

SONATA PROGRAMME AT BLANCHARD HALL.

An attractive feature of the programme to be given tonight at Blanchard Hall by Alexander Saslavsky, violinist, and May MacDonald Hope, pianist, will be the Edward Grieg Sonata, Opus 2, No. 13, in G minor. This is one of the most beautiful of the Norwegian composer's works, and has been heard here only too infrequently. Sonata No. 3, Opus 108, in D minor by Johannes Brahms, and the Sonata in A major by Cesar Franck will also be played. Mr. Saslavsky was formerly concert master of the New York Symphony Orchestra, and has been giving chamber music concerts in various sections of the West.

HARBOR IMPROVEMENT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, June 9.—The Los Angeles Harbor Commission has authorized J. W. Ludlow, assistant harbor engineer, and C. H. Matson, traffic manager of the harbor department, to have plans prepared for the construction of stock yards and dipping tanks to take care of the increasing shipments of cattle and sheep through this port.

A number of communications have been received from live stock companies, including the San Clemente Sheep Company, the Vail and Vickers Company and the Catalina Island Company, stating that the cattle and sheep raising industry in the group of islands off this coast is increasing so rapidly that the facilities here are inadequate, and suggesting that the Harbor Department make provisions for handling these shipments.

In view of this condition, and the increasing amount of imports of cattle from Mexico, the Harbor Commission is preparing to construct a stock yard capable of handling from fifty to one hundred cars of stock, with provisions for unlimited expansion, as the growth of the industry warrants, Mr. Ludlow announced this morning.

DAILY TRADE TALK.

Bankers Go on Warpath; Gold May Come Back; Wheat; Stocks; Oil.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

The most serious matter presented to the bankers of California at the annual convention of the association which ended yesterday with the return of the last of the delegates from Catalina was undoubtedly, from their viewpoint, the menace of Senate Bill No. 471, which, if it is permitted to become operative will seriously disorganize the testamentary laws and probate machinery of the State; make null and void thousands of wills, and throw upon the courts a burden of legislation which will take years to encompass. This bill passed by the late legislature and signed by the Governor requires the consent of the other spouse to a last will and testament. If this is not made a part of the document, the community property must be liquidated, an executor placed in charge of the business or estate; beneficiaries not contemplated by the devisee introduced and the work of a life time may be very soon destroyed and broken up. The remaining spouse only receives one-half of the community property in any event, which is just what is received under the present well-adjudicated and established laws, but it must be carved, willy nilly, from an undivided whole. It is pointed out as a possible working of the law that the manager of a big retail business would be required, if for any reason, his wife declined to approve of his testamentary disposition, to step aside upon her death from the management of his own affairs, built up under a community interest, while an outsider was placed in charge of the business. Incompetent children might be given powers over its control for the exercise of which they are mentally unequipped, and the result might well be a speedily dissipated organization; great loss, and perhaps insolvency. Credit would be seriously impaired, for banks and other creditors would be bound to take into consideration the temporary character of the risk exercised through the guiding hand of the debtor and which would perhaps be suddenly removed from the helm. Bankers see nothing but grief in the new law, and they went on record unanimously as favoring a referendum which will postpone the operation of the law until it can be explained in all of its pernicious possibilities and the voters are given an opportunity to express themselves. The necessary petitions will be drawn and circulated almost immediately, and it is inconceivable in the minds of those who have studied the matter that enough signatures cannot be secured in short order to halt the consummation of what they believe would prove a most mischievous legislation.

Will Gold Come Back?

With the raising of the embargo on gold and foreign exchange local bankers are interested in the question "will gold come back?" Gold, as a medium of exchange, was a California institution prior to the war, when it was all "ahooed" into the barn and carefully locked up. Wheacres were chary of opinions yesterday. The gold question is full of sizzles which go to the matter of reserves and exchange as well as circulation, and the inclination to "wait and see" is unanimous.

The Price of Wheat.

Men who are powers in the big grain markets of the East will meet today about a New York counsel table. They will seek to interest the government in an extension of the price guarantee to cover the winter crop and perhaps the spring crop of 1920. Government officials are coy. They want to be shown the necessity for such extension. The subject matter goes to where we all live. There may be some interesting developments. Locally the grain market yesterday was quiet and without any particular highlight.

The Stock Market.

It was a quiet Monday. Volume and number of transactions comparatively small. Strong undertone. Broad market. Slight changes in price, but these few were upwards. On the average there was little change either way. There was a tendency on the part of the talent to "feel out" the market. This probably accounted for the fact that so many different listings were dealt in. The feature of the market was the heavier trading in higher-priced

CRUDE OIL ADVANCES.

From 1 to 5 Cents a Barrel to Producers at Well.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—New prices involving a raise of from 1 to 5 cents a barrel to producers for crude oil at the well were announced today by the Standard Oil Company and will apply to the San Joaquin Valley, Whittier-Fullerton and Santa Maria fields of California.

The prices become effective tomorrow.

Oils of 20 to 20.9 degrees gravity advanced 1 cent a barrel; 21 to 21.9, 2 cents; 22 to 22.9, 3 cents; 23 to 23.9, 4 cents; 24 and above, 5 cents.

COVERING BY SHORTS BOOSTS CORN MARKET

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, June 9.—An erratic action of values featured Monday's coarse grain markets. A good advance was made early, mainly on short covering, as the action of prices was governed by wet conditions.

A sharp break came at last and the finish was 1-4 off to 1-4 up, July leading in weakness.

Oats finished 1-4@5-8 lower in Chicago. Oats in Southwestern markets closed 1-8 lower to 7-8 higher, latter on September in St. Louis. Oats left off in Kansas City 1c in Minneapolis gain 5-8 up. Rye futures there lost ¾ and barley out 1 1-2.

Local traders who went out into the country over Sunday found crop conditions around Chicago very favorable and came back bearish. There was free selling of corn futures early and prices dropped ½@1. Later there were reports of army worms being found at a few points in Illinois and some of the early sellers started to cover and found little for sale. This brought about a bulge of 1 1-2@3 1-2, with the finish on a good reaction, with July at 1.69 5-8; September, 1.60 1-4; December, 1.46 1-4.

PROVISION MARKET FIRM; TRADE DULL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 9.—Owing more or less to absence of any large stocks on hand, the July delivery of corn showed strength today but later months were heavily affected by good weather. Opening prices, which ranged from the off to 1-8c advance, with July 1.68¾ to 1.69 1-8, and September, 1.60 1-4 to 1.60¾, were followed by moderate general setbacks. But then by a decided upturn in July.

Oats were easier. After opening unchanged to 5-8c down, including July at 67@67 1-4 the market rallied a little and then sagged again.

Higher quotations on hogs, gave firmness to provisions. Business, however, was dull.

Subsequently covering by shorts lifted the market as a whole, but the gains were not well maintained. Prices closed unsettled, 2@5c net lower to 1-4c advance, with July 3.03 5-8 @1.03¾ and September, 1.60 5-8@1.60¾.

Pacific Light & Power Corporation First and Refunding Mortgage 5% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

Dated September 1, 1911. Due September 1, 1951.

Interest payable March 1st and September 1st in Los Angeles and New York. These bonds are secured by a closed first mortgage upon the property owned by the Southern California Edison Company at Big Creek in Fresno County, together with the transmission line from Big Creek to Eagle Rock. The bonds are further secured by a refunding mortgage on the power plants and distributing systems built by the Pacific Light & Power Company, in and around Los Angeles.

Under the sinking fund provisions, commencing September 1st, 1914, 1% of the bonds issued (whether or not outstanding,) as well as bonds reserved for refunding, must be acquired for the sinking fund.

Price 91 to yield approximately 5.60%.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Friday, June 9.—The United States must buy more foreign securities and goods if the prices at which American goods, at present exchange, must sell in foreign countries, are to be competitive, the American Chamber of Commerce in London says in its summary of industrial and commercial conditions in Great Britain during May. Shortage of tonnage continues to keep American goods from the British market.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 9.—The stock market today was forced to contend with renewals of the profit taking and short selling which were effective in depressing of prices during various periods last week. Moreover, the list did not open with its customary upward rush attributed in part to the fact that buying orders over the week end were not as numerous as heretofore.

Investment buying was responsible for good headway in standard railroad stocks, particularly Atchison and Southern Pacific. The later at one time improved nearly three points, which, however, was relinquished when it was learned that a Supreme Court decision affecting this road had been mistakenly interpreted. Early weakness in United States steel was followed by full recovery in sympathy with active inquiry for Bethlehem steel and equipment issues. Some of the motors, shippings and high priced oils were severely affected by the early selling, Studebaker dropping ten points, General Motors and Atlantic Gulf 7 1-2 each and Texas company and Mexican Petroleum four each.

Among the specialties which figured prominently in the final upturn were International Harvester and National Biscuit. Low priced coppers were extensively bought, with Chino scoring a rise of four shares. Sales amounted to 1,550,000 shares.

The bond market ruled firm with Chile copper 7's rising five points. Liberty Bonds yielded slightly. Total sales, par value, aggregated $12,500,000.

Old United States bonds unchanged on call.

WILSON ADVANCES 2 POINTS AT CHICAGO.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, June 9.—There was much less activity in the local securities market today, and the tone for the greater part of the session was easy. Union Carbide and Carbon, the leaders closed without change. Wilson was up 2 points, and gains of a point each were made by Edison, Oaks preferred and Carbon preferred. People's Gas was off 2 points and Stewart-Warner 1½ points.

In bonds, there were some unusually wide fluctuations. Metropolitan Elevated Extension 5s were marked down 5 points, City Railway first 5s were up 3 points, and Chicago Railways construction 5s, both, Burnham reserved shown a gain of 2 points, while Butler was a little easier.

COTTON ADVANCES 200 POINTS AT NEW YORK.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 9.—It required the government maximum fluctuation rule to check the upward movement of cotton today. The allowable limit of 200 points in a single day was reached late in the afternoon when October sold at 33.35, this being 200 points over Saturday's level. Unexpected rains in the cotton belt created apprehension of a short crop, thereby increasing the export and domestic demand.

FINANCIAL AND TRADE REVIEW.

oils, the many inquiries for better class industrials and the strength of the mining list. Globe Grain and Milling Company, preferred stock of which $3,000,000 was sold the other day at par brought $102 on the open market. California Packing was strong at $71; Southern California Edison Common advanced slightly to $88.25; California Delta Farms was up a point to $62; California Packing, preferred sold up to $115 from a bidding point of $112. Union was fairly active and remained steady around last week's close. An effort to break the price of this stock was without effect. Mines were in good shape and the demand for Oatmans strong all the way through. Big Jim Consolidated sold from an opening of 18¾ cents to a close of 19¼ cents; Tellurride was up and in demand around 20 cents; Gold Dust made a gain and sold at 18¾ cents. The bond market was steady. This also applies to Liberties and Victories. Of the latter $13,000 worth sold at $99.75.

United Oil Melon.

At a meeting of the directors of the United Oil Company, held yesterday afternoon in the office of the secretary, B. F. McClouth, Investment Building, the regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent. was declared and in addition a special dividend of ½ per cent. Both of these will be paid July 15 to stockholders of record July 5. The books will close on the 5th.

WILSON LIFTS GOLD EMBARGO.

Export of Metal Export, Money Rates Terminated.

Government Credit to Allies Nearly Exhausted.

Permission to Export Coin and Bullion Required.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The embargo against exports and importation of gold was lifted by President Wilson on recommendation of the Federal Reserve Board.

The return to normal economic conditions means the return of the American dollar to a parity with that of all foreign countries, the control of the government over transactions in exchange and exportation of gold and currency was terminated today and all powers vested in the President included in the espionage act relative to the regulation of public notes or bonds dealings with that part of Russia, Finland and exchange transactions through Scandinavian countries now dealings now conducted by the American relief administration.

The action was taken by the board to the recommendation of control did not accomplish with economic security to the country the purposes for which it was established by the War Trade Board.

The action will be greeted "freely, if not enthusiastically" by the board's statement, as "a step toward the restoration of the Federal Reserve system to the position it occupied before the war."

Licenses for exportation of gold bullion or amount," the board's statement continued, "will be granted freely, in accordance with the Federal Reserve Act, as soon as the President formally proclaims the termination of the war."

ATTACK POWER BONDS' COUNT.

Official Canvass Announced, Promptly Protested.

Challenge Figures, Status of Election Boards.

Every Proposition Carried, Declares Council.

Official figures on the vote at the general municipal election, June 3, were announced by the City Council yesterday; the results were declared, and certificates of election were ordred issued by the City Clerk to the officials-elect. The results on the three special elections were also announced, and in each case the propositions were declared carried by a vote of more than two-thirds of all the votes cast at these elections.

Immediately thereafter Attorney Edgar G. Pratt made a formal protest against the Council declaring a two-thirds majority vote in favor of the power bonds and sale of power propositions, setting forth the various grounds on which he made his protest on behalf of Mrs. Ada Hogue, a taxpayer and qualified voter of this city. Attorney Pratt said:

"I desire at this time to enter a formal protest against the vote of the Council upon the proposition of the city's incurring a bonded indebtedness of $15,500,000, and also upon the proposition for the sale of power, and the protest is made upon the following grounds:

REASONS FOR PROTEST.

"That the votes have not been properly canvassed.

"That the vote as indicated does not represent the vote cast upon the two propositions, or upon either of them.

"That the vote as canvassed does not represent the proportionate part or fractional part of the two propositions, or either of them.

"The protest is made upon the further ground that the election boards of each of the several precincts of the city at the last general and special elections were not properly organized.

"The protest is made upon the further ground that the election polling places at the last general and special elections were not legally selected.

"The protest is made upon the further ground that the election boards of the several precincts and each and all of the election boards of the several precincts at the last general and special elections were guilty of malfeasance in office.

"A further protest is made against the Clerk of the city of Los Angeles, certifying the election returns, or any of the election returns on the two propositions just indicated, in accordance with the resolutions just passed by the honorable Council.

"This protest is made on behalf of Ada Hogue, a taxpayer and qualified voter at the elections aforementioned, and is made to save any rights of hers in the premises."

HELD FOR DEATH.

Manslaughter Charge for Autoist Said to Have Hit Drayman.

Charles T. Harley will be held responsible for the death of Robert C. Johnson, according to a complaint for manslaughter issued yesterday by Deputy District Attorney Becker. According to information furnished Mr. Becker, Harley was driving an automobile Friday night from Vernon to Los Angeles, when his car crashed into a dray from which Robert C. Johnson was unloading several trunks. Johnson, who was fatally injured, was carried into a house at 934 South Alameda street, in front of which place the accident occurred. He died in a few minutes.

According to Policemen Frillot and Wingate, Harley had been drinking. The officers also say that a danger light was placed at the rear of the truck by Johnson.

Harley, who is a salesman, was arraigned before Justice Forbes and held for hearing on $5000 bail. He was lodged in the County Jail.

TO HEAR PROTESTS ON FACTORY PLAN.

DO NOT WANT WEARING APPAREL PLANT IN RESIDENTIAL DISTRICT.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Council's Public Welfare Committee that it will hold a public hearing at 11 a.m., Thursday, in the Council chambers, on the matter of exempting the property at Orange street and Westlake avenue from the residence district for the use of the Brownstein-Louis Company, which proposes to erect a wearing apparel factory thereon. Among the protests filed yesterday against the proposal was that of the Municipal League.

Also taking a determined stand against the attempt which is being made to remove a clothing factory from the industrial section into the Westlake residential district, the Park Commission yesterday adopted the following resolutions:

"Whereas, many property owners resident in the exclusive high-class residence district long famed as Westlake, have complained that an attempt was being made by a garment manufacturing concern to secure a site for a six-story factory at Orange and Westlake streets; and

"Whereas, the granting of such a site for an industrial concern in the heart of one of the most beautiful and exclusively residence districts in Los Angeles city would be a very serious menace to the value of properties in that section; and

"Whereas, the entrance of a factory into the Westlake district would effectually destroy this section for high-class residence purposes and kill its value as one of this city's famed show places; be it

"Resolved, by the Park Commissioners of the city of Los Angeles, that we hereby record ourselves as a body, immovably against the conversion of the Westlake, or any other residence district into a manufacturing center, for the reason that while manufacturing enterprises should be fostered, they should be confined to industrial districts."

A delegation from the Park Commission will be on hand Thursday morning, when a large number of Westlake residents will go before the Public Welfare Committee of the Council to protest against granting the factory permit.

It developed yesterday that the Pasadena Board of Trade has offered the Brownstein-Louis Company exceptional inducements to locate in the Crown City and, in the event that the proposed site here proves not available, it is probable that the big plant will go there.

Attorney R. M. Fulton, who is representing the Westlake residents in their protest, said yesterday:

"We feel that any legitimate industrial enterprise would rather remain in the factory section of the city. If all that the Brownstein-Louis Company claims it will do for its employees is true, it could carry out its projects much better in a factory section than it could in a residence district. Good employees will fill good jobs if the employers present good conditions and right treatment. And it certainly is not fair for any corporation to ask that home owners sacrifice the value of their property in order to enable that corporation to obtain a location for a lesser expenditure than would be necessary if property was purchased in the actual factory zone.

"The Westlake residents feel that a factory is a factory—no matter whether it resembles the Hotel Grant or a livery stable—and there is no legitimate place for a factory outside the specific factory district.

"The people of the Westlake section have purchased and improved their property in the belief that the city would protect them and they do not believe that they have been wrong in this. There will be a large number of them present at Thursday's committee meeting, a mammoth protest will be presented and we do not think the city will force the objectionable factory on them."

ERROR CORRECTED IN NAME OF MAGAZINE.

In an article appearing in Sunday's Times regarding the mailing by the local Chamber of Commerce of 2000 copies of a local magazine containing a big boost for Los Angeles, the name of the publication was erroneously given as the Pacific Ports. It should have been the Pacific Export Magazine, an all-Los Angeles publication with offices at 528 I. W. Hellman Building. The number sent out to all parts of the earth gave a summary in English, Spanish, Japanese and Chinese of the assets and resources of Los Angeles.

LANCASTER WANTS A WATERWORKS PLANT.

The people in the neighborhood of Lancaster, Antelope Valley, want to vote on the question of establishing a waterworks district, which will include Lancaster, and put the matter before the Board of Supervisors yesterday. The project is estimated to cost $30,250.

PRAISE STUDENT SOLDIERS.

After reviewing the students of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, of the University of Southern California, Col. L. M. Koehler, U.S.A., (retired,) professor of military science and tactics at the university, declared yesterday that the general appearance of the students was excellent and their equipment in excellent shape, notwithstanding that the present class had only thirty-six hours of military training.

The review was part of the field day exercises of the corps, and was held in connection with the pre-commencement exercises of the university.

A parade of the three platoons preceded the review, and races and other field day sports followed. The bayonet exhibition and machine-gun team in operation were the features of the day's activities.

About 200 cadets took part in the parade and other military features, under the supervision of Lieut. Ziegler, cadet officer, who is acting major in charge of the detachment.

Those receiving certificates for bayonet practice were: F. W. Axe, M. L. Anderson, L. Bothwell, D. Bowen, Anton Burman, C. Crawford, J. O. Fall, J. Hoffman, A. Matson, N. McKay, R. Sallstrom, G. Service, F. Slater, J. Walta and D. Ray. The following received certificates in musketry: J. W. Cohen, C. C. Miller, K. Townsend, R. C. Bowers, A. R. Thornton, G. S. Schiller, G. W. Hunt and C. Graham; for wireless and radio proficiency Kenneth King and E. Debra.

All of these students receiving the certificates are declared able to enter any officers' training school as instructors in the several lines for which they have received certificates.

In addition to Col. Koehler the following officers also took part in the exercises: Lieut. E. L. Symonds, executive officer; Lieut. A. P. Paulson, quartermaster; Lieut. Street; Lieut. Laporta, athletic officer, and Lieut. Ziegler, commanding the three platoons. Three noncommissioned officers of the Regular Army are also on duty at the school.

SEES PROSPERITY IN BONDS' WAKE.

EX-SENATOR FLINT URGES BIGGER NEWPORT HARBOR FOR FUTURE COMMERCE.

Fifty per cent. of Southern California's oranges and lemons will be shipped by water to New York and other eastern markets within ten years, according to ex-Senator Frank P. Flint of Los Angeles. "Within two years a regular line of refrigerator ships will be carrying our citrus to the east coast, Mr. Flint asserted. He feels so sure that this forecast will be fulfilled that he bet a suit of clothes with O. T. Helpling, traffic manager, who disagreed with him.

Mr. Flint's predictions were made a couple of days ago when he was making a trip of inspection over Newport Harbor in company with a party of prominent Orange county men. Mr. Flint is especially interested in the development of Newport Harbor because he is president and large stockholder of the David Hewes Realty Company, which owns 675 acres of oranges and lemons at El Modena, near Santa Ana. Mr. Flint expressed himself as strongly in favor of Newport Harbor development as proposed under a $500,000 Orange county bond issue to be voted on today, believing that Newport Harbor will not only attract profitable shipping, but also a larger fleet of yachts and pleasure boats of all kinds.

Newport and Balboa beaches entertained several thousand people Saturday and Sunday, many of whom were taken over the sites of the proposed improvements. A feature of the programme Sunday was the successful trip of the submarine chaser 307 through the new channel from Balboa to Newport and back, demonstrating the availability of Newport Harbor for use by large vessels.

ENMESHING VICTIMS WITH BARBED WIRE.

HOLD-UP MEN ON VERDUGO ROAD ENTANGLE AUTOISTS BUT ARE DRIVEN OFF.

Barbed wire entanglements as an adjunct of the doubtful occupation of highway robbery had their inception early yesterday morning, according to a report to the Sheriff's office.

A. Wishart, 208 Eddy avenue, Eagle Rock City, and L. S. Riley, 153 North Royal drive, Eagle Rock City, reported that they passed an automobile near Glassel Park on Verdugo road, but did not stop then. A few yards further, their car ran into the entanglements. About the same time, a man rushed at them from the side of the road. One man removed the wire entanglements and another fought with the highwayman, they said. They then jumped into their car and continued their trip.

Deputy Sheriff Sweesy, who investigated the affair, found a car listed to the Diamond Gas Heater Company, abandoned in the road. The car is believed to have been stolen.

TIRED OF SUING.

Man Losing Divorce Action Quits Suit Against Wife's Parents.

The dismissal of the $10,000 lost love suit of Bert L. Hames against his wife's parents, M. L. and Myra Kenyon, was filed yesterday. The alleged alienation of the affections of Mrs. Laura K. Hames occurred three months after their marriage. Mrs. Hames left him, he said, and returned to the home of her parents.

Mr. Hames also filed suit for divorce, which resulted in Mrs. Hames, being granted a degree on her cross-complaint. She also got the custody of her baby and alimony of $15 a week.

HOW PRISONERS WERE TO BE SET AT LIBERTY.

MAN AT COUNTY JAIL TELLS OF ATTEMPTED DELIVERY; EMBARGO ON VISITORS.

The mystery surrounding an attempted delivery of prisoners in the County Jail last week was explained yesterday, when Lewis B. Harris, indicted for the alleged looting of the Artesia bank of $27,000 in Liberty Bonds and War Savings stamps, told Capt. George Gallagher how certain tools had been smuggled into the institution.

Harris said that he was given a brace and six bits by Guy Wells and George Kelly, both sent to San Quentin since that time, because the men knew that Harris was a good mechanic. Investigation on the part of Capt. Gallagher disclosed that two men had visited the two prisoners a few days before the attempted break, smuggling in the brace and bits and a number of saws which were afterwards recovered. Harris said that he was working to remove the lock from his cell, and was to give the tools back to Wells and Kelly, and all were to leave the jail at one time.

Otto Dersch, who has been sent to San Quentin, is believed to have obtained a saw he used on two bars in the same manner.

Since the attempted jail delivery the Sheriff's office will not permit men sentenced to have visitors.

ALFALFA PALACE.

Novel Feature of Fair to be Held in Antelope Valley.

Everybody in Antelope Valley is preparing to attend the fair to be held in Lancaster September 17 to 20. Because the valley produces a great deal of alfalfa, a palace is to be constructed entirely of baled alfalfa and there will be other interesting exhibits. R. E. Cameron, who is managing the enterprise, called on the Supervisors yesterday and was assured of their co-operation.

PARENTS DIVORCED, RECTOR HAS CHILDREN.

Acting as good Samaritans, Rev. Hugo R. Lillifeldt and his wife, of San Pedro, agreed to give a home to the young daughters of Peter A. and Jennie Westerlund. Yesterday this agreement was filed in Judge Taft's court, at a hearing in which the Westerlunds each asked for the custody of the children. Mr. Westerlund, a shipyard employee, defending the divorce action of Mrs. Westerlund, will pay the board of the children at the rate of $25 a month.

ARKANSAS OUTING.

The former residents of Arkansas who were deprived of their picnic reunion in May by the rains will have their postponed gathering in Sycamore Grove all day Saturday. President Trundle has plans completed to make it a jolly get-together for all who ever lived in Arkansas. County registers and headquarters will be open all day, basket dinners at noon and programme following. Souvenir badges will be on sale, hot coffee free with them. All are asked to bring cup, spoon and dinner. As this is the all-Southern California picnic, all parts of our Southland will be represented.

ENDS PHONE CASE.

On the filing in United States District Judge Trippet's court yesterday of the United States Supreme Court's decision that it is within the power of the Postmaster-General to fix rates for telephone service, under the power conferred by act of Congress, authorizing the government to take over the telephone and telegraph lines, the injunction proceedings brought by the municipalities of San Diego, East San Diego and Coronado, to enjoin the enforcement of higher rates by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, was dismissed.
